

THE ATLANTA UNIVERSITY BULLETIN

Published Quarterly by Atlanta University.

JULY 1952

Opening of UNCF Campaign—Cleveland, Ohio

(Left to right) President Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta University; Attorney Herman Moss, Chairman of the 1952 United Negro College Fund Campaign in Cleveland, and Mayor Thomas A. Burke of that city. President Clement was principal speaker at the opening of the Cleveland Campaign at a luncheon held at Hotel Allerton, June 18.

(A special appeal for the Fund is made by President Clement to alumni and friends of Atlanta University on Page 43 of the Bulletin.)

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Page
3	Calendar
5	"Mr. Chairman"
9	Many Art Lovers Attend Eleventh Annual Exhibition
10	Graduate Students Serving Internships
11	Scholarly Interest Growing in New Historical Movement
13	The Woodruff Murals Are Unveiled
15	Atlanta University System Graduates 246 During Brilliant Commencement Season
18	The Dean Sage Hall Corner Stone Is Laid
19	New Directorship to Begin at September Opening
19	Attorney Hughes Spalding Is Elected to Board of Trustees
20	Quote and Unquote
24	Atlanta's Sociologists . . . Traditional and Progressive
29	Scientific Testing Program Initiated at School of Social Work
30	Spotlight
32	Faculty Items
34	Alumni News
37	Alumni Association Activities
41	Requiescat en Pace
43	A Letter to Alumni and Friends from the President of the University
	COVER: A Glimpse of the Woodruff Murals at the Trevor Arnett Library

CALENDAR

- CONVOCATION: January 17 — John Scott, Foreign Correspondent
- UNIVERSITY CENTER CONVOCATION: January 27 — James P. Brawley, President, Clark College
- FORUM: February 13 — Caroline F. Ware, Professor of Social Work, Howard University
Subject: "The Role of Culture in Social Engineering and Community Analysis"
 Negro History Week Observance: February 13-14
- RECITAL: February 17 — Celeste Cole, Soprano
- ILLUSTRATED LECTURES: February 18 and 19 — "Some Pictures in the Louvre"; "The National Gallery of London" — H. S. Ede, British Artist and Author
- UNIVERSITY PLAYERS: February 21, 22 and 23 — "Romeo and Juliet"
- BOOK REVIEW PROGRAM: March 3 — "Books About Abraham Lincoln" — Louis Warren, Lincoln Biographer
- LECTURE-DEMONSTRATION: March 6 — Franz J. Polgar, Mental Wizard
Subject: "Fun With the Mind"
- FORUM: March 12 — Everett Somerville Brown, Professor of Political Science, University of Michigan Subject: "The Political Pilgrim's Progress"
- CONVOCATION: March 12 — William Vogt, Author and Lecturer
Subject: "The Population Problem — From Family to Globe"
- SEVENTH ANNUAL MARRIAGE INSTITUTE: March 12-14
- RECITAL: March 18 — Soulima Stravinsky, Pianist
- CONVOCATION: March 26 — Hans Joakim Schultz, Representative of the Danish Society
- EXHIBIT: March 30 — Opening of Eleventh Annual Exhibition of Paintings, Sculpture and Prints by Negro Artists — Roland J. McKinney, Consultant in American Art, Metropolitan Museum of Art
- CONCERT: April 4 — Spelman College Glee Club
- RECEPTION: April 4 — Honoring Trustees of Affiliated Institutions
- LAYING OF DEAN SAGE HALL CORNER STONE: April 4
- RECITAL: April 6 — Ella Bowman Clark, Pianist
- BOOK REVIEW PROGRAM: April 15 — The American People and Living Ideas in America
Reviewer: Melvin D. Kennedy, Department of History, Morehouse College
- CONCERT: April 18 — Morehouse College Glee Club
- FORUM: April 23 — Emil Lengyel, Associate Professor, School of Education, New York University
Subject: "What's Wrong With American Foreign Policy"
- CONCERT: April 27 — Bennett College Choir
- UNVEILING OF WOODRUFF MURALS IN LIBRARY: April 27
- CONVOCATION: May 1 — Robert S. Henry, Vice-President in Charge of Public Relations, Association of American Railroads
Subject: "The Role of Railroad Industry in the Present Industrial Mobilization Effort"
- BOOK REVIEW PROGRAM: May 8 — Barabbas by Par Fabian Lagerkuist
Reviewer: S. W. Williams, Department of Religion, Morehouse College
- CONCERT: May 9 — Students of the Affiliated Institutions
- FILM FORUM: May 12 — "The Belgian Congo"
- MAY DAY PROGRAM: May 15 — "Early American Dances"
- EXHIBITION: May 18 — Paintings, Prints, and Ceramics by Students in the Art Classes of the Affiliated Institutions
- FORUM: May 20 — S. I. Hayawaka, Editor, Etc.
Subject: "Semantics and the Reduction of Conflict"
- RECITAL: May 23 — Doris Moultrie, Pianist
- PRESIDENTS' RECEPTION HONORING THE GRADUATING CLASSES: May 31
- JOINT BACCALAUREATE SERVICE: June 1 — Allan Knight Chalmers, Professor of Preaching and Applied Christianity, Boston University School of Theology
- COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES: June 2 — Spelman College — Albert W. Dent, President, Dillard University
- COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES: June 2 — Atlanta University — Homer Sylvester Brown, Judge of the County Court of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania
- COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES: June 3 — Morehouse College — Kirtley F. Mather, Professor of Geology, Harvard University

Chairmen of the Board . . . 1867-1949

WARE
(1867-1885)

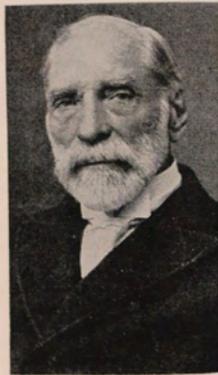

LEWIS
(1885-1890)

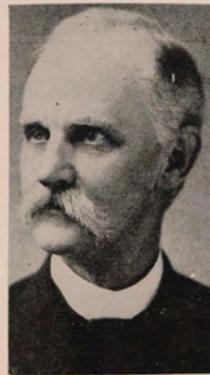

SMITH
(1890-1891)

TWICHELL
(1891-1892)

STRIEBY
(1892)

PRATT
(1893-1895)

BUMSTEAD
(1896-1905) (1907)

WALWORTH
(1906)

WARE
(1908-1923)

ADAMS
(1924-1928)

SAGE
(1928-1943)

ARNETT
(1943-1949)

LAWRENCE J. MACGREGOR

(1949-)

No legendary figure

"Mr. Chairman"

The Atlanta University Board

Has Had

Distinguished Chairmen

No institution of its kind has had more brilliant and able leadership than Atlanta University. Since the earliest days in 1865, countless individuals from the South, as well as the North, have given sympathetic interest and loyal support to the Atlanta "cause", but those who have borne a special type of responsibility have been Chairmen of the Board.

Thus far, through Atlanta University's eighty-seven years, there have been thirteen individuals to serve in this capacity. From varying walks of life representing the ministry, teaching, military service, law, business and banking professions, these Chairmen of the Board have not permitted personal activities to interfere with the compelling job at Atlanta University. Some of the thirteen whose lives have been closely entwined in the historical roots of the Atlanta institution are but legendary figures to the present generation of students. But because of their sane guidance, wise counselling and far-reaching vision, Atlanta University, which first came into being in an abandoned railroad boxcar, has been developed into one of the nation's leading educational institutions.

Far from being legendary, however, is today's chairman, Lawrence J. MacGregor, whose unassuming yet forceful figure is seen frequently on the campuses of the Atlanta University System. When Chairman MacGregor took over his duties on the Board in 1949, he accepted the responsibility with a sincerity that has been evidenced in his frequent trips to Atlanta to observe and give first-hand direction to the University's program. His wide experience, the last gained over a period of eighteen years as president of the Summit (New Jersey) Trust Company, has made him keenly aware that to do an effective job for Atlanta, he has to see for himself how the work is proceeding. Yet Atlanta is but one of his many interests. He is president of the Board of Trustees of the Kent Place School, president of the Board of Directors of the Morris County (New Jersey) Children's Home and treasurer of the International Missionary Council. In 1949, he was the New Jersey State Chairman of the United Negro College Fund, a major responsibility in the interest of the thirty-two leading Negro private colleges of this country.

Born in Itasca, Illinois, on December 1, 1901.
(Continued on next page)

ATLANTA UNIVERSITY IN THE EARLY DAYS
Now the site of Morris Brown College

ber 9, 1892, the present Chairman was educated at the University of Chicago, from which he was graduated in 1916, Phi Beta Kappa. After serving overseas with the American Expeditionary Forces in World War I, he attended Edinburgh University in Scotland. For fourteen years, Mr. MacGregor was in the investment banking business in New York. Despite his many commitments, he still has time to indulge his two hobbies, music and gardening.

Mr. MacGregor succeeded Dr. Trevor Arnett (an expert in college financing), who today holds the title of honorary chairman of the Board. Born on November 8, 1870, in Little Hereford, England, Mr. Arnett is a graduate of the University of Chicago and the recipient of honorary degrees from Carleton College (Minnesota), and Colby College (Maine). For eight years, he was president of the General Education Board. He is a former trustee of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, a one-time member of the Board of the Rockefeller Foundation, and for the past thirty years has been chairman of the Board of Trustees of Spelman College. Years of service by Dr. Arnett were rendered at the University of Chicago, where he served as chief accountant, vice president and business manager. For a period he was with the Chicago and Great Western Railway as accountant and chief clerk. He is author of such published works as Fraternity Accounting for Chapters, Teachers Salaries in Certain Endowed Colleges and Universities in the United States and College and University Finance.

One of Atlanta University's greatest benefactors was the late Dean Sage, lawyer and philanthropist of New York City, who served as chairman of the Board during the period of the University's transition from a college into a graduate and professional school — 1929-1943. Born in Brooklyn, New York, on December 13, 1875, Mr. Sage was graduated from Yale University in 1897 and from the Harvard University School of Law in 1899. In the same year he was admitted to the New York Bar. He was a member of the firm of Sage, Gray, Todd and Sims at the time of his death on July 1, 1943. In 1922 Mr. Sage was elected president of the Presbyterian Hospital in New York City, and two years later he announced plans for the construction of the "greatest medical center in the world" which was to cost more than $20,000,000 and to embody the latest developments in medical science, combining hospital, medical, college and research work. On April 16, 1950, at a ceremony in which a large oil portrait of Mr. Sage was unveiled at Atlanta University, his son, Dean Sage, Jr., unable to attend the exercise, sent a letter (read by President Florence M. Read of Spelman College) which stated: "It will not be taken amiss if I speak for a moment with pride of my father's life and achievements. His works have always been an inspiration to me and with the passage of time their significance seems to increase. My father had two surpassing interests in life, the Atlanta colleges and the Presbyterian Medical Center . . . As his life progressed and his abilities reached their fullest fruition, his career became a dedication of self to the service of others, and it was through the Atlanta colleges and the Presbyterian Hospital that this dedication achieved its fullest expression."

Mike Adams, as Dr. Myron W. Adams was fondly known to hundreds of students and alumni, was one of the few who served as president of the University and president or chairman of the Board. A native of Gilsum, New Hampshire, he was born on November 27, 1860. Attending Dartmouth College, he was graduated from this institution in 1881, and later entered Hartford Theological Seminary, earning the Ph.D. degree in 1895. He was the first president of Atlanta University to earn the highest academic degree. Before joining the faculty of Atlanta University in 1889, Dr. Adams was pastor of a New England church and a student at Andover Theological Seminary. In the forty years that he spent at Atlanta, Dr. Adams served as professor of Greek, dean, treasurer, acting president and president. He represented Atlanta University on the occasion of the signing of the agreement of affiliation on April 1, 1929, through which Atlanta University, Morehouse College and Spelman College became combined in a university plan. After his retirement from Atlanta University in 1929, Dr. Adams took on new duties as secretary of the Middlesex Association of Congregational Churches and as supply pastor in churches of Massachusetts and New Hampshire. He died on May 27, 1939, at his home in West Townsend, Massachusetts.

Edward Twichell Ware, born in Atlanta on March 24, 1874, spent the early years of his life on the campus of Atlanta University. Upon the death of his mother in 1889, he was sent to Hartford, Connecticut, to make his home with his uncle, the Reverend Joseph H. Twichell, with whom he remained for eight years. He entered the service of Atlanta University shortly after his graduation from Yale in 1897. In the four years to follow and until his graduation from Union Theological Seminary in 1881, his summer vacations were spent on trips with the Atlanta University Quartet. He received an appointment as chaplain and travelling secretary for Atlanta University upon his graduation from Union. He also became pastor of the Church of Christ in Atlanta. Mr. Ware was elected to the presidency of Atlanta University in 1907, and he, too, became president of the Board. Interesting is the fact that a number of Mr. Ware's Yale classmates became liberal supporters of Atlanta University. Among those to figure prominently in the saga of Atlanta were Edward S. Harkness and Dean Sage. Mr. Ware served as president until 1922, although he was forced to forsake his duties in 1919 due to ill health. He died at his new home in Claremont, California, on May 19, 1927.

The militant fight that Dr. Horace Bumstead waged to secure for colored people a "liberal" education has been considered by many individuals as his greatest service to Atlanta University. Born in Boston, Massachusetts, September 29, 1841, he earned the A.B. degree at Yale in 1863 and the A.M., at the same institution in 1866. In 1870, he was graduated from Andover Theological Seminary and in the same year studied in Europe. An honorary degree of doctor of divinity was conferred upon him in 1881 by New York University. Dr. Bumstead was commissioned as a major in the U. S. C. T. after which he served in the siege of Richmond and of Petersburg. At this period in his career, he was ordained into the Congregational ministry and served as pastor of a church in Minneapolis, Minnesota. He joined the faculty of Atlanta University in 1875 as professor of natural science. Dr. Bumstead became president in 1888 and joined the ranks of those who were to serve as Board chairmen. In 1907, he was retired on a Carnegie pension. Death occurred at Intervale, New Hampshire, October 6, 1919.

A Glimpse of the Atlanta University Center (Morris Brown College and Gammon Theological Seminary are not seen)

Another Bostonian to serve was Arthur C. Walworth who was born on April 28, 1844. Educated at Yale University from which he was graduated in 1866 and at the Lawrence Scientific School at Harvard, where he spent the following two years, Mr. Walworth spent much of his life in planning and constructing steam plants. In 1887, he became organizer and president of the Walworth Construction and Supply Company, and in 1896, he was made president of the Malleable Iron Fittings Company of Branford, Connecticut. In 1910 his company, the Walworth Construction and Supply Company, was merged with the English and Flett Company. This change is considered important as it marked Mr. Walworth's retirement from active business and enabled him to give more time to his many social and literary activities. He contributed liberally to the support of Negroes and became especially interested in giving a few the best training possible so that they, in turn, might become leaders of their own people. For many years Atlanta University enlisted Mr. Walworth's services as trustee and as chairman of the financial committee. He studied carefully at close range the needs of this institution and labored hard in the gathering and caring for funds. Mr. Walworth died at his home in Newton Centre, Massachusetts, June 23, 1920.

Dr. Lewellyn Pratt's years of service to Atlanta University came at the time that he was serving as president of the Free Academy at Norwich, Connecticut. Born on a farm in Essex, Connecticut, August 8, 1832, he earned the A.B. degree at Williams College in 1852 and the A.M. in 1885. He taught on the faculties of Gallaudet College, Knox College, Williams College and Hartford Theological Seminary, and he held pastorates of Congregational Churches in North Adams, Massachusetts, and Norwich, Connecticut. An unusually gifted teacher, Dr. Pratt was active in missionary organizations. For forty or more years, he was in constant demand throughout New England for every kind of occasion. He came to be known as one of the leading members of the Williams College alumni. Death occurred on June 14, 1913.

As a young man in college, Michael E. Strieby, who later was to attain fame in the ministry, delivered addresses throughout Oberlin, Ohio, on the righteousness of the anti-slavery movement. The violent and pronounced opposition to the cause only served to make him more vigorous in his denouncement of slavery. Mr. Strieby attended Hudson College and Oberlin College, graduating in 1842 in the first class ever to finish Oberlin. His college days were filled with intense excitement and anti-slavery agitation due to the fact that Oberlin was strategically located on six underground railroads through which a stream of men, women and children passed on their way to Canada. He was not only a talker against slavery, but he practiced what he preached. During his lifetime, Dr. Strieby filled pastorates in Mt. Vernon, Ohio; Syracuse, New York; and Newark, New Jersey. At the age of 49, he entered the service of the American Missionary Association as corresponding secretary. In 1896, he was retired at his own request. Death occurred on March 16, 1899.

