Contemporary Art Collection on View

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Waddell and Hale Woodruff (center) before Mr. Woodruff's "Galaxy" at the opening of the Contemporary Art Collection.

With the opening of the Collection of Contemporary American Art on October 25, Atlanta University's contribution to the greater appreciation of art in the Southeast took on a new dimension, for this is not a show which remains on view for a limited time, but another permanent art gallery for the city of Atlanta. In the completely remodelled gallery in the Trevor Arnett Library now hang thirty-six new works of American artists, the generous gift of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Waddell of New York, together with some forty pieces selected from the University's permanent collection of works by Negro artists, the purchase awards from the eighteen annual exhibitions.

Writing as a foreword to the handsome illustrated catalogue, which contains reproductions of all the oils and water colors in the Waddell Collection, President Clement said of Mr. and Mrs. Waddell's suggestion that the University collection be broadened to represent contemporary art in America without regard to racial origin: "It had been their observation that the time had come when the excellent collection which the University had gathered from the annual awards over the years should be merged with the works of other contemporary artists, regardless of race." The Trustees and President Clement gratefully accepted the collection which has been assembled carefully over the past two years.

President Clement concluded the foreword: "The University's Annual Exhibition, held each spring, has become an event of importance in American contemporary art. Our spring harvest can be measured by the absolute standard of contemporary art — in all its rich variety — as it is being expressed in modern times. I believe the University speaks for all the Negro artists, whose contributions have made its Annual Exhibitions so stimulating, when it accepts this group of pictures by artists of the most diverse racial backgrounds, whose works have been selected only because they express something of the remarkable power and beauty in contemporary art in America."

Present for the formal opening which attracted record crowds, were Mr. and Mrs. Waddell, and three artists who are represented in the Waddell collection, Hale Woodruff of New York, who as a member of the Atlanta University faculty played a leading role in formulating the plans for the Atlanta University Exhibit and in directing it during its early years, Edwin Dickinson of New York and Wellfleet, Cape Cod, and George Beattie of Atlanta. Mrs. Woodruff, Mrs. Dickinson, and Mrs. Beattie were also present.

Three of the artists in the Waddell Collection are already represented in the Negro Collection, Mr. Woodruff, who also painted the murals in the Trevor Arnett Library, Charles Alston, and Jacob Lawrence. Among the other artists are Isabel Bishop, Dong Kingman, Lena Gurr, David Aronson, Eugene Higgins, Lee Gatch, John Heliker, Benajim Kopman, B. J. O. Nordfeldt, Jason Schoener, and Katherine Wilczynski.

The collection consists of oils, water colors and drawings representing many schools of painting, but, in spite of its variety, the whole has an unusual harmony.

From the Atlanta University Negro Collection are sculptures by Richmond Barthé, Jack Jordan, Elizabeth Catlett, William Artis, Guy Miller, and Charles W. Stallings and oils, water colors, prints and drawings by such artists as Charles White, John Wilson, Samella Sanders Lewis, John Biggers, Lois M. Jones, Frederick D. Jones, Merton Simpson, Henry Bannarn, James Yeargans, Hayward L. Oubré, Benjamin Britt, Walter Simon, and David Driskell.

The comments of the many art lovers who have seen the exhibition bear out President Clement's prophecy in his foreword to the Catalogue, that Atlanta University's spring harvest can indeed be measured by the absolute standard of contemporary art.

"The Thespian Bow" by Lee Gatch, "Chinese Vase" by B. J. O. Nordfeldt, and "Cape Cod Landscape" by Robert Vickrey are admired by visitors at the opening of the Exhibition Gallery.

Charter Day Convocation and Dinner

Mrs. Rufus E. Clement, Madame Pandit and President Clement congratulate John H. Johnson, the convocation speaker.

The sixteenth annual Charter Day Convocation and the traditional Charter Day dinner, honoring new members of the faculty and staff, marked the anniversary of the granting of a charter to the University in October, 1867.

