Dear Mrs. Stelling:

I have just returned from a sad trip to Kansas City, Mo. with my wife. Her nephew, a young man (45+) just died. He was a victim of cerebral palsy from birth. You know what that means. He was one of 4 brothers, but he never had a chance. C'est la vie! (or is it, indeed, that simple)? We are just now trying to get back to normal.

Thanks so much for the material you sent about Richard Long. I have only scanned it up to now. Will go into depth later.

Did you get the slides on the Founding of Adelphi College? I hope so. For many people this historical event is anti-climactic in light of the more dramatic "Matins on the Amistad". I have just heard of the passing of Mrs. Lillian Webster-Jones. She was a fellow-teacher with me at "Lab" High (Atl. Univ.) school in 1931! Her husband, Dr. B. A. Jones, taught at Morehouse and for Atl. Univ. Please forgive the "sad tone" of this note. The next will be more on the happy side! Sincerely,
Hal Woodruff

I failed to say that my wife's nephew died of in-operable cancer, at the age of 45.