The Reverend Joseph H. Twichell, who earned the A.B. degree at Yale in 1859 and the A.M. in 1886, was another link in the chain between Yale University and Atlanta University. He was a member of the faculty of Union Theological Seminary for five years and of Andover Theological Seminary for one year. For a long period he was pastor of the Asylum Hill Church of Hartford. In addition to his teaching and preaching activities, he also devoted much of his time to writing. Two of the books that he had published are the Life of John Winthrop and Some Old Puritan Love Letters. Death occurred in 1918.

Atlanta University's only graduate to serve as chairman of the Board was the Reverend Joseph E. Smith, a member of the Class of 1876. Born a slave, young Joseph was kidnapped at the age of nine and put in a slave pen in Richmond, Virginia. At the close of the war he made his way to Atlanta University. He was helped in getting an education by Mrs. Daniel L. Furber of Newton Centre, Massachusetts, and by Senator William A. Buckingham of Connecticut. For eleven years, the Reverend Mr. Smith served on the Board of Public Education in Chattanooga, Tennessee, and he was one of the individuals who had responsibility for selecting the textbooks for the schools. He made an excellent record as pastor of the First Congregational Church of Chattanooga, which he served for over thirty years. He died on March 10, 1917.

A man who was instrumental in laying the foundation of the public school system in Georgia was the second chairman or president of Atlanta University's Board. General John R. Lewis, a junior vice commander of the G. A. R. filled this post. Born in Erie County, Pennsylvania, on September 22, 1834, of Scotch-Irish parentage, his education was obtained at the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery and in the medical department of the University of Vermont. Entering the service in the ranks of the First Regiment of Vermont Volunteers on April 20, 1861, he served nearly four months at Fortress Monroe, Newport News, Virginia. Twice wounded he lost his left arm on May 5, 1864, in the Battle of the Wilderness. As soon as he was able for service, he was appointed colonel of the First Regiment Veteran Re-

(Continued on page 10)

At the rostrum: Roland J. McKinney, consultant in American art for the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City, who was guest speaker at the formal opening of the Atlanta University exhibition.

MANY ART LOVERS ATTEND ELEVENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION

Hundreds of art lovers were interested spectators at the opening of the eleventh annual exhibition of paintings, sculpture and prints by Negro artists on March 29 at the Trevor Arnett Gallery. This year's showing was marked by an unusual collection of prints and drawings and exceptional sculpture. The jury's selections for the showing comprised 146 pieces of art of which 86 were oils, 20 were water colors, 26 were prints and 14 were sculptures.

Winner of the highest cash award of $300 was Fred Jones of Chicago, Illinois, whose oil painting, "Concerto," captured the figure painting award. The John Hope Purchase Award of $250 for the best landscape was won by Harvey W. Lee, Jr., 27-year-old artist of Peoria, Illinois, for an abstract in oil titled "Seascape." Another prize-winner in the oils was Ernest Crichlow, veteran artist of New York City, whose portrait of a little girl, "Paulette," won the $150 award for the first Atlanta University award, any subject. The popular award of $100 in oils was won by Samuel Countee of New York City for his semi-nude figure, "Brown Girl."

Two winners in the water colors were Lois Mailou Jones of Washington, D. C. who took the first award of $125 for her French landscape, "Impass de L'Oratoire-Grasse;" and Donald H. Roberts, a self-taught

(Continued on page 19)

At the extreme right — A portrait bust in medium redwood by Guy L. Miller of Los Angeles, California, winner of the $250 award in sculpture. The painting next to it is "Brown Girl," by Samuel L. Countee. This was the winner of the 1952 popular award.

"MR. CHAIRMAN"

(Continued from page 8)

serves and was continuously in service until May 18, 1865. In the same year, General Lewis was assigned to the post of assistant commissioner of the Freedman's Bureau for the State of Tennessee, and two years later he was assigned to a similar post for the State of Georgia. He continued in this work until the affairs of the Bureau were closed when he himself was retired in 1870. In the same year, General Lewis was made the first state school commissioner under the Republican administration. After a period of living in Des Moines, Iowa, and Buffalo, New York, he returned to Atlanta and became active with the International Cotton Exposition. In 1833 he entered the mercantile business in which he continued until his appointment as postmaster in 1830. He was regarded as one of the most influential citizens of Atlanta. At Atlanta University he was present at the laying of the cornerstone of the first building. During the time that he was postmaster, he was burned in effigy before his office door because he employed a colored clerk. When he left office in 1894, 35 out of the 80 employees of the office were colored, appointed under civil service.

Although Edmund Asa Ware, upon graduation from Yale in 1863, had unusual prospects of success as a teacher or clergyman in the North, he chose to cast his lot with the fortunes of the colored people at a time when it cost almost everything desired by ambitious men to go on such a mission. Mr. Ware, revered as semi-divine by many of Atlanta University's graduates, never referred to the University as an institution for Negroes, and it was his ambition to secure the attendance of both white and colored students. He often was heard to say that he never would have touched the work in Atlanta if it had been on an exclusively black basis any more than if it had been exclusively white. Mr. Ware was born in North Wrentham, Massachusetts, December 22, 1837. For two years after his graduation from Yale, he taught at the Free Academy in Norwich, developing what was considered to be remarkable teaching power. In 1865, he went to Nashville to serve for one year as principal of a newly organized public school. One year later he left Nashville for Atlanta to assume new duties under the auspices of the American Missionary Association. In 1867, he was appointed superintendent of schools for the State of Georgia under the Freedman's Bureau and in the prosecution of this work he travelled widely. This was the year that a charter was obtained for Atlanta University of which he became president in 1869 and simultaneously, president of the Board. In the school year, 1874-1875, Mr. Ware travelled throughout Europe, visiting the British Isles, Italy, Greece, Egypt and Palestine. He died suddenly on September 25, 1885, at the age of 48.

The educational statesmanship of these thirteen men has been a major factor in the success of Atlanta University. And the sum total of the stewardship of these Chairmen of the Board can be figured up in the achievements of the nearly 3,500 men and women graduates who were able to lead better lives because able men of vision and courage were leading the way.

(The Bulletin is grateful to the following for their assistance in furnishing information, photographs and other materials on many of the individuals who are mentioned: C. Robert Keeseey, general secretary of the Alumni Association of Oberlin College; Arthur Clarence Walworth of Newton Centre, Massachusetts; Ethel Richmond, reference librarian, Williams College; Gaynelle Barksdale, reference librarian, Atlanta University; the Reverend Joseph H. Twichell of Washington, Connecticut; Mrs. Gladys W. Williams, secretary, Board of Home Missions of the Congregational Christian Churches; and the librarian of Berea College.)

GRADUATE STUDENTS

SERVING INTERNSHIPS

The School of Education has initiated an internship program as one of the varied learning activities of students working toward the master of arts degree in the area of guidance and counselling.

The program has been approved by the Georgia State Department of Education. Students who successfully complete it are eligible to receive certificates as counsellors provided they have had three or more years of teaching experience. Those without teaching experience, upon completion of the program, are eligible to receive provisional certificates as counsellors.

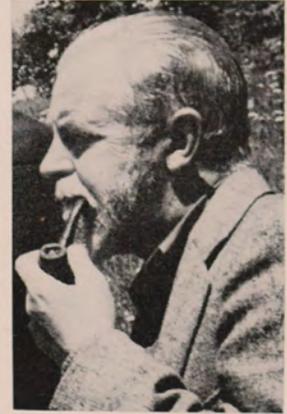

Paul I. Clifford, a member of the faculty of the School of Education, is chairman of the division of guidance and counselling. The internes are working under the direction and supervision of William M. Nix, director of the personnel department at Morehouse College; and Charlton R. Hamilton, dean of men at Clark College.

Each interne is required to spend at least ten hours a week working as a counsellor. The work is coordinated in a weekly two-hour seminar in general counselling methods. As part of the internship, each student is given an opportunity to carry on various practice experiences which are set up to increase skill and competency in counselling.

RUSHTON COULBORN

SCHOLARLY INTEREST GROWING IN NEW HISTORICAL MOVEMENT

ALFRED E. KROEBER

THE new historical movement, "Uniformities in History," which may be said to have had its origin on the campus of Atlanta University, is growing in interest among young scholars. This fact was indicated at the December, 1951, meeting of the American Historical Association in New York City. Of the several sections of the Association in session at this annual meeting, the one on "Uniformities in History" attracted a group of more than two hundred.

"Uniformities in History" means primarily parallels, analogies and repetitions in history, together with the reasons for them. But those who are concerned with the movement are as much interested in the differences and limits of analogy among like historical events as they are in the likenesses.

Of significant interest to Atlanta University is the fact that the idea for the movement came about in discussions that took place between Dr. Alfred L. Kroeber, professor of anthropology, emeritus, University of California, and Dr. Rushton Coulborn, chairman of the department of history at Atlanta University. At the time of the inception of the idea (March, 1948), Dr. Kroeber was a visiting lecturer in the Atlanta University course, The Foundations of Social Science.

The idea is not a new one although the movement is new. Dr. Kroeber's book, Configurations of Culture Growth, published in 1944, and a number of his essays of earlier years are leading contributions to the subject. Professor Arnold J. Toynbee's A Study of History, now famous, while it contains much which is the special opinion of the author, is nevertheless a landmark in the study of uniformities. Other works such as that of Professor Pitirim A. Sorokin, the sociologist, and of the late Ernst Cassirer, the philosopher, have contributed to the movement. The convergence of material from several different fields is a feature of it. Dr. Coulborn's studies, for many years, have been directed toward a reinterpretation of history along with matters otherwise considered as being in the realm of the social sciences or philosophy. His Atlanta University courses that have a definite relation to the movement are The Evolution of the Historic Societies and Old World Prehistory.

The movement has support at Harvard and at Princeton, including that of Professor Crane Brinton, chairman of the department of history at Harvard, and that of Professor Joseph R. Strayer, chairman of the department of history at Princeton. Organizational matters of the movement at present are with the American Council of Learned Societies, and particularly with Dr. Charles E. Odegaard, executive director of the Council. Members of the steering committee, which has been set up by the Council, are Professors Kroeber (chairman); Coulborn (secretary); Brinton; E. H. Harbison of Princeton and Dr. Odegaard.

The movement has had the interest as well as the financial backing of the Rockefeller Foundation. A leading figure in shaping the movement is John Marshall, associate director for the humanities of the Rockefeller Foundation.

Three conferences, thus far, having to do with the movement have been held. The first, held in April, 1948, at the Institute for Advanced Study (Princeton, New Jersey), and managed by Dr. Walter W. Stewart of the Institute, was concerned chiefly with method, including relations of method in the humanities, the social sciences and the natural sciences. The second, held at the Institute in May, 1949, was concerned with the character and definition of civilizations. A lecture on that occasion, delivered by Professor Toynbee, was entitled "Encounters Between Civilizations." At the third conference held at Princeton University in October and November, 1950, the meetings were given over to a comparative study of feudal regimes in different times and places in history, namely mediaeval Europe, mediaeval Japan, China in Chou times and between Han and T'ang, Egypt between the VIth and the XIIth Dynasties and between the XXth and XXVth

(Continued on page 21)

SCENES AT THE UNVEILING OF THE WOODRUFF MURALS
In the center photo with President Rufus E. Clement is Artist Hale Woodruff, creator of the murals.

THE WOODRUFF MURALS ARE UNVEILED

Atlanta University became another center of murals created by Hale Woodruff with the unveiling of the newest wall decoration by this famous artist on April 27. "The Amistad Incident" which he executed for Talladega College in 1939 was perhaps his first major work in this area and established him as one of the nation's foremost muralists.

Years of exhaustive research went into the execution of the Atlanta University murals which were boldly and dramatically designed to depict "The Art of the Negro." They hang in six huge oval panels in the upstairs foyer of the Trevor Arnett Library and are immediately discernible as one mounts the stairs from the first floor of the Library.

The murals have been arranged in chronological order. In Panel 1, "Native Forms," is shown how the art of the African manifested itself in a diversity of forms, styles and materials. Panel 2, "Interchange," shows how the artists of Africa were for a long time in contact with the Greeks, Romans and Egyptians of antiquity. Panel 3, bearing the title, "Dissipation," depicts the destroying of much of Africa's native culture and art. In "Parallels," the title of Panel 4, Mr. Woodruff has shown how different groups of people with similar cultural motivation have developed art forms. Panel 5, "Influences," gives the impact of African art upon the works of the modern arts; and Panel 6, "Artists," contains some of the artists of the Negro race who have achieved eminence at various times throughout history.

Preceding the unveiling, which was witnessed by several hundred Atlantans, Mr. Woodruff was presented in a brief talk in the exhibition gallery of the Library.

*Platform Dignitaries
at 21st Combined
Baccalaureate Service
for the Atlanta University System*

(Left to right): President Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta University; Dr. Allan Knight Chalmers of Boston University School of Theology; the Very Reverend Alfred Hardman, Dean of the Cathedral of St. Philip; President Florence M. Read of Spelman College; President Benjamin E. Mays of Morehouse College; and the Reverend Nat G. Long, Minister of the Peachtree Road Methodist Church.

Registrar John P. Whittaker Leads Candidates of Atlanta's Graduate and Professional Schools to Sisters Chapel for the Baccalaureate Service.

Atlanta University System Graduates 246 During Brilliant Commencement Season

The graduating classes of 1952 of the Atlanta University System were treated to a series of forceful addresses during the commencement season by American leaders representing the professions of law, religion, education and science.

THE BACCALAUREATE SERVICE

Following a tradition inaugurated in 1931, the joint baccalaureate service for the combined graduating classes was held on June 1 in Sisters Chapel, Spelman College campus. The sermon, delivered by Dr. Allan Knight Chalmers, professor of preaching and applied Christianity at the Boston University School of Theology, was a discourse on ways of living and ways in which people may be judged. The speaker's assertion that people who call themselves Christians should be able to be identified as such was clear-cut and with absolute conviction, as was his mention of the many opportunities for service by those who have staunch religious and moral convictions. A warning sounded by the baccalaureate speaker was that those to be graduated would be judged in years to come by the kind of stamp that they put on their lives and their work, and that their value to this world would depend upon their understanding of it and their hope in it.

Dr. Chalmers cited the life of Jesus as proof of the fact that the world never forgets a man who stays on top of a lost cause. He told the audience that this world will never forget Jesus who lived more than 2,000 years ago, not because of what he said, but because of his good deeds.

The noted theologian, who has a distinguished record as minister of New York's Broadway Tabernacle for more than 17 years, declared that men have the right to die for what they believe in and that there are individuals who hate injustices even more than they want to live. Referring to the pattern of segregation that is being practiced in this country, he denounced this system in the statement: "There is no way for any decent Christian person to be able to justify the segregation which is the pattern North and South in the United States today."

Dr. Chalmers was introduced to the large audience by President Clement, who also extended an official welcome to the audience of several thousand inside and out of the Chapel. The Scriptures were read by the Very Reverend Alfred Hardman, dean of the Cathedral of St. Philip; and Prayer was offered by the Reverend Nat G. Long, minister of the Peachtree Road Methodist Church. Musical selections offered by the Atlanta-Morehouse-Spelman Chorus were "Oh, for the Wings of a Dove" by Mendelssohn; and "And the Glory of the Lord" from Handel's Messiah. Benediction was pronounced by the Reverend Martin Luther King, minister of the Ebenezer Baptist Church.

Within the two days that followed, 246 men and women received bachelor's and master's degrees from the presidents of the affiliated institutions. Spelman, on the morning of June 2,

"It Is Your Duty"

JUDGE BROWN

"Because of your knowledge and understanding, your active participation in organizations designed to enlighten those of your fellowmen who have not had the educational advantages you enjoy, would be a great contribution. It is your duty, within the orbit of our constitutional processes, to fight against all forms of segregation; to fight against any and every device that would limit people to think or to assemble together for the purpose of peacefully exchanging the ideas that result from thinking.

No person or groups of persons should be overlooked in your all-out fight against any scheme that would tend to destroy the minds of men, for the strength of democracy is based on the character of its citizens and their faith in the concept of the moral and spiritual values inherent in mankind.