Speaker for the convocation was John H. Johnson, president of the Johnson Publishing Company of Chicago and Los Angeles and a member of the Board of Trustees of Tuskegee Institute, Fisk University, and LeMoyne College. Mr. Johnson, who was named by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce as one of the ten outstanding young men in the United States in 1951, accompanied Vice-President Nixon on his 1957 good will tour of Africa and on his more recent trip to Russia and Poland. He is also a director of the Adult Education Council of Greater Chicago, the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, the Chicago Council of Christians and Jews, and the United Negro College Fund, and a trustee of the National Urban League.

If Negroes who have espoused communism knew what Russia is really like, they would find that the things which they are fighting for do not exist in Russia, he said. Whatever difficulties the American Negro has, they are infinitesimal compared with those he had seen elsewhere, particularly in Russia.

After interviewing Negroes who had gone to live in Russia, he found that it took as long for a Negro to become a plain Russian as it did for him to become a plain American. He also, as he talked with Russians, saw them completely misinformed about the status of the American Negro at home.

He urged Negroes for selfish reasons to try to improve the status of the colored man throughout the world, for even in France and in South America, where there is supposedly no discrimination on the basis of race, the Negro occupies an inferior position, holds the poorest jobs, lacks education. Those privileged by education and opportunity have, therefore, the obligation to lift up the lowliest man and thereby lift up themselves.

To those who thought opportunities were better outside of the United States or under a different system of government, Mr. Johnson said, "The American Negro must make the American system work rather than to try to get a new system. We must work individually and as groups to better things here, for more is being done about racial problems here than is being done about any social problem in other parts of the world."

Special guests at the convocation were Mr. Lawrence MacGregor, chairman of the University Board of Trustees, and Madame Pandit, former president of the General Assembly of the United Nations and at present High Commissioner for India to Great Britain.

Dr. Willis L. James directed the Atlanta-Morehouse-Spelman Chorus in the convocation music.

New members of the faculty introduced at the Charter Day dinner were Dr. Tilman C. Cothran, chairman of the department of sociology and editor of Phylon, Dr. Paul T. Groves, assistant professor of chemistry, Dr. S. C. Saxena, assistant professor of mathematics, Mr. Robert H. Campbell, instructor in French, Miss Virginia Hannon, instructor in Social Work, Mr. J. B. Petrof, instructor in Business Administration, and Miss Fronnie M. Whitehurst, instructor in biology. Dr. Thomas D. Jarrett, department of English, introduced the new members of the faculty.

Dr. Cothran, formerly professor of sociology at Arkansas A. M. and N. College, received his undergraduate education at that institution, his M.A. from Indiana University and his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. He has also been professor of sociology at Dillard University.

After the Charter Day Convocation: President Albert E. Manley of Spelman College, John H. Johnson, Madame Pandit, President Clement, and Lawrence MacGregor, Chairman of the Atlanta University Board of Trustees.

Dr. Saxena, who comes from New Delhi, India, received the B.A. (with honors), the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Delhi. He has also done post-doctoral research, the results of which are now in publication.

Dr. Groves, a graduate of Morehouse College with a M.S. in chemistry from Atlanta University, received his Ph.D. at the August convocation at the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Groves, who has already published in his field, has taught at Grambling College and served as graduate teaching assistant at the University of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Campbell, who graduated from Tougaloo College after which he received the master's degree in education from Atlanta University and in French from Middlebury College, studied at the University of Paris from 1955-57. He was recently assistant professor of French at Huston-Tillotson.

Miss Hannon, with a M.A. from Atlanta University, the M.S.W. from Simmons College and further graduate work at the Smith College School of Social Work, came to the University from the position of Chief Psychiatric Social Worker at the Central State Hospital in Virginia.

Mr. Petrof, a Russian born in Istanbul, Turkey, holds the degrees of B.A. and M.B.A. from Emory University. He has previously worked as a market analyst.

Miss Whitehurst, another Atlanta University graduate, spent 1958-59 studying in Wales as a Merrill Foreign Study Scholar. She is a graduate of North Carolina College with the B.S. degree.

