Dear Dr. Bacote:

When the history of the sociological development of voter registration and individual dedication towards black peoples needs and the evolution of full enfranchisement is written; I am certain that no chapter will carry the full measure of those of us who were on the scene with no fanfare; no pay; no staff; no honorary degrees; or anything which gave indication of the true impact of being a part of man's brotherhood with man.

We worked and got people registered and carried them to the Fulton County Courthouse, because it was our opportunity to do something in the furtherance of human welfare.

This picture may recall our endeavors in terms of the above. Accept it in that light, anyway.

Sincerely,

Ernest W. Wright