To be young; to have learned what the denial of human rights means to the lack of unity within our nation; to be able to enlist in the battles now being waged by law-abiding organizations and individuals to correct these wrongs, should be the source of glorious anticipation that will bring satisfaction that your learning was not without understanding."

(Continued from page 15)

held commencement exercises in Sisters Chapel, at which 65 young women were graduated. President Albert W. Dent of Dillard University, who gave the commencement address, told the class: "If you believe in living the higher life of the mind, in the importance of interpreting and hastening efforts to achieve an integrated society, and in the importance of laboring incessantly for a peaceful world; if you and your competitors will work cooperatively for these, you can discharge these obligations to society with the certain knowledge that it is your responsibility as a privileged individual living in a democracy."

Monday afternoon, in the Library Quadrangle, Judge Homer Sylvester Brown of the Allegheny County Court of Pennsylvania, cautioned the 96 graduates of Atlanta University's graduate and professional schools to beware of the results of living in a machine age. "As our living grows easier and we are released from the necessity of being forced to exert our mental faculties in order to meet physical needs and to overcome obstacles that test our mental powers, there is a great tendency to become mentally lazy," he stated. While not advocating a return to the days of drudgery, Judge Brown, nevertheless, is convinced that "If we do not find some equivalent for utilizing our mental and physical potentialities, we may become human robots without a desire to challenge those matters that tend to destroy our moral and spiritual existence." The speaker made the observation that during the years of man's greatest success in providing a more comfortable living, there has not been parallel advancement in mutual understanding or acceptance of the dignity of mankind. He listed fears of the world being destroyed, in the progress of science, of people and of foreign places, as having their effect on our living. "No way of life," he pointed out, "is worth saving unless it is predicated on the belief that every individual has the right to be respected as a person, and has a right under the law to live without being exploited or discriminated against."

The graduating class was told that it has an obligation to assist in making this country a place where the equality of man is recognized without limitations imposed by artificial barriers that have no foundation in truth, reason or morality. In a final word to those who were finishing, the speaker advised that in addition to home responsibility, they should work for the support of the great forces at work to achieve universal respect for the dignity of mankind throughout the world.

On Tuesday, June 3, Dr. Kirtley F. Mather, professor of geology at Harvard University, delivered the last of the commencement addresses to the 85 members of the graduating classes at Morehouse College. His message was concerned with the responsibility of the scholar.

THE ATLANTA UNIVERSITY
GRADUATES

President Rufus E. Clement awarded graduate degrees to the following:

In the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, the degree of master of arts in political science was awarded to Leroy R. Johnson of Atlanta, Georgia; and in sociology the master of arts degree was awarded to Thomas O. McJunkins of Alcorn, Mississippi; and to Edith L. Scriven of Charlotte, North Carolina. Three who received the degree of master of science were biology graduates, Harvey L. Cole of New Orleans, La.; William B. LeFlore of Mobile, Ala.; and Perry E. Weston of Marshall, Texas. Chemistry graduate, Jefferson C. Nash of Atlanta, also received the degree of master of science.

Forty-eight received the degree of master of social work: Dorothy E.

Adams, Waycross, Ga.; Vashti Adger, Youngstown, Ohio; Eulalia A. Anderson, Detroit, Michigan; Rebecca J. Anthony, Baltimore, Md.; Wuanetta C. Banks, Cleveland, Ohio; Dorothy E. Bell, Atlanta, Ga.; Robert Blackshear, Atlanta, Ga.; Amyle J. Boykin, Syracuse, New York; Charlie L. Brittain, Dallas, Texas; Richard R. Brown, Wilmington, N. C.; Julia P. Burgess, Milwaukee, Wis.; Palmyra J. Cameron, Chicago, Ill.; John E. Carter, York, Pa.; Matilda C. A. Chavis, Jersey City, N. J.; Inola H. Childress, Little Rock, Ark.; Gwendolyn M. Combre, Lake Charles, La.; Frances G. Cook, Tyler, Texas; James L. Cox, Jr., Philadelphia, Pa.; Mary A. Dowery, Shelbyville, Ky.; Carole M. Fickling, Washington, D.C.; James L. Ford, Asheville, N. C.; Lonnie J. Fuller, Atlanta, Ga.; Reginald W. Gary, Dayton, Ohio; Jessie M. Glanton, Atlanta, Ga.; Victoria C. Greene, New Orleans, La.; Regina L. Hatcher, Richmond, Va.; Hugh R. Hill, Atlanta, Ga.; David S. Johnson, Jr., Chicago, Ill.; Edythe M. King, Durham, N. C.; Louise B. King, Franklinton, N. C.; Mary L. Kane, Fayetteville, N. C.; Ellis J. May, Jr., Rockford, Ill.; Albert F. Mitchell, Philadelphia, Pa.; Walter C. Pinkston, Miami, Fla.; Albert D. Porter, Philadelphia, Pa.; Emma J. Pratt, Cleveland, Ohio; Mildred L. Reese, New Orleans, La.; Charles R. Roberts, Jacksonville, Fla.; Dorothy V. Sampson, Chicago, Ill.; Francis C. Schanck, Crew, Va.; Constance Y. Smith, Detroit, Michigan; Ophelia W. Smith, Greenville, S. C.; Joseph P. Sutton, Atlanta, Ga.; Patricia E. Thompson, Evansville, Ind.; Wilhelmina Thompson, Little Rock, Ark.; Evelyn Tubbs, Birmingham, Ala.; Reginald S. Tynes, Philadelphia, Pa.; and Edward C. Webb, Norfolk, Virginia.

From the School of Library Service, seven received the degree of master of science in library service: Helen M. Cochran, Atlanta, Ga.; Willie M. Edwards, Baton Rouge, La.;

Louis E. Gibson, Calvert, Texas; Mildred C. Hannon, St. Croix, Virgin Islands; Edna C. Lockhart, Atlanta, Ga.; Erma D. McLemore, Institute, West Va.; and Evelyn S. Quivers of McDonough, Georgia.

From the Graduate School of Education, eleven received the degree of master of arts and twenty-three the degree of master of education. Those receiving master of arts degrees were Virginia S. Bush, Thomaston, Ga.; Alfred W. Ferguson, Ridgeway, Va.; Marvin L. Head, Atlanta, Ga.; Evelyn M. Hilliard, Tarboro, N. C.; Eugene T. Holmes, Athens, Ga.; Myron H. Johnson, Atlanta, Ga.; Corinne M. Neal, Bainbridge, Ga.; Pauline L. Shields, Atlanta, Ga.; Daughtry L. Thomas, Baxley, Ga.; Florida M. Woods, Birmingham, Ala.; and Thelma W. Yancey of Minden, Louisiana.

Those receiving the degree of master of education were Roline Bass, Madison, Ga.; Olivia H. Baldwin, Jacksonville, Fla.; U. L. Benjamin, Alexandria, La.; Desse D. Boston, Swainsboro, Ga.; Allen L. Coney, McComb, Miss.; Nathaniel B. Cooke, Arkadelphia, Ark.; Elizabeth H. Cooperwood, Aberdeen, Miss.; Eva Cox, Little Rock, Ark.; Melvin B. Davie, Atlanta, Ga.; Daniel L. DeLoatch, Ty Ty, Georgia; Charles M. Fuller, Fort Valley, Ga.; Lucy W. Hodges, Henderson, S. C.; Lillie P. Howard, Carrollton, Ala.; Ruth A. Jackson, El Dorado, Ark.; Laurann M. Johnson, Atlanta, Ga.; James E. King, Columbia, S. C.; Elvin L. Knowles, Sparta, Ga.; Frank S. McClarin, Atlanta, Ga.; Ezra P. Roberts, Barnesville, Ga.; Wesley M. Thomas, Columbus, Ga.; James E. West, Gainesville, Ga.; Leonard E. Williams, Roanoke, Va.; and Myra S. King of Jacksonville, Florida.

"I Charge You"

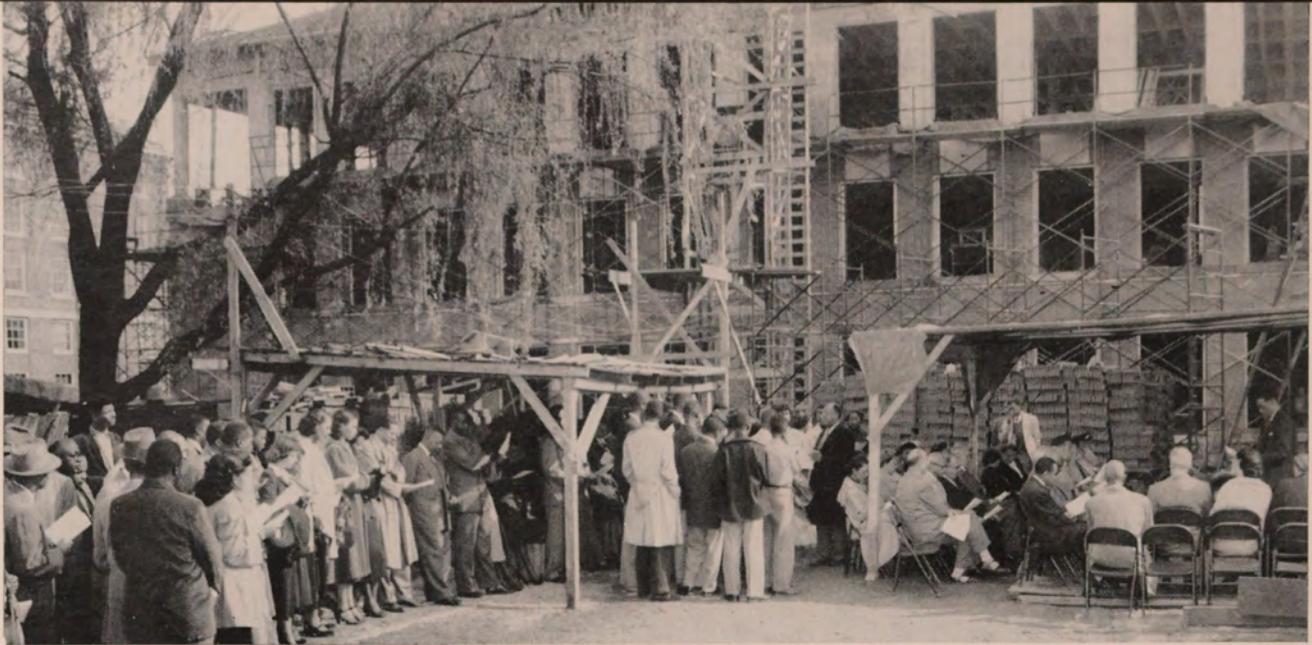

PRESIDENT CLEMENT

You are now entering into a world which may not welcome you in the manner in which you have anticipated. Many of the days ahead of you may appear to be as dreary and may bring to you labors which are every bit as difficult, if not more so, than any which you have previously experienced. Let me warn you of these things, and let me encourage you that you will not be disappointed nor afraid.

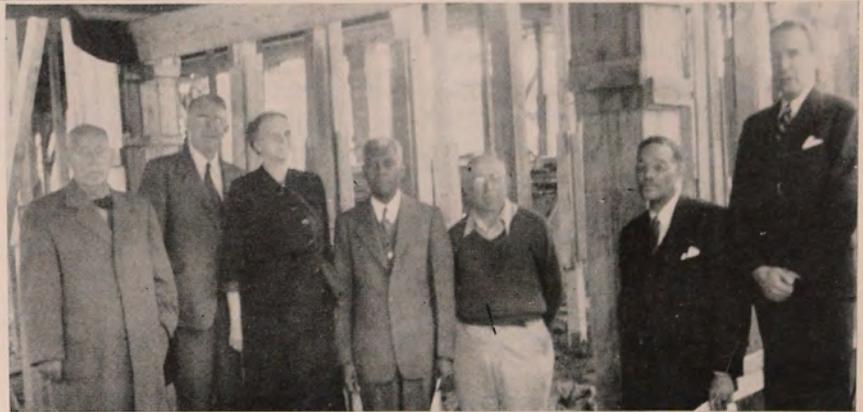

I charge you now, as loyal graduates of Atlanta University, whose larger education should merely be beginning on this day to forget all your dreams of glory and of success. Rather would I have you dream of the opportunities which may be yours to serve. Rather would I have you seek to have men speak well of you for what you do for them. Forget yourselves! Forget this University, if you must! But never forget that all which we have attempted to do for you here has been done simply in the hope that you will never forget the obligations which your education imposes upon you to be servants of your fellowmen.

I can wish for you nothing better than that you may continue to have widening fields of service. And I invoke upon you God's watchfulness and never-failing strength."

The Dean Sage Hall Corner Stone Is Laid

A small but interested group of trustees, alumni, faculty, students and friends of Atlanta University witnessed the laying of the corner stone of Dean Sage Hall on April 4. With the weather clearing just long enough for the out-of-doors exercises to proceed according to plan, the gathering heard Board Chairman Lawrence J. MacGregor refer to the late Mr. Sage as a man of vision and faith who believed that men could work together. Others participating were President Florence M. Read of Spelman College (secretary and treasurer of Atlanta University) who read a resolution concerning Mr. Sage that was adopted by the University Board of Trustees shortly after his death on July 1, 1943; President Benjamin E. Mays of Morehouse who offered the Prayer; and President Harry V. Richardson of Gammon Theological Seminary who pronounced the Benediction. President Rufus E. Clement presided.

(Left to right): Trevor Arnett, honorary chairman of the Board of Trustees, Atlanta University; H. J. Toombs, architect; President Florence M. Read of Spelman College; President Benjamin E. Mays, Morehouse College; W. A. Ottinger, superintendent of construction; President Rufus E. Clement, Atlanta University; and Lawrence J. MacGregor, chairman, Board of Trustees, Atlanta University.

Included in the contents of the steel box that went under the corner stone were a copy of the University Charter, the President's Report for 1952, two copies of the Atlanta University Bulletin, various programs of activities on the campuses of the Atlanta University System, U. S. coins and a copy of the April 4 Atlanta Constitution.

Among those who participated in the ceremony of sealing the corner stone into place were Lawrence J. MacGregor, mentioned earlier; Architect H. J. Toombs of Atlanta;

W. A. Ottinger, superintendent of the construction job; President Clement; President Read; President Mays; President Richardson; Trevor Arnett, honorary chairman of the Board of Trustees; Dr. W. R. Banks, principal emeritus of Prairie View State College and a graduate of Atlanta University in 1909; Clarence A. Bacote, professor of history at Atlanta University (the first faculty appointee to the reorganized graduate school); Elizabeth Lee, School of Library Service; and Walter T. Lumpkin, School of Education.

NEW DIRECTORSHIP TO BEGIN AT
SEPTEMBER OPENING

DR. SAMUEL Z. WESTERFIELD

At the opening of the fall semester in September, 1952, Dr. Samuel Z. Westerfield, associate professor of economics in the Graduate School of Business Administration, will take over the post of director of the school, succeeding Dr. Lorimer D. Milton, who has served as acting director since the school was established in 1946.

The new director has an outstanding record. He earned the A.B. degree at Howard University in 1939 and the Ph.D. degree in economics at Harvard University in 1951. Holder of fellowships from the Rosenwald Foundation and the Social Science Research Council, he has held posts as instructor in economics at Howard University, assistant professor of economics at West Virginia State College and associate economist with the Bureau of Labor Statistics. During the summer of 1952, he is with the Tennessee Valley Authority on a project entitled "The Impact of Defense Mobilization on the TVA Region."

Dr. Westerfield joined the faculty of Atlanta University in 1950.

ATTORNEY
HUGHES SPALDING IS ELECTED TO BOARD OF TRUSTEES

At the annual spring meeting of the Board of Trustees on April 4, Attorney Hughes Spalding of Atlanta was elected to membership.

The new trustee is a member of the firm of Spalding, Sibley, Troutman and Kelley. In his wide activities he has been chairman of the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia and chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Fulton-DeKalb Hospital Authority. He holds membership on the Board of Directors of the Coca-Cola Company, the Trust Company of Georgia, the Atlantic Company, the Habersham Mills, Rich's Incorporated and Hodgson's Incorporated. He is also secretary and a trustee of the University of Georgia Foundation.

The University trustee is a graduate of Georgetown University and the University of Georgia. He has been a member of the Georgia Bar for the past 41 years.

The Atlanta University Board of 21 members is composed of distinguished men and women of both races, some of whom reside in the North, while others are Southerners. There is always a strong central core of Atlantans on the Board. Among the local citizens holding membership at the present time are Elbert P. Tuttle and Clayton R. Yates.