President Clement, who presided at the dinner, introduced the new part-time faculty and the new staff members. In the absence of Dean Samuel Z. Westerfield, School of Business Administration, the following are teaching in that school:

T. M. Alexander, Jr., Mrs. Cassandra Maxwell Birnie, Frederic V. Brooks, Melvin Randolph, Basil Wapensky, and Q. V. Williamson. John S. Blackshear is employed on a part-time basis in the School of Education because of the leave-of-absence granted Dr. Edward K. Weaver.

A surprise feature of the program was the honoring of Mrs. Lyda Kennedy, dietitian for the Atlanta University Dining Hall, for twenty-five years of service to the University. President Clement presented Mrs. Kennedy with a scroll on behalf of the Board of Trustees and the administration.

Eighty-Seven Degrees Awarded

Eighty-seven degrees were awarded at the August Commencement Convocation, six more than the previous summer, bringing to one hundred sixty-six the number for the two 1959 graduations. Sixteen received the master's degree from the School of Arts and Sciences, fifty from the School of Education, eleven from the School of Library Service, nine from the School of Business Administration, and one from the School of Social Work.

The graduating students came from fourteen states and five foreign countries, Ghana, India, Japan, Liberia and South Africa. President Rufus E. Clement awarded the degrees.

Dr. Samuel D. Proctor, president of Virginia Union University, delivering the convocation address, accused university communities of failing to impart personal, social and spiritual values to their students, even though the university, a cohesive, voluntary community, is ideally suited for the transmission of human values.

The news from the campuses is bad, he said, as he cited studies which indicate that there is very little difference between the permanent values of the freshman and the senior. For this Dr. Proctor blamed the teachers, whom he charged with indifference to life's basic issues and with lack of love for young people. The majority of teachers, he said, just want to join a union and get paid whereas real teaching is as much an art as music and painting.

The responsibility of the campus for imparting personal values has been increased by the failure of the home and the mobility of population with resulting anonymity and the destruction of adherence to high personal standards. The church, and particularly Negro ministers, large numbers of whom, Dr. Proctor said, are inadequately trained, were charged with failing to give needed help to students, disturbed by the degree of relativity for the Judeo-Christian ethic resulting from historical study of the Bible.

Dr. Proctor attacked whites whose theories of race were based on spurious anthropology and Negro leaders who protest their interest in race yet turn their backs on the depressed people of their own group. He challenged the graduating class as teachers to teach what a good society should do for its members.

Dr. Proctor became president of Virginia Union in 1955 after having previously served as dean of the School of Religion. In 1953 he spent five months travelling in Europe, Palestine, India and Burma for the Baptist Foreign Missionary Society and in 1958 he toured Soviet Russia and the Baltic States for the Baptist World Alliance. He is a member of the General Council of the National Council of Churches, the Executive Board of the Southern Regional Council and the National Committee for the President's White House Conference on Children and Youth.

The Summer School Program

A dinner meeting of the Counseling and Guidance Institute, financed under the National Defense Act.

The continued increase in the enrollment of the Atlanta University Summer School attests to the growing importance of the University and the associated colleges on the educational scene, not only of Georgia and the Southeast, but of the nation. As usual in the summer, the largest number of students enrolled in the School of Education, 1,014, and, again as usual, those taking graduate work outnumbered the undergraduates. The total enrollment, including those in the Oglethorpe School, still used as a demonstration school although it is now part of the Atlanta Public School System, was 1,920, an increase of 97 over the 1958 figures.

Among the many special programs which attracted students to the Summer School was the Counseling and Guidance Institute, financed by the United States government under the National Defense Act. Seventy-two students, all currently employed in the guidance and counseling field, were enrolled in the institute, where special emphasis was placed on the identification of able secondary school students from impoverished social and educational backgrounds and on the development of techniques to motivate these students. Although the majority of those enrolled were from Georgia, thirteen other states were represented, Alabama, Louisiana, South Carolina, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Indiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Virginia, Tennessee, Florida, North Carolina, and Texas.

Dr. Paul I. Clifford directed the institute. The staff was Dr. Oran W. Eagleson, Spelman College, William M. Nix and Dr. D. L. Boger, both of Morehouse College, and three visiting lecturer-consultants, Dr. Benjamin S. Bloom, University of Chicago, Dr. Arthur W. Coombs, University of Florida, and Dr. Carroll Shartle, Ohio State University.

