

THIS IS THE COTTON THAT TOM PICKT.

Is this the moralist strict and grave
Who would not directly own a slave,
But who the dollar remorseless gave
For cheap slave goods, a trifle to save?
Free labor goods were costly he said,
So a bargain with conscience soon was made,
Then he chose the store where a stock is kept
Of goods of Cotton o'er which slaves have wept
On its way to the Mill, which spun the thread
Out of the cotton that looked so red,
In stealing of which the blood was shed,
And paid the merchant, that paid the fiend
That stole the Cotton that Tom pickt.

"This is the Cotton That Tom Pickt" Card 2 1/4 X
3 1/2, with 13 lines Poetry, passed out by "Free Labor Stores" as propaganda for a boycott on slave goods)

"Is this the moralist strict and grave
Who would not directly own a slave
But who the dollar remorseless gave
For cheap slave goods, a trifle to save?
Free labor goods were costly he said,
So a bargain with Conscience soon was made,
Then he chose the store where a stock is kept
Of goods of Cotton O'er which slaves have wept
On its way to the Mill, which spun the thread
Out of the cotton that looked so red,
In stealing of which the blood was shed,
And paid the merchant, that paid the fiend
That stole the Cotton that Tom Pickt"