Retiring from the Board at the meeting was Dr. Will W. Alexander of Chapel Hill, North Carolina, who had served as a trustee of Atlanta University since this institution was reorganized as a graduate school. He also had served as a trustee of the University for several years prior to the time of the affiliation of Atlanta University, Morehouse College and Spelman College on April 1, 1929.

MANY ART LOVERS
ATTEND ELEVENTH
ANNUAL EXHIBITION

(Continued from page 9)

Washingtonian, who won the second award of $75 for his abstract, "The Uninvited."

Sculpture awards went to the following: Guy L. Miller, Jr. of Los Angeles, California, won the $250 award for his portrait bust in redwood, "Congo Beauty"; and William E. Artis of East Elmhurst, New York, captured another Atlanta University award, when he received the $100 prize for his head in stone titled, "The Pugilist."

In the graphic arts, John Wilson, Guggenheim fellowship winner of Boston, Massachusetts, was named winner of the $25 award for his lithograph, "LaCalle"; and Elizabeth Catlett of Washington, D. C., won the second award of $15 for her linoleum block print, "Head of Negro Woman." The third award of $10 went to Patricia Walker of Worcester, Massachusetts, a graduate of Fisk University, for her pencil drawing, "Man."

Those to receive honorable mention were as follows: In the portrait category, Bernard Goss of Chicago, Illinois, for his oil painting, "Nude"; in the landscapes, Joseph Stewart of Northport, Long Island, New York, for his huge canvas, "Sunday Convention"; and in the oils, any subject, Jean G. Flowers of Peoria, Illinois, for his "Felt Trio." Fred Jones, who won the highest cash award, came in for more acclaim by winning honorable mention in the water colors for his lynching scene, "Southern Memorial." Jack Jordan of Fort Campbell, Kentucky, won honorable mention in the sculptures for his "The Embrace Unwanted"; and Charles W. Stallings of Baltimore, Maryland, won mention for his silk screen print, "Salve Caput Cruentatum."

QUOTE AND UNQUOTE

John Scott, foreign correspondent for Time Magazine, at a University Convocation, January 17

. . . American race prejudice is one of the effective weapons of the Soviet Union in building up ill will and distrust of Americans throughout the world. To combat this the United States should treat the Koreans and other Europeans as equal human beings and do everything possible to align the good will and support of nations that will cooperate with us. . . . To have any degree of success in preventing World War III and to take the initiative in driving the Soviet back, the United States should have essential military power and a long-range political and moral campaign. It is also necessary to lend or sell products produced in our technological and industrial areas to those countries that are without them.

James P. Brawley, president of Clark College, at the Tenth Annual University Center Convocation, January 27

. . . As grave as the war situation may be and as great as is the desire for an armistice, nevertheless the fundamental necessity of the present day is for better worldwide human relations of a kind we have never before had. . . . There is need for a brotherhood of the peoples of the world. . . . All races have a common origin and the fact of unity of the human race is provided in its anatomy. . . . The present world disorder is an outgrowth of isolationism, imperialism, economic exploitation, conflicting political ideologies, colonialism, international political disorganization and narrow sectarian doctrine as well as the progress of science without comparable moral and spiritual growth. If mankind is to survive and build a world where there will be safety, finer human relationships, mutual good will, profound human interest, cultural appreciation, respect for all human personality and insights into the finer values that inspire lofty ideals, then we need to find our unity with man, our unity with God and our unity with the purposes of God in the evolutionary process of life.

William Vogt, director of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, at a University Convocation, March 12

. . . Desperation, unhappiness, broken homes and unharmonious marriages are the result of the rising population in countries all over the world and are a threat to the democratic way of life. . . . Unless something is done to control population, all other measures for improving agriculture and education will be of no avail. . . . People should take the lead in the issue to bring about the reforms that are needed. . . . With population growing by 60,000 more people every day, we are in the midst of a real population explosion. . . . We must find more land, water and building materials if we are to take care of the increasing population that is coming all over the world.

Everett Somerville Brown, professor of political science, University of Michigan, at a University Forum, March 12

. . . Our leadership among the free nations of the world will depend in a large measure on the example we set and that example must be expressed in deeds as well as words. . . . There is little danger that American people will give up their mode of life and government for communism. . . . The real danger is that communism will continue to spread over wide areas of the globe where the masses of the people have been hungry and without political liberties and economic prosperity. In our efforts to combat the spread of communism in the United States, we must avoid copying some of the very practices we condemn. . . . There is a growing awareness on the part of officials and people that an unhealthy moral condition exists in public and private affairs. . . . A hopeful sign in this regard is the proposal to establish a commission on ethics in government with the function of investigating and reporting on moral standards of official conduct of government officers and employees. One of our greatest problems is reducing the gap between the material advance in science and technology and the slower progress in the political, social and moral fields.

Hans Joakim Schultz, representative of the Danish Society at a University Convocation, March 26

. . . Educational opportunities for the whole population are a right, not a privilege, in Denmark, and social protection against illness is also the right of all individuals of that nation. . . . People of Denmark believe that there is a higher standard of living in their country, even without television, than exists in the United States. . . . Communism is legalized in Denmark because this country believes that a stronghold against it is not guns or other military weapons but the minds of the people who must have a belief in their way of life.

Emil Lengyel, associate professor of education,
New York University, at a University
Forum, April 23

. . . Instead of talking of billions for armaments, the United States could go a long way towards strengthening its foreign policy by giving liberal help and enlightenment to those countries in which we have an interest. . . . Ninety per cent of the people in the world living in backward areas would be receptive to the Kremlin's ideas of land reform and industrialization as long as their living conditions are unchanged. . . . American foreign policy can be helped by placing able people in diplomatic posts who can do an efficient job of representing this country.

S. I. Hayakawa, editor of Etc., at an Atlanta University Forum, May 21

. . . If general semantics has a function to perform, it is to bring about an awareness of the flimsy character of language and how words can have different meanings to different peoples. . . . Human interaction is helped when people are able to find self expression. . . . Physical force in our culture is regarded as a standard means of communication. And yet, communication when threatened, is prevented, distorted and oftentimes deadlocked. . . . In some areas of the United Nations, considerable thought is being given to semantics and the ways in which this new science might be applied to the solving of problems in international relations.

Samuel W. Williams, professor of philosophy, Morehouse College, at an Assembly at the Atlanta University Summer School, June 17

America is seriously handicapped in the present world struggle because this country has the problem of economics and planning which it seems unable to handle. . . . The great tragedy of our times is the fact that the western world for more than three centuries has held up to mankind the promise of a society of decent relations with social justice and freedom as its foundation, but this promise has not been translated into reality. . . . We must come to understand that despite the fact that the Russians have a different way of life, they do tell the world that they stand by the proposition that scientific and technological knowledge are ours only to be employed for the good of mankind, and that human drudgery and suffering must and ought to be abolished.

Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University, at an Assembly at the Atlanta University
Summer School, June 24

Although America has strong economic and military power, her position in world leadership would be sacrificed if this country fails to possess strong moral leadership. . . . Around the world we must begin to accept a common humanity and if we fail to do so, all of our ideas of making the world safe will be scoffed at by peoples of Asia, Africa and Western Europe who already have doubts as to the sincerity of this country. . . . A possible third world war could be averted if there would be a realization that other languages and customs are as good as ours, that differences among races and peoples must be recognized and accepted, and that mutual respect and good will must be developed. . . . We are in for a long struggle of ideologies and for a long period of trusting in God and keeping our powder dry. . . . We must realize that although international relations are in a bad way, it is not too late to arrange for some type of understanding.

SCHOLARLY INTEREST GROWING IN NEW HISTORICAL MOVEMENT

(Continued from page 11)

Dynasties, ancient Mesopotamia and Iran, India since the eleventh century, Byzantium and Russia. It is the hope of the participants in the third conference that a number of papers they are now completing will be published in the very near future.

The Uniformities session at the program of the American Historical Association in December (giving the Association's recognition) was an important stage in the movement. Professor Coulborn was then in the chair, and there were papers by Professor Kroeber and Professor Karl W. Deutsch of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Professor Kroeber's title was "The Delimitation of Civilizations"; Professor Deutsch's, "Uniformities and Differences in the Growth of Nations." Professor Marshall Knappen of the University of Michigan and John H. Mundy of Columbia University led the discussion. Among those present were Professors Melvin D. Kennedy and Thomas J. Curry of Morehouse College, members of the faculties of several other Georgia institutions, and Professor Paul Leser of Hartford Seminary, who has been a visiting lecturer at Atlanta University.

It appears possible that "Uniformities in History" will become one of the important scholarly movements of our time. Atlanta University is fortunate to have been instrumental in its beginning.

PEOPLE AND EVENTS... THROUGH

At the Reception given by the Atlanta University Women's Club for delegates to the meeting of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for Negroes, Dr. S. Shridevi, president of the College for Women in Nagpur, India, greets (left to right) President Benjamin E. Mays of Morehouse; President Mordecai W. Johnson of Howard University; and President Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta.

At the Joint Convocation of the Colleges of the Atlanta University Center, the following were included (left to right): Rufus E. Clement (Atlanta University Center); James P. Braxton Addison (Gammon Theological Seminary); James P. Braxton Addison (Gammon Theological Seminary); and John H. Lewis (Morris Brown College).

The hospitality of the Atlanta University campus was extended to delegates attending the Sixth Annual Conference of Out-of-Town Field Work Supervisors on March 12 by President Rufus E. Clement. Principal speaker at the Conference was Dr. Ernest V. Hollis of the U. S. Office of Education (seated next to President Clement). Others in photograph are Mrs. Audrey Farris, who presided, and Dr. Forrester B. Washington.

The "Good-Old-College-Days" in Atlanta served as the theme for the program held at the Trevor Arnett Library were (left to right): Morris Brown; James R. Porter, Atlanta University Center; Miss Annie Hall, Clark College; Miss Johnnie L. Fowler of Morris Brown College.

A special assembly in March at the Laboratory School, sponsored by the pupils of the Sixth Grade, was attended by officials of Radio Station WABE. Climaxing the study of a unit on "China," the program featured a panel discussion by several of the Sixth Graders on "The Chinese Republic" and a talk on that country by Miss Jane D. Jones of Spelman College.

... THROUGH THE BULLETIN CAMERA

...ta University Center (held January 27), the platform party in-Atlanta University Center (held January 27), the platform party in-Atlanta University Center (held January 27), the platform party in-Atlanta University Center (held January 27), the platform party in-

...the theme for the 1952 Negro History Week celebration by program participants who relived their college days at a special left to right): Raymond H. Carter, Morehouse; W. Boyd Law-
 left to right): Raymond H. Carter, Morehouse; W. Boyd Law-
 left to right): Raymond H. Carter, Morehouse; W. Boyd Law-

TIME Magazine Correspondent, John Scott, discusses conditions in Europe at University Seminar with Atlanta's N. P. Tillman (left) and Atlanta's L. D.
 University Seminar with Atlanta's N. P. Tillman (left) and Atlanta's L. D.

When the famed Hungry Club honored Atlanta's Mozell C. Hill for his years of service as moderator, the organization selected Mrs. Lucille M. Scott to make the presentation to the guest of honor. It turned out to be a portable radio, much to his surprise and pleasure.

Among alumni of A. U. attending the annual meeting of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for Negroes in December were C. L. Gideons, Atlanta; R. V. Moore, Daytona Beach, Fla.; G. Porter, Tallahassee, Fla.; J. A. Colston, Knoxville, Tenn.; E. C. Land, Daytona Beach, Fla.; S. D. Williams, Elizabeth City, N. C.; W. E. Blanchett, Fort Valley, Ga.; J. B. Cade, Baton Rouge, La.; H. Stinson, Keysville, Ga.; E. Lash, Sandersville, Ga.; S. E. Hubbard, Forsyth, Ga.; G. W. Parker, Napoleonville, La.; F. A. Dodson, Newnan, Ga.; C. A. Blake, Charlotte, N. C.; C. V. Troup, Ft. Valley, Ga.; C. DuVaul, Columbus, Ga.; J. A. Boyer, Raleigh, N. C.; O. C. Hall, Salisbury, N. C.; J. C. Reese, Waycross, Ga.; J. S. Wilkerson, Brunswick, Ga.; N. F. Williams, Swainsboro, Ga.; and C. N. Cornell of Atlanta.

Among alumni of A. U. attending the annual meeting of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for Negroes in December were C. L. Gideons, Atlanta; R. V. Moore, Daytona Beach, Fla.; G. Porter, Tallahassee, Fla.; J. A. Colston, Knoxville, Tenn.; E. C. Land, Daytona Beach, Fla.; S. D. Williams, Elizabeth City, N. C.; W. E. Blanchett, Fort Valley, Ga.; J. B. Cade, Baton Rouge, La.; H. Stinson, Keysville, Ga.; E. Lash, Sandersville, Ga.; S. E. Hubbard, Forsyth, Ga.; G. W. Parker, Napoleonville, La.; F. A. Dodson, Newnan, Ga.; C. A. Blake, Charlotte, N. C.; C. V. Troup, Ft. Valley, Ga.; C. DuVaul, Columbus, Ga.; J. A. Boyer, Raleigh, N. C.; O. C. Hall, Salisbury, N. C.; J. C. Reese, Waycross, Ga.; J. S. Wilkerson, Brunswick, Ga.; N. F. Williams, Swainsboro, Ga.; and C. N. Cornell of Atlanta.

INTELLECTUALS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF SOCIOLOGY

(Left to right): Dr. Hylan G. Lewis; Dr. John Edlefsen, Guest Professor from the State College of Washington; Dr. Mozell C. Hill (Chairman); and Dr. Albert N. Whiting.

Atlanta's Sociologists— Traditional and Progressive

Atlanta's sociologists are both traditional and progressive. They are traditional in that the majority of those who have been graduated with master's degrees have gone into the field of teaching. Yet, some might well be termed progressive for they have broken away from tradition and have ventured forth into public relations, guidance and personnel, social work, government service, library service, law, dentistry and music.

According to information received in a recent BULLETIN survey, sociology majors from Atlanta University are filling teaching positions in 20 states and abroad, and the majority of those in educational work are on college and university faculties.

Since 1929, the year of the reorganization of Atlanta University into a graduate school, there have been 97* to earn the master's degree in sociology. This BULLETIN report on more than 73 per cent of that number is presumed to be a fair indication of what has been accomplished by the group as a whole.

*This figure does not include the three graduates who finished in June, 1952.

In addition to filling high ranking positions, these sociology graduates have been busy seeking higher degrees, writing serious and scholarly articles for various types of journals and pursuing individual and group researches.

Four of those who have been graduated have earned doctorates. Ellen Irene Diggs, '33, received the doctora en la facultad de filosofia y letras de la Universidad de la Habana in 1945, and thus became the first American Negro woman to receive this distinction. Hugh H. Smythe, '37, earned the Ph.D. degree in 1945 at Northwestern University; and Leonard H. Robinson, also in the Class of '37, earned the doctorate at Ohio State University in 1950. Charles R. Lawrence, '38, was the recipient of the Ph.D. degree in 1952 from Columbia University.

Others have studied at the University of Wisconsin, Wayne University, the University of Chicago, New York University, the University of Southern California, the University of Oregon, Western Reserve University, Fisk, Harvard, the University of Pittsburgh, the University of Iowa, the University of Syracuse, the McKinley School of Law and abroad at the University of Frankfurt. Some idea of the type of graduate work that Atlanta's sociologists are doing is seen in a statement made by Gordon Allport of Harvard University. When Vernon F. White, '48, was studying in the department of social relations at Harvard, Professor Allport was so impressed by Mr. White's ability that he made known the fact that Harvard would welcome on its faculty with the initial rank of instructor, a suitably prepared alumnus of Atlanta University holding a Ph.D. degree in urban sociology.*

Eighteen of those who responded to the questionnaire revealed that they are members of the American Sociology Society; a similar number indicated that they are members of Alpha Kappa Delta, honorary sociological society; 2 listed membership in the American Academy of Political and Social Science; 2 in Alpha Pi Zeta Social Science Society; 1 membership in the Southern Sociological Society and 3 membership in the National Council on Family Relations. Two are members of the American Anthropological Association; 2 have membership in the Eastern Sociological Society; 1 in the Association of Social Science; 1 in the Social Science Association of Virginia; 3 in the National Council for the Social Studies, and 1 in the Association of Social Science Teachers in Negro Schools.