For the third consecutive summer, the National Science Foundation supported in the Summer School an Institute in Science and Mathematics to which forty-five in-service teachers of high school science and mathematics were admitted. The program consisted in content courses in science and mathematics, some special institute courses, others regular Summer School offerings, as well as seminars with visiting consultants, informal discussions and field trips. Dr. K. A. Huggins of the department of chemistry was director.

Again a workshop in the Language Arts was held, this time as a follow-up of the Phelps-Stokes Fund Project for the Improvement of Teaching in the Secondary Schools. Under a Phelps-Stokes grant twenty students received scholarships to this workshop, which was under the direction of Dr. N. P. Tillman, assisted by Mrs. Lucy Grigsby and Mrs. Myrtle L. Purnell, with Dwight Burton, Florida State University and editor of The English Journal, Paul Farmer, Atlanta Public Schools and past president of the National Council of Teachers of English, and Chandos Reid, assistant to the superintendent, Waterford Township Schools, Pontiac, Michigan, as visiting consultants.

Enriching the academic program were the forum programs and other cultural events.

President Benjamin E. Mays of Morehouse College opened the forum series with a discussion of "Desegregation: A Challenge to the Teacher," in which he challenged the teachers of Negroes to set an example to their students who are not yet conditioned to segregation, as are millions of Negroes alive today who will never walk erect, so that they will walk the earth and work with dignity. He called on his audience to register and vote, to leave their cars at home and ride the trolley, to use the recently desegregated Atlanta Public Library so that "it will not be true as they have said, that they won't have any trouble with us at the library because we can't read anyway." In spite of the pressure being exerted against teachers who support the organizations which are fighting the legal battles of the Negro, he said "Be sane, but don't let anybody make you afraid to support the NAACP."

Speaking on "The South in Transition," Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, characterized those who refused to face the reality of the Supreme Court decision as "naive gropers in a field of unreality." Convinced that the problem "which is grievously and decisively before us is moral as well as social," Mr. McGill emphasized the need for new and responsible leadership from the press, the commentator, and the politician. He also noted the shortsightedness of Southern school leaders, reluctant to ask for federal aid for education because of segregation problems, even though Georgia, using fifty-three cents of every tax dollar for education, is unable to pay its teachers properly.

President Clement, choosing as his subject the promotion of international understanding through education, said that the United States must rid itself of the idea that America has the best of everything and that she should always have her way in international affairs. He urged teachers to take advantage of foreign fellowship programs so that they could gain first-hand knowledge and understanding of other peoples.

United States-Russian policies were analyzed by Dr. Arthur C. Banks, Jr. of the department of political science. On Germany, he said that all the United States can do is to accept the division of Germany without expectation of any lessening of German hostility; of the satellite nations, no hope of revolution, with the only possible policy that of keeping faith with them on the basis of normal relations; of China, the problem of recognition of Red China no longer exists, and the best that can be done is to build up power and influence on the periphery.

An Atlanta attorney, Morris B. Abram, who has carried the county unit suit to the Supreme Court, warned that the Court might reverse its decision on school desegregation unless there is stronger support from the executive branch of the government and continued pressure from public opinion. Mr. Abram criticized the hands-off policy of Eisenhower and his contention that school desegregation is a moral and educational matter rather than a legal matter, saying that, unless those in government educate and moralize about the law, social change is unlikely. To extremists who criticize the Supreme Court for "making law," he replied that this was the historical function of courts under the Anglo-Saxon common law system, that common law is made by judges and juries using reason and experience, not by legislative act.

The prevalence of juvenile delinquency was seen as the logical fruit of today's delinquent culture by the Reverend Homer C. McEwen, pastor of the First Congregational Church and a member of the Citizens Crime Commission. He blamed parents for having a double standard of morality, one for themselves and another for their children; the child is told to be honest, yet he watches his father "turn a quick buck in any way he can." Noting the 10,000 illegitimate Negro pregnancies in Atlanta last year, he said "Why gag at it if our standard of sexual morality is to think it old-fashioned and stuffy to live in a monogamous state, particularly if you can read and write."