In engaging in research and the publication of serious studies, the record is indeed significant. James H. Barnhill, '44, has studied public health procedures and practices in health departments of North Carolina; William H. Bowens, '50, is doing special research in a Georgia Cooperative Community Center; Augustus Campbell, '51, has collected the case histories of students in the department of sociology; Dr. Diggs has done special research on the Negro in the Caribbean as well as on the Negro in Colonial Spanish Americas. Rogers P. Fair, '50, is nearing the completion of a book on an entirely new approach to the problem of race relations in America; and Arthur L.

Johnson, '49, has given time to a study of a Negro community in Statesboro, Georgia. Harvey E. Johnson, '39, has been engaged in a study of living conditions in Talladega County (Alabama); Dr. Lawrence worked with the Fisk Institute of Social Science on a survey in race relations; and Lillian Stokes Mitchell, '46, assisted on a research project on restrictive covenants in Chicago. In Washington, D. C., Anderson Phillips, '48, has worked on a project in housing redevelopment. Bernard F. Robinson, '40, has done research in race relations, vocational guidance and group psychotherapy; and Dr. Leonard Robinson has conducted studies in intra-minority relations. William H. Shell, '35, has assisted in studies in Atlanta housing, Atlanta's Negro population and civic education among the Negroes of Georgia.

Only a portion of the extensive research carried on by Dr. Smythe can be mentioned. For the Committee on Medical Economics of Washington, D. C., he conducted a study of the health care of Negroes; for W. B. Graham and Associates of New York
(Continued on page 26)

A notable occasion for the department of sociology occurred on February 23, 1938, at the 70th anniversary celebration of W. E. B. DuBois. On that date, the eminent sociologist and educator was principal speaker at an all-university convocation and guest of honor at a formal banquet held at the University Residence Halls. Some of the world-famous personalities who were present on that occasion are seen in the accompanying photograph: (Seated — left to right) Mrs. Rufus E. Clement, Dr. DuBois, Mrs. DuBois and Joel E. Spingarn. (Standing — left to right) Charles S. Johnson, Mrs. Yolande DuBois Williams, James Weldon Johnson, Ira DeA. Reid, Rufus E. Clement and William Stanley Braithwaite.

*Statement was made to the Reverend Isaiah J. Domas, a former chairman of the Department of Social Research, Atlanta University School of Social Work.

City, he made a study of sociological techniques to advertising and for the Department of Special Research of the N. A. A. C. P., he worked on their program of southern regional education. For the Negro Land Grant Colleges, Dr. Smythe undertook a study of cooperative social studies of Negro communities in southern states; and for the American Council on Education, he assisted in the study which was published under the title, "Growing Up in the Black Belt." In the past year since he has been living in the Orient, Dr. Smythe has prepared studies on Japan's major minority group, human traffic in Japan, the sociology of occupation, the Japanese family system, Japanese mountain village life, social ostracism in Japan and racialism and race consciousness among the Japanese.

James A. Tillman, Jr., '48, has done some research on the social system of a small southern town under the sponsorship of the Carnegie Foundation; Bonita H. Valien, '36, has participated in studies on personality and culture; James T. Wardlaw, '34, has directed studies for the Minneapolis Urban League relating to the housing of Negroes; and Charles V. Willie, '49, has in process an ecological study of the growth and development of social areas in Syracuse, New York. Arnold Wright, '34, has engaged in surveys that concern consumers cooperatives in Great Britain and also administrative practices in juvenile courts.

During the period that he was executive secretary of the Urban League in Tampa, Florida, James Stiles Hadley, '45, was one of the authors of Jim Crow, which was published in 1951 by the Ann Arbor (Michigan) Publishers. The book was considered significant due to the fact that the authors, one white* and the other a Negro, in the deep South

*Co-author is Jesse Walter Dees, University of Tampa.

(Continued on page 27)

Visitors to the department of sociology invariably are attracted to the stained glass window, which is a memorial to John Howard Hincks (first professor of sociology at Atlanta University) who was appointed to the faculty by President Horace W. Bumstead in 1889. For many years this window was a focal point of interest in Stone Hall on the original campus of Atlanta University.

The appointment of the Reverend Mr. Hincks came about as the result of President Bumstead's desire for an accurate and unprejudiced study of those elements in social life which affect human welfare, and in particular as far as Atlanta University was concerned, the welfare of the Negro people. To President Bumstead must also go credit for establishing the annual conference for the study of problems connected with the Negro, especially in the life of the cities.

But the Reverend Mr. Hincks (serving also in the capacity of dean) was under too heavy a strain of administrative duties to enter effectively into social studies. Three years after his death, which occurred in 1894, an appointment went to Dr. W. E. B. DuBois as professor of sociology and as director of the conference and its associated studies. Out of this arrangement came a series of printed reports (still in demand) which commanded wide attention for their significance and the light which they shed upon various phases of the life of the Negro. Dr. DuBois remained in this post until 1913 when he resigned to become editor of the CRISIS and director of publications for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

When he returned to Atlanta University in 1933, at the request of the late Dr. John Hope, to assume new duties as chairman of the graduate department of sociology, one of the first things he did was to arrange to have the stained glass window removed to its present site.

In this photograph, Dr. Hylan G. Lewis, a member of the department, (left) brings Dr. John Edlefsen (right), guest professor of sociology at Atlanta University, up to date on the department's historical background.

were able to blend in harmony (with but a few exceptions) on such a social problem as segregation and discrimination.

Both Dr. Diggs and Dr. Smythe have been prolific writers. The former has had articles published in the Negro Digest, Phylon, the Associated Negro Press, the Magazine of Art, the Crisis, the Education Sun (New York University publication), the American Anthropologist and the Journal of Negro History. Writings by Dr. Smythe have appeared in School and Society, the American Sociological Review, the Jewish Forum, the Journal of Educational Research, the American Mercury, the New York Times, the Nation, the New Republic, the Crisis, and the Annals, to mention just a few. Wilmoth Carter, '42, has had several articles published in Phylon; Carrie Gartrell Chivers, '46, has prepared numerous articles on marriage and the family; the Reverend Mr. Fair has written for the Central Christian Advocate; Dr. Lawrence's writings have appeared in Prophetic Religion and the Negro Yearbook and Bernard F. Robinson, on different occasions, has had articles to appear in Phylon. William H. Shell's articles have appeared in the Bible Society Record, the Bulletin of the NYA of Georgia and the Journal of the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers. James A. Tillman's writings have appeared in the Journal of Social Science, the Bulletin of the American Association of Universities, the Mid-West Journal and the Quarterly Review of Higher Education. Mrs. Valien worked on the revision of E. Franklin Frazier's Negro Family in the United States.

Specifically, the aim of the department of sociology is (1) to provide a background for understanding the nature and development of social institutions and their effect on personality; (2) to prepare for research in the field; (3) to provide training for academic positions; and (4) to provide training for research positions.

DR. SMYTHE

Since the very beginning of the graduate program in 1930-1931, the department has moved with purpose and direction, guided first by Walter R. Chivers, chairman of the department of sociology at Morehouse College, who has served through the years as an exchange professor at Atlanta University; then by the studious and scholarly W. E. B. DuBois, who served as chairman from 1933-1944. In 1934, the brilliant sociologist, Ira. DeA. Reid, resigned from a post as director of research for the New York Urban League to accept a position as professor of sociology at Atlanta University. Ten years later, upon the retirement of Dr. DuBois, Dr. Reid took over the chairmanship of the department. He was succeeded in 1948 by another able scholar in the field, Mozell C. Hill, who possessed an outstanding career in teaching and research.

Dr. Hill came to Atlanta University equipped with earned degrees from the University of Kansas and the University of Chicago. He had been a social investigator on the Governor's Committee on Unemployment Relief in Indianapolis, Indiana; a labor relations adviser for the U. S. Resettlement Administration; a professor of sociology at Langston University as well as director of research at this institution, and editor of the Southwestern Journal. Since joining the Atlanta faculty, he has served as research specialist with the U. S. Department of Public Health, editor of Phylon, the Atlanta University Review of race and culture, and as chairman of the division of social sciences. He holds membership in Alpha Kappa Delta, the American Sociological Society, the Society for Sociological Research, the Board of the Community Planning Council, and on the executive committee of the Southern Sociological Society. For several years, he has served as moderator of the famed Hungry Club, a project of the Butler Street Y. M. C. A. Dr. Hill will be on sabbatical leave of absence during the academic year, 1952-1953, during which time he will engage in special research at Cambridge, Oxford, the London School of Economics, Edinburgh and the University of Scotland.

A colleague in the department is Hylan Garnet Lewis of Washington, D. C., who earned the A.B. degree at Virginia Union University, and the M.A. and the Ph.D. degrees at the University of Chicago. Before accepting the Atlanta appointment in 1949, he had taught on the faculties of Howard University, Talladega College and Hampton Institute. For a number of years he was in service with the federal government as junior social economist and as a research analyst, and for one year he was engaged in research at the Institute for Social Science at the University of North Carolina.

Another colleague, Albert N. Whiting, was educated at Amherst College, Columbia University, the University of Pittsburgh, Fisk University and The American University. His experience in the field of education was obtained at Bennett College and at Howard University. Author of numerous studies, Professor Whiting was a propaganda analyst with the U. S. Department of Justice in 1943. He was director of rural studies at Bennett College during 1946-1947.

(Continued on page 28)

A report on some of the graduates follows:

Alice Durham Archer, Associate in News Bureau, Central State College Public Relations Department, Wilberforce, Ohio

Leroy W. Banks, Employee, Federal Government Agency in Communications, Washington, D. C.

James H. Barnhill (D.D.) Public Health Dentist, Raleigh, North Carolina

Lincoln A. Blakeney, Student, College of Law, University of Tennessee

Fannie Irene Blanton, Field Director, Oklahoma City and County Girl Scouts

William H. M. Bowens, Assistant in Public Relations and Instructor in Business Administration, Savannah State College

Eddy Q. Brown, Instructor, Family Living Courses, Grant Schools, Ferndale, Michigan

Martha I. Brown, Instructor, Practice School, Albany State College

Augustus P. Campbell, Chairman, Department of Sociology, Livingstone College

Wilmoth A. Carter, Associate Professor of Sociology, Shaw University

Carrie Gartrell Chivers, Instructor, Department of Sociology, Morehouse College

Frederick J. Cook, Instructor in Social Studies, Burke Industrial High School, Charleston, South Carolina

Ellen Irene Diggs (Ph.D.) Professor of Sociology, Morgan State College

William P. Diggs, Professor of Social Science, Friendship Junior College, Rock Hill, South Carolina

Ida Hauser Duncan, Instructor in Social Science, High School, Reidsville, North Carolina

Nellie I. Douglas, Instructor, Douglas High School, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma

Mary Johnson Durgans, Housewife, Dayton, Ohio

Alva B. Elkins, Instructor in Social Studies, Herring High School, Decatur, Georgia

Rogers P. Fair, Minister, Trinity Methodist Church, Daytona Beach, Florida; Chairman, Department of Social Science, Bethune-Cookman College

Lula J. Gambrell, Instructor, Benedict College

Louise Torrence Gloster, Instructor of Social Science, Hampton Institute

James Stiles Hadley, Social Case Worker, Bureau of Public Assistance, Los Angeles, California

Lottie Bailey Harris, Instructor, E. A. Ware School, Atlanta, Georgia

Charles J. Hatfield, Postal Clerk, New Orleans, Louisiana

Elise Oliver Hope, Housewife, Nashville, Tennessee

William H. Howell, Graduate Student, Ohio State University

Samuel E. Hubbard, Principal, Hubbard Training School, Forsyth, Georgia

Arthur L. Johnson, Executive Secretary, Detroit Branch, N. A. A. C. P.

Harvey E. Johnson, Minister and School Principal, Atlanta, Georgia

Kathryn L. Johnson, Instructor, Jackson College

Ruby Funchess Johnston, Associate Professor of Sociology, Florida A. & M. College

Ruth Bronson Johnston, Housewife, Macon, Georgia

Franklin S. Jones, Jr., Principal, Northside Junior High School, Newnan, Georgia

Winston Q. Jones, Bandmaster, Mercer County Schools, West Virginia

Robert Scott Kennon, Personnel Officer, Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, Georgia Division, Marietta, Georgia

Charles R. Lawrence (Ph.D.) Instructor in Sociology-Anthropology, Brooklyn College

Lucile Logan, Instructor in Sociology, Lincoln University (Missouri)

William A. Long, Chairman, Department of Sociology, West Virginia State College

John W. Martin, Chairman, Department of Social Science and Professor of Sociology, Miles College

Agnes May, Supervisor, Public Schools, Macon, Georgia

McClure P. McCombs, Instructor in Sociology, Bennett College

Ruth D. A. McDowell, Instructor, Public School System, Clarksdale, Mississippi

Lillian Stokes Mitchell, Housewife, Bremerton, Washington

James D. Mizelle, Cottage Master, Boys' Training School, Cheltenham, Maryland

Callie Mae Montgomery, Instructor, Laboratory School, Atlanta University

Grace R. Nash, Senior Visitor-Interviewer, Department of Public Assistance, Philadelphia, and Assistant to the Residence Secretary, Y. W. C. A.

Eugene T. Page, Resources Consultant, Department of Public Welfare, Detroit, Michigan

Nancy O. Parker, Instructor, Dunbar High School, Little Rock, Arkansas

Anderson O. Phillips, Graduate Student, The American University

Earl H. Pierro, Assistant Professor of Social Science, Fort Valley State College

Moddie D. Roberts, Principal of High School, Athens, Georgia

Bernard F. Robinson, Director of Social Service, Skillman State Village, Skillman, New Jersey

Leonard H. Robinson (Ph.D.), Chairman, Department of Social Science, A. & T. College, Greensboro, North Carolina

Hattie R. Roston, Jeanes Supervisor, Spartanburg County, South Carolina

Marie F. Saxon, Instructor, David T. Howard High School, Atlanta, Georgia

(Continued on page 40)

SCIENTIFIC TESTING PROGRAM INITIATED AT SCHOOL OF SOCIAL WORK

To help students of social work comprehend more fully their adaptive capacity in the profession and to aid them in realizing their total learning experiences, the School of Social Work has initiated a program of scientific testing.

Dr. Robert M. Hughes, clinical psychologist on the faculty, is administering a series of tests which include the Ohio State University Psychological Examination, the Kuder Preference Record and the Bell Adjustment Inventory for personality factors. A faculty committee assisting in the program includes Miss Barbara Baskerville, department of research and thesis; Mrs. Hortense Cochrane, director of field work and Mrs. Marjorie Johnson, chairman of the group work department.

Incidental values of the testing are to increase the existing bases of student evaluation for counselling in the area of specialization and post graduate occupational placement; to aid in the appropriate field work placement of the student; and to assist in the selection of the thesis subject so that the student can contribute most to his own knowledge as well as to the literature of social work.

Evidences of psychological or of academic or personal maladjustment revealed by the tests will be used as a bases for more intensive study before any individual will be asked to leave the School. Rorschach and other personality tests are planned for those students whose objective tests scores are so abnormal as to suggest a major personal problem. This screening of ineligibles at an early stage in the training career of prospective social workers is considered important as graduates in this field are destined to work upon the most delicate commodity in society and any errors they make are much more serious than if they were working on inanimate substances.

TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS GIVEN TO ATLANTA
UNIVERSITY FOR LIBRARY
TRAINING SCHOLARSHIPS

Atlanta University has received a grant of $20,000 from the Carnegie Corporation of New York for scholarships to the School of Library Service.

The grant, covering a period of five years, will enable Atlanta University to offer fourteen scholarships in library service each year; four $500 scholarships will be given and ten $300 scholarships. They will be awarded on a basis of merit to college graduates who are desirous of earning a master's degree in the field of library service.

The Carnegie Corporation has made this grant to Atlanta University in recognition of the outstanding quality of the program of the School of Library Service and because of the acute need for trained Negro librarians throughout the United States and in foreign countries. Only a small percentage of the demands for these lucrative positions can be met from year to year.

G. Milton Smith, a grandson of Edmund Asa Ware, the first president of Atlanta University, is author of the newly-published book, More Power to Your Mind. A professor of psychology at the College of the City of New York for the past 22 years, Mr. Smith is married and the father of two children.