Dr. Horace Mann Bond, dean of the School of Education, pled the case of the underprivileged child, who is tested on the basis of education which comes not only from the school but from the home background. An educational system which singles out for attention the child who excels in aptitude tests will inevitably build up a "meritocracy" based on verbalism, with the result that in the end the offspring of the professional classes will be in positions of power, he said.

William Gordon, journalist, who had recently returned from a year in Africa during which he visited fourteen countries, closed the forum series. He gave the audience his first-hand impressions of the extent to which each country had achieved self-determination and of possible future developments. He found the Arabs in North Africa frustrated and emotional, the Negroes in West Africa dedicated to native leadership as they aspired for national recognition, those in the Belgian Congo restricted to the Congo although the best treated in other respects.

For its twenty-sixth season, the Atlanta University Theatre presented three plays under the direction of Baldwin Burroughs, director of the Atlanta-Morehouse-Spelman Players. Two, William Douglas Home's "The Reluctant Debutante" and Agatha Christie's "The Hollow," were competently produced and acted, but the plays themselves were conventional Broadway fare. The third, Molière's farce-comedy "The Doctor In Spite of Himself," captivated both audience and actors as the director abandoned the traditional approach for a stylized version of the commedia dell'arte technique. Here was an example of experimental and creative university theatre at its best. Sets and costumes by William V. Harper II, special music arranged by Colonius Davis, an experienced cast headed by Georgia Allen and Johnny Popwell, with Andrew Phillips, William Greene, Howard Spann, William Dease, Mildred Graves, Henry Chavers, Judith Allen, and Marquette Mapp, all contributed to making this the type of production on which the reputation of the Summer Theatre is built.

This is not said to belittle the performances of Mrs. Allen, Ray McIver, Mr. Popwell, Miss Allen, supported by Miriam Jellins, Marie Thomas, Melvin McCraw and June King, in "The Reluctant Debutante," a comedy which lampoons the upperclass British practice of marketing their marriageable daughters, or of Gracie Alexander, Mr. Chavers, Miss Jellins, Blanche Dobbs, Mr. Greene, Lonnie Cross, Desiree Jett, Sarlyn Hicks, Mr. Popwell, Nese Harper, Lewis Blakeley and Roland Haines in "The Hollow," a less than run-of-the-mill Christie thriller.

Baldwin W. Burroughs, director, and Carlton Molette, technician, in the Summer Theatre's presentation of "The Hollow."

Mr. Burroughs was assisted by Carlton Molette as technician.

Reviews of four books in a series sponsored by the School of Library Service contributed further to the cultural offerings of the Summer School. Dr. Virginia Lacy Jones, dean of the School of Library Service, opened the series with a review of The American Sex Revolution by Pitirim A. Sorokin. For the second program two books were discussed, Ordway Tead's The Climate of Learning, reviewed by Dr. Melvin Watson, dean of the School of Religion at Morehouse College, and G. G. William's Some of My Best Friends Are Professors, reviewed by Dr. James B. McRae, Dean of Students, Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, and a member of the Summer School faculty. The final review of Corliss Lamont's The Illusion of Immortality, was presented by Dr.

Frank Cunningham, president of Morris Brown College.

An excellent program by the thirty-six voice Summer Chorus under the direction of Dr. Willis L. James closed the Summer School entertainment series. The varied program of religious music, unusual secular numbers, and spirituals, the last arranged by Dr. James, included Handel's "Thanks Be to Thee, O Lord," the Hallelujah Chorus, Rachmaninoff's "Triumph Thanksgiving," and Rodgers' "You'll Never Walk Alone."

Appearing with the Chorus were ten soloists, Mrs. Naomi Huggins, Mrs. Nell Henry, Mrs. Sylvia Jones, Walter Felder, J. McCarter, James Edwards, Harvey Miller, Eddie Meredith, Lillian Williams and Travas Long. Dr. Grace Boggs was accompanist.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. WALTER R. CHIVERS (CARRIE MASON GARTRELL), M.A. in sociology, 1946, died suddenly in Atlanta on September 25. Mrs. Chivers was on the faculty of Morehouse College.