Dr. Harry J. Carman, dean emeritus of Columbia College and a trustee of Atlanta University, was one of six distinguished Americans to be honored at Colgate University on June 9 with an honorary degree. Dr. Carman received the degree of Doctor of Letters, honoris causa et con amore.

THE CONFERENCE FOR SCHOOL
LIBRARY ASSISTANTS

A one-day conference for school library assistants in the Atlanta area (the first of its kind ever to be held in Georgia) was sponsored on May 9 by the School of Library Service. In attendance were one hundred students and school librarians from Avondale High School, David T. Howard High School, Alpharetta High, Bruce Street High, Booker T. Washington High, College Park School, East Point High, East Point Elementary School, Fairburn Junior High, Herring Street High, Oglethorpe School, Palmetto School, Thomas Oliver School and Turner McNeal High School.

The conference was sponsored to stimulate student interest and participation in school library services, to afford friendly and profitable contacts between student assistants and school librarians in the Atlanta area, and to encourage the exploration of librarianship as a profession. A panel discussion on "The Contribution of the Student Assistant to the School Program," a tour of the University campus and an evening dinner meeting constituted the day's program.

SPOTLIGHT

25th ANNIVERSARY

Atlanta University congratulates President Florence M. Read of Spelman College upon the completion of her twenty-fifth year of service in the education of Negro women.

In the past two and one-half decades, she has awarded college degrees and diplomas to over 1,300 young women at Spelman, many of whom have gone on to graduate and professional schools.

The Read administration has effected the building of two beautiful and modern edifices and the opening of a new main campus entrance. The Health and Recreation Center, complete with swimming pool, was opened in January, 1952; and the new Abbie Aldrich Rockefeller Dormitory will be ready for the fall opening in September.

Outstanding also in the Read administration since 1927 is the attainment of "A" rating from the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the concentration on the development of a strong college of liberal arts, and the affiliation of Spelman in a university plan with Atlanta University and Morehouse College. President Read has also developed a center of fine arts which has permitted young women to further their training in painting, sculpture, music, the drama and the dance.

Since her graduation from Mount Holyoke College (where she was Phi Beta Kappa), she has been alumnae secretary at her alma mater, secretary to the president and an administrative officer of Reed College in Portland, Oregon; and an officer of the International Health Board of the Rockefeller Foundation. In World War I, she served with the medical section of the National Defence in Washington, D.C., and overseas with the Y.M.C.A. in France. She has been the recipient of the Royal Medal of Reward in Gold (awarded by Denmark in 1927), of the Litt.D. (awarded by Mount Holyoke in 1929), and of the LL.D. degree which was conferred upon her by Oberlin College in 1939.

PRESIDENT READ

The remarkable leadership that President Read has provided at Spelman was not affected by the fact that for nearly seventeen months she was the acting president of Atlanta University. She has also served this institution as secretary and as treasurer since 1920, and significant is the fact that she was one of the signers of the affiliation agreement through which Atlanta University, Morehouse College and Spelman College began work as the Atlanta University System. For more than ten years Spelman has been a member of the Atlanta University Center which embraces, in addition to the colleges mentioned, Clark College, Morris Brown College and Gammon Theological Seminary.

The alumnae of Spelman paid special tribute to President Read at the annual dinner of the National Alumnae Association on May 30. A presentation to her from this group consisted of a bond for $1,000 and a bound portfolio of testimonials from colleagues and friends throughout the country.

NEW COLLEGE PRESIDENT

The new president of Bishop College in Marshall, Texas, is Milton King Curry, who until recently was pastor of the Antioch Baptist Church of Wichita Falls, Texas. The new college head is filling a college presidency for the second time. For from 1945-1948, he was president of Butler College in Tyler, Texas.

Since his graduation from Atlanta University in 1933, President Curry has studied at Creighton University in Omaha, Nebraska, and in the Divinity School of the University of Chicago.

Mrs. Curry, wife of the President, is the former Marjorie Alexandre Stewart, Atlanta University 1934.

FELLOWSHIP WINNER

In being designated as a John Hay Fellow for 1952-1953, Mrs. Evelyn Ross Robinson of Atlanta has received one of the highly coveted fellowship awards of the year.

John Hay Fellows will share in the $600,000 earmarked by the John Hay Whitney Foundation for a three-year program announced by its new Division of Humanities several months ago. The central aim of the program is improved teaching in the humanities and toward that end awards were made to twenty public school teachers from eight states in the fields of English, social studies, the fine arts and modern languages.

The nomination of Mrs. Robinson by an official of the Atlanta Board of Education was based on her years of successful teaching at the Booker T. Washington High School in Atlanta as well as her potential leadership and ability to enrich instruction even more in the future. The award covers tuition, transportation and reimbursement for teaching salary not received while on leave without pay.

Mrs. Robinson earned the bache-where she will attend classes of her choice as well as participate in a special discussion group. In this seminar she will meet the other teachers who have been selected who will form a representative group who can learn much from one another.

The John Hay Fellowships were named in honor of John Hay, Secretary of State under Presidents William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt. Secretary Hay was the maternal grandfather of John Hay Whitney, president of the Foundation.

College Conference on Composition and Communication in Cleveland, Ohio, where it attracted considerable attention and enthusiastic comments from the delegates. The text was also featured in a book exhibit at the April convention of the College Language Association at Stowe Teachers College in St. Louis, Missouri, where it evoked a similar response from teachers who were present.

Designed for the general market and not specifically for readers of any particular race, My Life, My

BISHOP CURRY

HAY FELLOW ROBINSON

EDITOR TILLMAN

lor's degree at Atlanta University in 1930 and the degree of master of arts in education in 1949. She is a member of the Georgia State Teachers Association and the Gate City Teachers Association. She participated in a group study on Intergroup Relations which was published by Wayne University. As a teacher of Latin, Mrs. Robinson hopes to do work at Columbia which will enable her better to make comparisons for her students between problems of the ancient Romans as indicated in their works and American problems as presented by contemporary writers. She has been granted a year's leave of absence by the Atlanta Board of Education beginning September 1 which will enable her to study at Columbia University

EDITS COLLEGE TEXT

Dr. Nathaniel P. Tillman, chairman of the Department of English at Atlanta University, is a co-editor of the new anthology, My Life, My Country, My World, which was published in March by Prentice-Hall, Incorporated, of New York City. Other editors are Dr. Hugh Morris Gloster, chairman of the Communications Center of Hampton Institute, who was a student of Dr. Tillman at Morehouse College and Atlanta University; and Dr. W. Edward Farrison, chairman of the Department of English at North Carolina College at Durham.

The book was first publicly displayed at the March meeting of the Country, My World is being promoted vigorously on its merits in all American colleges as a publication in the Prentice-Hall Series in English Composition, edited by Dean Thomas Clark Pollock of New York University.

U. S. ATTORNEY

Herbert A. Greenwood of Los Angeles, California, a graduate of Atlanta University in 1920, has been appointed an assistant U. S. attorney. He will be in charge of the FHA Unit of the Federal Prosecutor's Office in Los Angeles.

The new assistant is also a graduate of Western Reserve Law School.

FACULTY ITEMS

Clarence A. Bacote, professor of history, was a speaker during Negro History Week at Florida A. & M. College. Other speaking engagements he filled at Alabama State College's N. A. A. C. P. Conference during May, and at the Regional Workshop on Political Action held at Clark College on April 19. Mr. Bacote has been elected to the executive council of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History. He attended the meeting of the council in Washington, D. C., on June 28.

* * *

Mrs. Vivian Beavers, instructor of the sixth grade at the Laboratory School, was a special lecturer on unit-making at Spelman College during the past semester. At the East Point Elementary School, she served as a discussant on "Reading Comic Books"; and at the West Hunter Branch Library, she took part on a panel on "Reading."

* * *

In June, Dr. William M. Boyd, chairman of the department of political science, was one of a group of outstanding leaders who participated in an Institute of International Relations in Texas, held at San Antonio, Fort Worth, Houston and Dallas. The Institute was sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee, Quaker organization, which received the Nobel Peace Prize for world-wide non-sectarian work. Theme for the Institute was "Security in an Aggressive World."

* * *

Mrs. Hallie B. Brooks, who teaches at the School of Library Service, filled speaking engagements before the En-quirers Club and the Ministers Wives Organization of the M. E. Church. On April 4, she spoke on "The Effective School Library" before the annual meeting of the Alabama State Teachers Association. Before the close of the semester, Mrs. Brooks presented a chapel talk on "Two Views of Best Sellers" at Spelman College.

An invitation has been given to Mrs. Brooks to serve as a member of a committee to select titles of children's books which are to be included in the new edition of the Junior Reviewers Catalog, to be published in the fall of 1952.

* * *

Dr. Rufus E. Clement's speaking engagements have extended from Texas to New York. In January, he delivered the Founders Day address at Virginia State College. He was the principal speaker in Houston on February 10 on the occasion of Race Relations Sunday sponsored by the Houston Council of Church Women, the Houston Rabbinical Association, the Ministerial Association of Greater Houston and several other groups. He also spoke at Texas Southern University and at Prairie View State College while on this trip to the lone star state. On February 17, the University's President was guest speaker at the morning worship service at A. & T. College in Greensboro, North Carolina. He spoke at another morning worship service in April, when he was invited to fill the pulpit at the Old Ship A. M. E. Zion Church in Montgomery, Alabama. During the same month, he addressed the annual meeting of the McCrorey Branch Y.M.C.A. in Charlotte, North Carolina. On May 25, Dr. Clement delivered the baccalaureate sermon at Claffin College in Orangeburg, South Carolina. He was one of the speakers on May 15 at the opening of the 1952 United Negro College Fund campaign in Buffalo, New York. On June 18,

Dr. Clement was the luncheon meeting speaker at the opening of the United Negro College Fund campaign in Cleveland, Ohio.

President Clement is one of nine top American educators who met with officials of the Mutual Security Agency in Washington in February to help the Agency work out its program for educational activities in its Far East operations. On June 2, the President was notified that he had been voted as the outstanding teacher of the Class of 1927 of Livingstone College, at the 25th reunion of that class.

* * *

Mrs. Hortense S. Cochrane, director of field work at the Graduate School of Social Work, was a panel discussant at the National Conference of Social Work which met in Chicago, Illinois, on May 27. The panel considered "Psychiatric Social Worker as an Educator."

An article by Mrs. Cochrane entitled "Case Work Services Today in Institutions for Delinquents" has been selected for publication by the Health Publication Institute of Raleigh, North Carolina.

* * *

Dr. V. D. Gokhale, chairman of the department of mathematics, has had speaking engagements at mathematics seminars held at the Georgia Institute of Technology and at Emory University.

* * *

In April, Dr. Mozell C. Hill, chairman of the department of sociology, participated in conferences at the University of Oklahoma, North Carolina College and Miles College.

Dr. and Mrs. Hill are the parents of a new daughter, Stephanie, who was born on June 5 in Atlanta.

* * *

Dr. R. O. Johnson, a member of the faculty of the School of Education, recently delivered addresses at Turner High School, Florida A. & M.

College, Morehouse College, Bethune Cookman College, Alabama A. & M. College, and the Hungry Club (Atlanta). He was a delegate of the Butler Street Y.M.C.A. to the Annual Conference of the Southeastern Y.M.C.A. Council in Atlanta. He served as coordinator of the Visiting Committee for the Evaluation of the East Point Hill School, March 31-April 2.

* * *

Marvin H. Jones of the purchasing department attended a special institute for purchasing agents at Harvard University's School of Business Administration January 21-25. A series of lectures, forums and discussions were presented to help in solving the problems of purchasing agents.

* * *

Dr. Virginia Lacy Jones, director of the School of Library Service, has had speaking engagements at Fort Valley State College, Tennessee A. & I. State University, Fisk University and Vanderbilt University. She was a featured speaker at meetings of the Nashville Librarians Club and the Association of College Deans and Registrars which met at Daytona Beach.

* * *

Dr. Wesley J. Lyda, director of the School of Education, is now included among the men and women of distinction who appear in Who's Who in America. In addition to writing articles for the Educational Record and the Herald, he has addressed audiences in Columbus, Georgia; in Atlanta before the Spelman Faculty Club, the Hungry Club, Clark College and the English Avenue School Parent-Teacher Association; and in Albany, Georgia, before the meeting of the Georgia Teachers and Education Association. He served as chairman of the panel of educational experts of the State Department of Education which discussed the minimum foundation program of education for Georgia.

Dr. S. Milton Nabrit, dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, is serving on the Ford Scholarship Commission for screening applications to the Ford Foundation. He has filled speaking engagements at the Morehouse College Chapel, the Spelman College Chapel, the Morehouse College N. A. A. C. P., and the annual meeting of the Association of Deans and Registrars in Negro Colleges which met at Bethune Cookman College.

* * *

Miss Elizabeth Russell, a member of the staff of the School of Social Work, was married on May 4 to Claude H. Robinson of Atlanta.

* * *

Dr. H. M. Skala, chairman of the department of economics, addressed the International Club of the Y.W.C.A. on March 28. His subject was "Last Fifteen Centuries of the Iron Curtain." He was a speaker for Alpha Epsilon Chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha and the International Relations Club of Emory University on February 28. His subject on this occasion was "Czechoslovakia before and after the Communist Putsch." On April 15, he spoke at Georgia Institute of Technology on "The Communists in Central Europe."

* * *

Mrs. Lucile M. Strong, Atlanta University's bursar, attended the Thirteenth Annual Meeting of the American Association of College Business Officers held May 4-6 on the campus of Kentucky State College.

* * *

Dr. Nathaniel P. Tillman, chairman of the department of English, is a member of the Commission of the English Curriculum of the National Council of the Teachers of English that has just published Vol. I of its curriculum series on The English Language, published by Appleton-Century Crofts Incorporated. Four other volumes are to follow.

Dr. Tillman served as a consultant in language arts for region 4 of the State Teachers Institute at Savannah during the month of March. He was also a consultant at the State Teachers Institute in Augusta during March. On May 28, he was a consultant for the Bartow County Teachers Association held in Cartersville.

* * *

Dr. Charles Wahl, chairman of the department of French, attended meetings of the Modern Language Association, December 27-29, in Detroit, Michigan. He also attended the Yale-Barnard Conference on the teaching of French, which was held in New Haven, Connecticut, April 18-19, 1952, and the meetings of the College Language Association, April 25-26, in St. Louis, Missouri.

* * *

Dr. Forrester B. Washington, director of the School of Social Work, delivered the keynote address at the Career Conference sponsored by Virginia Union University, April 28-29. He contributed a review of Mark of Oppression to the Social Service Review, published by the University of Chicago Press in June. Dr. Washington's essay on "Negro Women" appears in the publication of the U. S. Department of Labor, Bulletin No. 235-8, in the section on "The Outlook for Women in Social Work." In addition to addressing the dinner meeting in Macon, Georgia, of the Georgia Tuberculosis Association, Dr. Washington has had speaking engagements at Agnes Scott College, Spelman College, Morris Brown College and Clark College.

* * *

A daughter was born to Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Z. Westerfield on March 8, 1952, in Washington, D.C. Dr. Westerfield is the new director of the School of Business Administration.

ALUMNI NEWS

1906

On Sunday, March 30, at the Community Church of New York City, a conversational musicale on the theme, "Bach, Beethoven and Brahms: The Men and Their Music" was presented by Augustus G. Dill, former northern secretary and professor of economics at Atlanta University. For many years, Mr. Dill was the summer organist at the Community Church. His concert in March of this year was given as a benefit for the Church's organ fund.

1916

Mrs. Lucy Cherry, director of the Negro program of the Atlanta Tuberculosis Association, was chosen Atlanta's bronze woman of the year for 1952 by the Iota Phi Lambda Sorority.

1923

Miss Elizabeth E. Lemon has been appointed to the principalship of the new 27th and Jackson Street School in Gary, Indiana. She is to assume her new post on August 1. For the past five years Miss Lemon has been an instructor in social studies at the Roosevelt School in Gary.

1927

Dr. Myra Logan (Alston) of New York City, was inducted into fellowship in the American College of Surgeons at the November 9, 1951, convocation of this group in San Francisco. Dr. Logan is the first Negro woman to be admitted and one of very few women to have this signal honor.

1930

Fred D. Maise is assistant national director of the health and safety service division of the Boy Scouts of America. Assigned to the Midwest and the East, he covers the states of Missouri, Kentucky, West Virginia, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Kansas and the District of Columbia. Mr. Maise maintains his residence in Greensboro, North Carolina.