MRS. FREDERICK D. FUNDERBURG (ETHEL WEST-MORELAND), Normal 1914, died in Monticello, Georgia, on August 15.

ADDISON RAMSEY, 1929, of Louisville, Kentucky, died in June of this year.

E. L. SIMON, SR., 1900, died in Atlanta on September 1 at the age of eighty-two.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

PHYLON BOARD

Dr. Tilman C. Cothran, newly appointed chairman of the department of sociology, has been named editor of Phylon, the University's quarterly review of race and culture. Mrs. Lucy C. Grigsby and Mrs. Helen M. Coulborn have been made associate editors. Dr. Thomas D. Jarrett continues as book review and poetry editor. Added to the Editorial Board are Dr. Horace Mann Bond and Dean Whitney M. Young, Jr. New advisory editors are Everett C. Hughes, professor of sociology, University of Chicago, Hylan G. Lewis, special project director, Health and Welfare Council, Washington, D. C., Wilson Record, associate professor of social science, Sacramento State College, George E. Simpson, professor of sociology, Oberlin College, and Howard Zinn, associate professor of history and social science, Spelman College.

STUDENTS DECORATE TREES

A group from the University received two prizes at Christmas for decoration of trees in the county hospitals, first prize for the tree at Hughes Spalding Hospital and fourth for that in the Pediatric Clinic for Colored Children. Mrs. Josephine D. Murphy organized the group, which was composed of James Vineyard, Frances Glover and Mrs. Warren Scott.

EXHIBIT OF FRENCH BOOKS

Approximately one thousand French books were on exhibit in the Trevor Arnett Library from September 27 through October 7. This was a circulating exhibition sent out by the French Embassy. The fields of tion, and cultural life were represented. Included in the collection were volumes of reproductions of French art as well as illustrated texts on the history and technique. A French-speaking student served as attendant.

Dr. Helen R. Wright

SOCIAL WORK SUPERVISORS

fine arts, letters, science, education. The thirteenth annual Supervisors Institute of the School of Social Work heard Dr. Helen R. Wright, dean emeritus of the University of Chicago School of Social Administration, say that American social workers should make known the service they could give to underdeveloped countries. Drawing on her experience of three years as head of the India Project of the Council of Social Work Education, Dr. Wright said that social work techniques as learned in the United States would be applicable to other countries, for example in overcoming resistance to change. Although she found that short visits by social workers from other countries to the United States were not helpful, a longer period of study, perhaps of a year or more, might be if the students were carefully chosen. One difficulty in such a training program was the lack of experienced supervision after the students returned home.

Attending the institute were twenty-four caseworkers from the out-of-town agencies where Atlanta University students do their block field work, as well as the local supervisors. Agencies in Pennsylvania, Michigan, New York, Illinois, Ohio, North Carolina, Indiana, and Maryland were represented.

The institute considered the theme "Formulation of Objectives and Learning Experiences for Field Instruction" in general meetings and small groups during the three-day conference.

FELLOWSHIP STUDENTS

Of the students who received the $1000 regional fellowships for the 1959-60 academic year five are enrolled in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, the rest in Business Administration, Library Service and Social Work. The successful applicants are: Carl Gaines Jackson, Baltimore, Maryland, graduate of Morgan State College, French; Barbara R. Gallashaw, Charleston, South Carolina, South Carolina State College, mathematics; Willie Lamar Reese, Cleveland, Ohio, Central State College, French; James David Vineyard, Springfield, Illinois, Blackburn College, mathematics; Gladis Novell, Atlanta, Morris Brown College, Business Administration; Maxine W. Weston, Thomasville, Georgia, Clark College, School of Library Service; Lindsey Branch Johnson, Little Rock, Arkansas, Morehouse College, mathe-

The fellowships are awarded to students with superior academic ability on a regional basis.

TOWN MEETINGS

The Town Meetings, sponsored by the political science departments in the Center, opened in October with a panel discussion of the meaning of Khrushchev's visit to the United States. Appearing on the program were President Benjamin E. Mays of Morehouse College, Miss Marian Wright, Spelman political science major, a Merrill Foreign Study student who had spent the past summer in Russia, and Miss Joyce Ross, social science major from Clark College.