1932

A Standard Speech Diagnostic Test by Erostine C. Robinson, a teacher of speech improvement in the public schools of New York City (and Blanche A. Mendelsohn) has been adopted by the Board of Education in New York. The test is designed to provide a simple, systematic, stimulating device for analyzing the voice and speech pattern of any person for the purpose of discovering any defects which may be present. Publishers of the test are Noble and Noble, Incorporated, of 67 Irving Place, New York 3, New York.

1933

Dr. William H. Brown, professor of education at North Carolina College at Durham, was among the nationally known authorities serving as conference leaders in Michigan, early in January. The conference was sponsored by the National Federation of Settlements and Neighborhood Centers and the continuing Education Service at Michigan State College. Dr. Brown served as a specialist in evaluation and human relations.

Dr. Ellen Irene Diggs, professor of sociology at Morgan State College, has been elected a Fellow of the American Anthropological Association.

Dr. Hugh M. Gloster, chairman of the Communications Center at Hampton Institute, is one of the three editors of My Life, My Country, My World, a textbook which was published early this year by Prentice-Hall, Incorporated, of New York. The text is an anthology of readings for college courses in freshman English. The other editors are Dr. Nathaniel P. Tillman, chairman of the department of English at Atlanta University; and Dr. W. E. Farrison, chairman of the Department of English at North Carolina College.

DR. GLOSTER

1934

It has been reliably reported that Dr. Frederick E. Mapp, until recently on the faculty of Tennessee State College, will be a member of the department of biology at Morehouse College beginning in September.

1935

Dr. Effie O'Neal Ellis (M. D. University of Chicago) is an interne at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

1936

At the annual banquet of the Meharry Medical Alumni Association, Dr. Daniel T. Rolfe, newly appointed dean of the school of Medicine at Meharry, announced his engagement to Miss Birdie Lucile Scott, a member of the faculty of Meharry.

1937

John B. Clemmons, acting chairman of the department of mathematics at Savannah State College, is a recipient of a grant from the Ford Foundation.

A son was born to Dr. and Mrs. William Harrison Pipes on January 1, 1952. Dr. Pipes is dean of Philander Smith College in Little Rock, Arkansas. Mrs. Pipes, the former Anna Howard Russell, is also a 1937 graduate of Atlanta University.

ex-1937

Miss G. Barbara Taylor, secretary to the dean of Clark College, will study in the School of Social Welfare at the University of California at Berkeley during the coming academic year, on a Methodist Crusade Fellowship.

Dr. Mary L. Reddick, professor of biology at Morehouse College, will study in Europe during 1952-53 on a fellowship awarded by the Ford Foundation.

1938

Miss Margaret Carter of Providence, Rhode Island, was married on October 1, 1951, to Dr. Paul S. Hough. They are living in Middleton, Connecticut.

William N. Jackson, principal of the Lincoln-Grant High School in Covington, Kentucky, received the degree of doctor of philosophy at the June 6 convocation of Ohio State University.

1939

Mrs. Helen Bell Robinson of Atlanta was married on April 18, 1952, to A. Russell Brooks, also of Atlanta. Mrs. Brooks is a member of the Spelman College administrative staff. Mr. Brooks is a member of the English faculty at Morehouse College.

1940

Miss Elaine E. Douglass, assistant professor of English at Fort Valley State College, has been awarded a Ford Foundation fellowship.

1941

Dr. Dorothy Forde, who during the past year was in residence at City Hospital in New York City, was married on June 23 in Houston, Texas, to Dr. Theodore Bolden of Jersey City, New Jersey.

1942

Miss Frances Aurelia Toyer received the Ph.D. degree in economics at New York University's 120th commencement exercises on June 11. Miss Toyer's dissertation was written on "The Economic Thought of John Bates Clark." At present a member of the staff of New York University, Miss Toyer has held other positions at the Houston College for Negroes, in federal government service in Washington and on the economics faculty of Bluefield State Teachers College.

1943

Miss Penelope Bullock is listed in the Columbia University publication, Library Service News, as an honor student of 1951. She was one of thirty students at Columbia whose grades averaged above the midpoint between "B" and "A". She received the master's degree in library service from Columbia University in June, 1951. Miss Bullock is now employed as a senior reference librarian in the Detroit (Michigan) Public Library.

Mrs. Ruth Bronson Johnston is the mother of a son, Benjamin Mays Johnston, who was born on November 28, 1951, in Macon, Georgia. The father is Dr. George A. Johnston, a graduate of Morehouse College.

1944

Lincoln J. Harrison, director of the division of business and economics at Central State College, has been granted a certificate as a certified public accountant of Ohio.

At the present time, Mr. Harrison is on leave from his post to study toward the doctorate in accounting at Ohio State University.

Miss Ethel T. Harvey, mental hygienist for the John A. Andrews Memorial Hospital at Tuskegee Institute, was one of the speakers at an Institute sponsored by the Veterans Administration Hospital at Tuskegee, on March 17, with the public health departments, clinical association, parent-teacher groups and rural life councils of several southern states serving as cooperating agencies. Other speakers were Dr. Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University, Dr. Paul B. Cornely of Howard and Miss Odell Carmichael, director of the Bureau of Informational Services, Alabama State Welfare Department. Miss Harvey was quoted by the New York Times (which covered the Institute) as follows . . . "progress in the mental health field called for cooperation and collaboration from non-clinical groups, parents, students, teachers, county agents, home demonstration workers, ministers and community leaders. No home is unmenaced by the community-burden of mental health." Attending were 300 physicians, nutritionists, dietitians, public health and vocational rehabilitation workers, sanitary engineers, mental hygienists, dentists, nurses and sociologists.

1945

Mrs. Eleanor Wallace Gipson was living in Cambridge, Massachusetts, during the past year while her husband, Lieutenant Commander Bernard Gipson of the Coast Guard, was studying surgery at the Brighton (Massachusetts) Marine Hospital. They have moved to Washington, D.C., where Lieutenant Commander Gipson has been appointed resident physician in surgery at Freedman's Hospital.

Miss Frances M. Hayes, a teacher of French in the Atkins High School (Winston-Salem, North Carolina) was married on December 22, 1951, in Lynchburg, Virginia, to Walter Baird of Asheville, North Carolina. The groom is a special representative of the Winston-Salem Mutual Insurance Company.

Mrs. Ollie Johnson McLean has been appointed librarian for special services at Fort Hood in Texas.

Miss Jean M. Watson, hospital librarian at Kobe Base in Japan, was married in Japan on January 9, 1952, to First Lieutenant Glenn W. Brown.

1946

Miss Evelyn Wynona Moore, a member of the faculty of Morehouse College, was married on February 4, 1952, to Matthew Lipman. The marriage took place in Paris, France, where Mrs. Lipman has been studying for the past two years toward the Ph.D. degree in French.

Mrs. Mildred German, one of seven social workers in the elementary schools of Seattle, Washington, was featured in the Seattle Sunday Times of March 23, 1952, in an article on "Social Work in School," which was written by Lucile McDonald. The article discussed how social work can accomplish the most good for the individual school.

Mrs. Madrid Turner Hamilton is now living in White Plains, New York.

Mrs. Lillian Evans McCormick is employed as a psychiatric social worker with the Crownsville State Hospital in Maryland.

Miss Eleanor A. Young has been appointed head librarian at Bergen Junior College in Teaneck, New Jersey. Miss Young is the first Negro to be employed on the faculty of this private junior college which is located on the Hackensack River just 25 minutes ride from the heart of New York City.

1947

Leroy Banks Allen, professor of social sciences at Bluefield State Teachers College, received the Ph.D. degree at the spring convocation of the University of Chicago.

1948

Miss Rose E. Huggins of Greenville, South Carolina, was married to Eugene Gordon of Philadelphia, on June 7.

J. Forrest Kelly is head of the department of physical education at Wiley College.

Mrs. Ruby Kelly is head of the department of psychology at Wiley College.

Mrs. Addie Scott Powell has been appointed to the staff of the Brooklyn Public Library. She assumed her duties on July 1.

1949

A son, John Davis, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Owens on February 21, in Cleveland, Ohio.

Miss Muriel Jean Ellis of Kansas City, Missouri, was married on December 22, 1951, to Dr. Ruben P. Morris of Chicago, Illinois. They are residing in Pascagoula, Mississippi.

Miss June Mack Strong of Atlanta was married on December 26, 1951, to Albert N. Wardlaw.

1950

Miss Blanche L. Coombs has to her credit thirteen months of service with the Red Cross in Korea and five months' service in Japan. When the Chinese Communists invaded the Korean peninsula, Miss Coombs was returned to Japan where she worked as a public relations staff writer until things calmed down. She then returned to Korea where she was stationed at Pusan, a short distance from the front.

1951

Mrs. Savannah J. Carver of Atlanta is a member of the summer school faculty at Prairie View State College. She is teaching courses in reading to in-service teachers.

Mrs. Artrelle Harrison Foster is now employed as child welfare worker with the Children's Aid and Protective Society of Orange, New Jersey.

Miss Montios L. Gandy has begun new duties as a case worker with the Family Service Center of Kalamazoo, Michigan.

Mrs. Dorothy Washington Robinson has been appointed children's librarian in the Woodlawn Branch of the Chicago Public Library.

1952

Mrs. Olivia Baldwin, who completed work for the M. Ed. degree in August, 1951, has been appointed principal of a school in Jacksonville, Florida.

Miss Wuanetta Banks of Cleveland, Ohio, was married in Atlanta on May 17 to Lieutenant Charles E. Smith of Dayton, Ohio. The wedding took place in Sale Hall Chapel on the campus of Morehouse College. The groom is at present serving as a psychiatric social work officer in the army.

Mrs. Willie Mae Edwards is an instructor in the library service department of Southern University.

An appointment as assistant cataloger at Texas Southern University has been given to Miss Edna L. Gibson.

Mrs. Mildred Hannon is the recipient of a post as librarian of the High School in Christiansted, St. Croix, Virgin Islands.

Myron Herman Johnson, principal of the Alpharetta Consolidated School, Alpharetta, Georgia, was married on June 11 to Eloise Vaughn McKinney of Charlotte, North Carolina, daughter of Dean and Mrs. T. E. McKinney of Johnson C. Smith University.

Miss Louise B. King, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Max C. King of Franklinton, North Carolina, was married on June 14 to Henry C. Sindos of New Orleans, Louisiana. They will make their home in Brooklyn, New York, where the groom is a psychiatric social worker for Catholic Charities in New York City.

(Continued on page 40)

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION ACTIVITIES

New York

Early in the New Year, on January 10, at Grace Congregational Church, graduates and former students of Atlanta University living in the New York area answered a call to reorganize for a stronger and more effective alumni organization. To stimulate interest, President Rufus E. Clement was invited to be the special guest of the occasion. His address on "The State of the University" was followed by a question and answer period which provided a lively evening for the fifty or more who attended. An added feature was the displaying of color pictures by Pierce Thompson, '06, which he had made on a trip to his alma mater and which brought many of the members up to date on the physical campus and its environs.

Officers elected at the meeting were (President) George W. Hodges, '20, of New York City; (Vice President) Mrs. Marthena Hill Pope, '26, of New York City; (Treasurer) Edgar N. Parks of New York City; and (Secretary) Miss Joyce L. Watts of Brooklyn.

At the February meeting, plans were completed for the year's work which has been centered around the raising of funds for the United Negro College Fund. Directing this phase of the program is Miss Marguerite Johnson (Ex. '25) of Brooklyn, New York.

Thumbnail sketches on some of the members follow:

death of social agencies and having

Albert A. Edwards, '20, is director of the Stuyvesant Community Center which was established in 1945 to serve an area of Brooklyn notably the problems of changing population, bad housing, low incomes and a racially mixed population, largely Negro. To carry on this work, Mr. Edwards has a large staff which includes four program workers, two clerical workers, and more than twenty volunteers many of whom are students majoring in sociology and education and who are bent on acquiring community experience. One important function of the Center is the sponsorship of an out-of-town camp and a vacation placement service.

Mrs. Marjorie Strickland Greene, a student during 1926-28, is one of the most active members of the New York group. Employed as a vocational guidance counselor in the Brooklyn industrial office of the New York State Department of Labor, she serves as president of Circle Z of St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church. She is an active worker in the Urban League, the N. A. A. C. P., and the Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Greene is unusually talented as a dramatic reader. She frequently appears on programs sponsored by church groups, hospitals and community centers. A recent honor was accorded her when she was one of a selected group of men and women of St. Mark's Church to whom homage was paid at a Recognition Dinner sponsored by the Business and Professional Club of that church.

*George W. Hodges, president of the New York Alumni, has had a new book to come off the press. Entitled My Souvenirs, it is a collection of poems and stories. His other published works are Early Negro Church Life in New York and Touchstones of Methodism.*

Atlanta

The first cultural presentation by the Atlanta Alumni was the Camilla Williams Recital on February 5, at Wheat Street Baptist Church. The recital was a joint project of the Atlanta Alumni and the Atlanta Chapter of the Inter-Alumni Council of the United Negro College Fund. Spearheaded by Mrs. Josephine Dibble Murphy, '09, president of the National Alumni Association, and Dr. George Hightower, national president of the Inter-Alumni Council of the United Negro College Fund, the evening's venture proved to be highly successful.

Atlanta U. President and Officers — New York Alumni Chapter (left to right): George W. Hodges, President; Mrs. Marthena H. Pope, Vice-President; President Clement; Miss Joyce L. Watts, Secretary; and Edgar N. Parks, Treasurer.

Extreme left — Mrs. Josephine D. Murphy, who presided at Alumni Banquet.

Extreme right — President Sidney D. Williams, toastmaster.

At the annual meeting of the Alumni Association on May 31, Mrs. Murphy, was re-elected president; Paul I. Clifford of Atlanta, '48, vice president; Mrs. Linnie Jones of Atlanta, '22, treasurer; Mrs. Eunice Grundy Cooper of Atlanta, '46, secretary; Miss Cleo Love of Atlanta, '35, corresponding secretary; Miss Helen Gray of Atlanta, '31, assistant secretary; and Mrs. Willie Belle Edwards of Atlanta, '17, secretary of vital statistics.

According to Mrs. Murphy, who has been successful in reactivating the program of the Atlanta Alumni, this group has had a successful year of operation and wide-spread interest and support have been evinced in the current project of the Association to furnish a lounge in Sage Hall (new classroom building under construction at Atlanta University). At the annual meeting, she called upon every alumnus to work diligently to keep Atlanta University a leader in the field of higher education. Before the meeting adjourned, the group was pledged to continue the tremendous job of bringing alumni of the University into a working organization that will assume responsibility for increasing the financial independence of the institution.

Alumni from many parts of the country were in attendance at the annual banquet on June 2 at the University Dormitories. The Class of '52 and the Classes of Two were the honored guests. Those who participated on the program were Sidney D. Williams, '14, President of the Elizabeth City, North Carolina, State Teachers College, who served as the toastmaster; R. Edwin Thomas, '32, Atlanta attorney, who delivered the toast to the anniversary classes; and Mrs. Josephine Dibble Murphy, the Association head, who gave the charge to the Class of 1952. Others who participated were Atlanta University's Registrar, John P. Whitaker, '15, who offered the Prayer; and three members of the Class of '52, who furnished the music: Mary Amy Dowery of Shelbyville, Kentucky; Patricia Thompson of Evansville, Indiana; and Dorothy Adams of Waycross, Georgia. Greetings were brought by the University's President, Dr. Rufus E. Clement, who asked that each graduate busy himself with the job of calling the attention of top students to the high quality of work done at Atlanta University.

Concert Artist, Camilla Williams (center) is seen after Atlanta Concert with (left) Mrs. Rufus E. Clement; Boris Bazala, accompanist; President Clement; and Mrs. Josephine D. Murphy.

A presentation from the Kentucky Alumni was made by Robert L. Dowery, '42, of Columbia, Kentucky, whose daughter, Mary Amy Dowery was graduated this year from the School of Social Work. Among the older graduates who attended were Dr. J. R. Porter of Atlanta, '36; and Mrs. Amanda Bowen of Atlanta of the Class of '98. Communications were received from Mrs. Hattie M. Spain of East Point, Georgia, and from Mrs. Mary Love Lightner of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, both of whom were members of the Class of 1892; and from Sylvanus Smith of Chicago, Illinois, a member of the Class of 1878.

In recognition of President Florence M. Read's 25 years of service at the helm of Spelman College, the Association presented to her a bouquet of flowers as a symbol of its esteem. The presentation was made by Mrs. Salina Shaw of Atlanta. Benediction was pronounced at the close by Reverend Samuel C. Usher of Atlanta, '12.

A thumbnail sketch of one of the active members of the Atlanta Alumni follows:

Clayton R. Yates, '20, is the alumni representative on the Board of Trustees of Atlanta University.

In addition to being part-owner of the Yates and Milton chain of four drugstores, he serves as president of the Southview

Officers of the National Alumni Association of the Atlanta University School of Social Work are seen in Chicago following announcement of the establishment of the Forrester B. Washington Student Loan Fund. (Left to right) Mrs. Audrey D. Farris, national treasurer; Dr. Washington, director, School of Social Work; Nelson C. Jackson, outgoing national president; and Samuel J. Rice, president of the Chicago Chapter.

Cemetery Corporation; vice president of the Atlanta Savings and Loan Association; president of the Southeastern Fidelity Fire Insurance Company; chairman of the board of directors of the Citizens Trust Company of Atlanta; a member of the board of trustees of the Y. M. C. A.; chairman of the board of trustees of the First Congregational Church of Atlanta; and a member of the advisory committee of the new Hughes Spalding Pavilion of Grady Hospital, which will serve Atlanta's Negro citizens. Mr. Yates is also on the sub-budget committee of the Atlanta Community Chest, a member of the executive board of the Atlanta Community Planning Council and a member of the State Central Committee of the Georgia Republican Party.

National Alumni Association (School of Social Work)

At the annual meeting in May of the National Alumni Association of the School of Social Work (held in Chicago, Illinois), the members established the Forrester B. Washington Student Loan Fund to honor the 25 years of service to the School given by Dr. Washington.

Elected to the presidency of the Association was Robert Neal, '38, of Chicago, Illinois. Vice presidents who will serve in regional capacities are Mrs. Maggie Carter, '30, of Atlanta; Mrs. Gertrude Thompson, '32, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Gertrude Nabrit Thomas, '36, of Inwood, Long Island; Mrs. Flozella R. Clark, '42, of Baltimore, Maryland; Mrs. Beatrice Dunn Wilson, '47, of New Orleans, Louisiana; Mrs. Renetta Etter, '47, of Houston, Texas; Mrs. Dorothy Boone, '36, of Los Angeles, California; Miss Grace White, '46, of Kansas City, Missouri; and Mrs. Isobel Chisholm Clark, '36, of Raleigh, North Carolina. Miss Mollie Faison, '42, of the Girl Scout Regional Organization in Detroit, Michigan, was elected secretary; and Mrs. Audrey Farris, '42, of Chicago, was elected treasurer.

Atlanta Branch

At the April 1952 meeting, this group presented $150 to Dr. Forrester B. Washington as a contribution toward the Student Loan Fund of the School.

George K. Howe, instructor in mathematics and manual arts at Atlanta University, 1902-1929, came into the limelight in November, 1951, when he returned to work after being retired three times. He was first retired by Atlanta University in 1929. However, he remained retired for only one year before accepting a job as treasurer and business manager of a college in Mississippi. He retired again in 1935. When the call went out in 1942 for workers at the Marietta bomber plant, Howe, a young 65 years of age, left his home workshop (where he repairs watches) to learn the template and lofting trade at Bell Aircraft. He spent six weeks in school at Buffalo, New York, and then worked at the plant until it was closed in 1945. He returned to his workshop and watch repairing until the spring of '51 when again he came out of retirement to help build B-47's with Lockheed Aircraft in Marietta, Georgia.

ATLANTA'S SOCIOLOGISTS

(Continued from page 28)

William H. Shell, Administrative Officer, Office of the Administrator, Farmers Home Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Louia D. Shivery, Dean of Women, Florida Industrial and Memorial College

Dorothy Slade, Instructor in Social Science, Dudley High School, Greensboro, North Carolina

Hugh H. Smythe (Ph.D.), Professor of Social Science, Yagamuchi National University, Yagamuchi, Japan

Olga Williams Taylor, Instructor, E. P. Johnson School, Atlanta, Georgia

Eva Louise Thomas, Instructor, E. R. Carter School, Atlanta, Georgia

Daniel C. Thompson, Associate

Professor of Sociology, Dillard University

Josephine Thompson, Instructor, School of Library Service, Atlanta University

James A. Tillman, Jr., Dean of Men, Fort Valley State College

Bonita H. Valien, Associate Professor of Social Science, Fisk University

James T. Wardlaw, Minneapolis, Minnesota—Plans to enter University of Minnesota in Fall Quarter (1952) to study social legislation

Martiel M. Watson, Instructor, Booker T. Washington School, Pensacola, Florida

Vernon F. White, Convalescing from illness (was on faculty of St. Augustine College)

Charles V. Willie, Teaching Assistant, Syracuse University; Research Sociologist, New York State Mental Health Commission

Arthur Winfield (Deceased)

Arnold W. Wright, Assistant Professor of Sociology, Kentucky State College

ALUMNI NEWS

(Continued from page 36)

Yale University has named Miss Edna C. Lockhart as curator of the James Weldon Johnson Collection of Negro Arts and Letters.

Miss Irma C. McLemore has been named assistant librarian at West Virginia State College.

ex-1952

Miss Altoise Chenault of Cleveland, Ohio, a former member of the University Players, dramatic organization of Atlanta University, Morehouse College and

The Sixth Grade of the Laboratory School played host to the entire student body at a special assembly in March to celebrate the close of a fascinating unit on "China." A feature of the program was a panel discussion on "The Chinese Republic—Past and Present" in which Sixth Grade pupils were the participants. To add interest to the occasion, Miss Jane D. Jones of Spelman College was invited to appear on the program and to give first-hand impressions of China, where she had taught for more than 15 years. Several members of the Sixth Grade appeared in Chinese costumes to give a real native flavor to the occasion. Then there were interesting Chinese materials on exhibit such as jewelry, chopsticks, back scratchers, hand-painted cards, fabrics and paintings. In keeping with the atmosphere of the day, a Chinese menu for the cafeteria's noon meal included delicious chop suey, rice, tea and cookies. Two of the special guests who attended were G. H. Burrows, director of Radio Station WABE, and Van Joiner, writer of the dramatic series, "Man's Great Adventure" for Station WABE.

Spelman College, won the praise of Atlanta critics when she appeared in The Penthouse, Atlanta's "live theatre", on Peachtree Street with a group of New York professionals in the play "Male Animal." According to Fred D. Moon, writer on the Atlanta Journal, Miss Chenault helped to put the play across, and nearly stole the show in her role. Paul Jones, reporter on the Atlanta Constitution, stated that Miss Chenault was the surprise of the show. "Her interpretation was flawless," he wrote.

REQUIESCAT IN PACE

MRS. PAULINE MOORE CURRY

Early in January, the friends of Mrs. Pauline Moore Curry were stunned to hear of her death which occurred on the second day of the month in Hartwell, Georgia.

The deceased will be remembered as one of the first appointees to the reorganized Laboratory School of Atlanta University. She was a graduate of Colorado State Teachers College and before joining the faculty of Atlanta University had taught in the public schools of Brooklyn, New York, and Jackson, Mississippi. At the time of her death, Mrs. Curry was a teacher of the first grade at the Hart County Training School in Hartwell, Georgia.

The deceased is survived by a daughter, Miss Pauline Moore of Washington, D. C., and a father, George Goins of Clarksville, Mississippi. Burial took place on January 5 in the Lincoln Cemetery of Atlanta.

REVEREND JAMES A. DAVIDSON

Reverend James A. Davidson, former member of the staff of Atlanta University, died on May 23, 1952, in Lakeland, Florida.

At Atlanta University he had held such posts as superintendent of buildings and grounds, director of publicity and professor of history.

The body of the deceased was taken to his former home in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada.

DR. WILLIAM H. DEAN

Dr. William H. Dean, who was a member of the department of economics at Atlanta University 1934-1946, died in New York City on January 7, 1952.

The brilliant economist was chief of the African unit of the United Nation's division of economic stability. In July, 1951, he was named head of a six member United Nations Technical Assistance Mission to survey the needs and possibilities of Italian Somaliland trust territory. The survivors include his widow, the former Mary Tobias, who at one time taught on the faculty of the Atlanta University Laboratory School; a son, Channing T. Dean; and a daughter, Joyce Ella Dean.

MRS. MARY JACKSON FOSTER

Mrs. Mary Jackson Foster, a graduate of the normal department in 1886, died at Caruthersville, Missouri, January 12, 1952. The former Mary Ursula Jackson was first married to Allen J. Wade. Her second husband was Charles L. Foster.

During her lifetime, Mrs. Foster was a nurse and a teacher. She also devoted much of her interest and time to club work. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Floy W. Johnson of New Orleans, Louisiana, and Mrs. Allen W. Gipson of Caruthersville; and one son, Dr. Charles W. Wade of Washington, D. C.

MISS JANIE L. GOOSBY

The death of Miss Janie L. Goosby, who taught for 32 years in the Atlanta public school system, occurred in Atlanta on March 18, 1952. She was a graduate of the normal department of Atlanta University in 1912 and later of the college department of Morris Brown College.

Miss Goosby's teaching career began at the old Mitchell Street School (which later was merged with the Roach Street School to form the Edmund Asa Ware Elementary School). Later she was transferred to the David T. Howard School and elevated to the assistant principalship of the elementary department, a post that she held until forced to retire because of ill health.

She was a charter member and past officer of Eta Sigma Chapter of Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority. Among the survivors are three sisters, Miss Lady I. Goosby, Mrs. Ruth Ware and Mrs. Kate Crumley of Atlanta; two brothers, Nelson Goosby of New York City, and Theodore Goosby who resides in Atlanta.

MRS. CLAUDIA WHITE HARRELD

Mrs. Claudia White Harreld, wife of Professor Kemper Harreld, director of music in the Atlanta University System and herself a long-time friend of Atlanta University, died in Detroit, Michigan, on February 26, after an extended illness.

Mrs. Harreld was a familiar figure to generations of students, for until her illness of several months ago she was one of the best known personalities in and around the campuses of Atlanta University, Morehouse College and Spelman College. She was in attendance at practically every program that was sponsored on the campuses of the Atlanta University System where her husband has been director of musical activities for more than three decades.

A former teacher at both Spelman and Morehouse Colleges, Mrs. Harrel was the daughter of Josephine E. Thomas White and the late William Jefferson White, educator and religious leader of Augusta, Georgia, who was associated with the founding of Morehouse College; and who with John D. Rockefeller, Henry L. Morehouse, Sidney Root and others, was one of the men who in 1888 applied for a charter for Spelman Seminary.

Funeral services for the deceased were held in Sisters Chapel, Spelman College campus, on Saturday, March 1, 1952.

MRS. WILLIE HUGULEY HODGES

Mrs. Willie Huguley Hodges, who was graduated from the normal department of Atlanta University in 1909, died in New York City on February 18, 1952. A native of Atlanta, she taught in the primary and high schools of Rome, Georgia; at the Model Training School of Atlanta University and at Georgia State College. For many years she was a teacher at Public School 89 in New York City.

Funeral services for the deceased were held at St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church on Friday, February 22. Among the survivors are her husband, George W. Hodges, and a son, George W. Hodges, Jr. Burial took place in the Cypress Hills Cemetery of Brooklyn.

MRS. MILDRED GAINES TURK

Mrs. Mildred Gaines Turk, who was graduated from the normal department of Atlanta University in 1910, died in Chicago, Illinois, on February 12, 1952, after a brief illness.

A native of Atlanta, Mrs. Turk was employed in a clerical capacity at the Waltzinger Company of Chicago at the time she was taken ill. In her lifetime she had served as a recorder at Atlanta University, as a member of the staff of the Atlanta University Library, as a librarian at the Auburn Branch Library of Atlanta, and in the library of the Field Museum of the University of Chicago.

Mrs. Turk was a niece of the late Bishop A. L. Gaines of Baltimore, Maryland. Among the survivors are two brothers, A. B. Gaines of Atlanta and W. C. Gaines of Chicago; a niece, Miss Jacqueline Gaines of Atlanta; and a nephew, William C. Gaines, who is also of Atlanta.

Burial took place in Chicago.

MRS. OLIVE WAINWRIGHT WHITE

Mrs. Olive Wainwright White, a graduate of the college department in 1918, died on January 2, 1952, at her home in Columbus, Georgia. She had been a teacher since 1918 in the public schools of Atlanta, New Orleans and Charleston. Since 1945, Mrs. White had served as principal of the Manley Taylor School in Columbus, Georgia.

Among the survivors are her husband, Dr. John A. White, who was graduated from Atlanta University in 1919; a daughter, Miss Mary Grace White; and a son, Dr. William H. White, all of whom live in Columbus, Georgia.

Atlanta University is grateful for the generous contribution that was given in December, 1951, by Mrs. Devereaux F. McClatchey, Jr., of Atlanta.

The letter to the University from Mrs. McClatchey read as follows: "I should like to make a donation of $700 to Atlanta University as a memorial to my brother, Walter Castellow Methvin, who died during World War II. My mother passed away recently and this sum is my share of the remainder of his insurance money.

Walter was a talented boy whose great love was music, especially the organ. I can think of no better way to honor his memory than to provide some boy an opportunity to develop a musical talent that can enrich the lives of others.

However, I give this money with no strings attached, in full confidence that it will be spent in the spirit in which it was given."

Have You Been Keeping Up With PHYLON

(in International Index)

A QUARTERLY JOURNAL OF RACE AND CULTURE

- Essays on Race Problems
- Profiles of Persons of Achievement in Interracial Areas
- Purposeful Poetry and Fiction
- Reviews of Significant Books
- Scholarly Studies

ONLY TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Address: The Editors, Phylon

ATLANTA UNIVERSITY

Atlanta, Ga.

A Letter to Alumni and Friends From the President of the University

Because of the fact that you either have received a considerable portion of your education at Atlanta University or that you have been a staunch believer in this institution's program for Negro youth, I am convinced that you would have a more than ordinary interest in lending a helping hand to a continuation of the University's work.

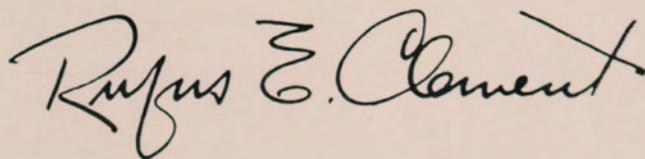

This can be effected through the work of the United Negro College Fund. You may be aware that the Fund is the foremost organization of this kind today. No doubt a campaign sponsored by the Fund has been held recently in your city. If so, I hope that you found time to serve in some capacity in it or that you made a personal donation to this effort which is in the interest of thirty-two private colleges for the education of Negro men and women.

If you should happen to be in an area where we are not having an organized campaign, will you be good enough to send a donation to the Fund at 22 East 54th Street, New York City, or send it to me in care of Atlanta University. We will be glad to forward it to New York where it can be credited as your contribution.

I am sure you realize that your contribution is deductible for income tax purposes. More than this, however, it will represent your appreciation of education for all qualified persons regardless of race or religious convictions.

With greetings, and with kind regards, I am

Sincerely yours

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "Rufus E. Clement". The signature is written in dark ink and is positioned below the typed name.

THE ATLANTA UNIVERSITY SYSTEM

The Graduate School of Arts and Sciences

offers courses leading to the Master's degree in the fields of biology, chemistry, economics, English, French, history, Latin, mathematics, political science and sociology.

The School of Social Work

a graduate school offering a two-year curriculum for prospective social workers, leading to the degree of Master of Social Work or to the professional certificate.

The School of Library Service

requiring college graduation for admission and offering a program of graduate professional study leading to the degree of Master of Science in Library Service.

The School of Education

a graduate school offering curricula leading to the M.A. and M.Ed. degrees, designed to meet the needs of men and women who have chosen education as a professional career.

The School of Business Administration

a graduate school offering thorough theoretical and practical training in the fields of business affairs, leading to the degree of Master of Business Administration.

Spelman College

a strong, fully-accredited undergraduate college for women.

Morehouse College

a strong, fully-accredited undergraduate college for men.

The Summer School

in which the Atlanta institutions for higher education of Negroes combine under the direction of Atlanta University to offer courses on both the graduate and undergraduate levels.

The Laboratory Elementary School and the Nursery School offering an opportunity for experimentation, observation and practice teaching.

For information address the Registrar of the school in which you are interested.