In December the relation of the current television scandals to the American system of values was discussed by the Reverend Samuel W. Williams, department of philosophy, Morehouse College, and two students, Daniel Mitchell, Clark College, and Miss Jewell Walker, Morris Brown College.

Dr. Samuel D. Cook, department of political science, Atlanta University, serves as moderator.

HERMAN LONG FORUM SPEAKER

Dr. Herman H. Long, authority on race relations and director of the Race Relations Department of the American Missionary Society at Fisk University, was presented by the School of Arts and Sciences in a public forum in November. Dr. Long discussed "Race Relations Consensus and Public Policy."

Dr. Long said that domination of public policy should now be the goal of those interested in improving intergroup relations. "Prejudice is not predictable, but there is a capacity for adaptability in public behavior, if not in private commitment, as long as there is public policy."

He labeled as false such conclusions as that improvement in the status of the minority group had led to the worsening of race relations and that minority groups should agree to some sort of moratorium so that change can take place at a leisurely pace. Neither did he find intergroup conflict harmful, saying "Where there is change in group status, tension is inevitable."

Greater initiative on the part of the minority had resulted from its improved status, which has been accompanied by a new awareness and self-respect gained against obstacles, even on the national level.

SCIENCE INSTITUTE AGAIN

Atlanta University will continue to participate for the National Science Foundation program for the improvement of the teaching of science and mathematics in the secondary schools. Support for a second academic-year institute has been awarded for 1960-61 and for a fourth summer institute in 1960. For the 1960-61 institute there will be stipends, tuition and other payments for forty-eight students, whereas the summer institute will enroll forty-five students.

The purpose of the institutes is to bring teachers up-to-date in the subject matter of the rapidly developing sciences. Courses in mathematics, biology and chemistry especially scheduled for the institutes will be offered, although participants enroll in a certain number of the regular University courses. Dr. K. A. Huggins is the director.

Atlanta University was the first institution in Georgia to receive a grant from the Foundation and is one of thirty-three which will have a 1960-61 academic-year program.

BOOK REVIEWS

The School of Library Service presented three book reviews during the first semester: Robert Bone's The Negro Novel in America, reviewed by Dr. A. Russell Brooks, department of English, Morehouse College; Vance Packard's The Status Seekers, reviewed by Dr. Tilman C. Cothran, chairman of the department of sociology, Atlanta University, and editor of Phylon; and Jacques Barzun's House of Intellect, by Samuel M. Johnson, field counsellor of the National Board of Missions of the United Presbyterian Church.

Billie Geter Thomas as Hecuba and Marilyn Price as Cassandra in the Atlanta-Morehouse-Spelman Players production of "The Trojan Women."

The Status Seekers was subjected to a scathing attack by Dr. Cothran, who said "The book is unacceptable to the social scientist and the general reader should be warned that the author uses value judgments and research material without distinguishing between them."

ATLANTA-MOREHOUSE-SPELMAN PLAYERS

The Atlanta-Morehouse-Spelman Players exhibited their usual excellence in two very different plays, Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer-Prize winning "The Skin of Our Teeth," a quasi-allegorical story of mankind, and Euripides' "The Trojan Women," which was presented in the round, directed respectively by J. Preston Cochran and Baldwin Burroughs. Samuel Bromfield, Atlanta University sociology student and holder of the Walter Francis White Scholarship given by the National Alumni Association, gave convincing performances as Mr. Antrobus in "The Skin of Our Teeth" and as Menelaus in "The Trojan Women."

Because of the intense emotional nature of "The Trojan Women," the leading roles were assigned to experienced players from the Summer Theatre, Billie Geter Thomas, who played Hecuba, Georgia Allen, as Andromache, and Nese Harper, as Helen.

ENROLLMENT INCREASES

The official figures for the fall enrollment show an increase of sixty-three students over last year's first semester registration, with 598 students in attendance. The greatest increases are in the departments of mathematics, chemistry, and biology.

Seventeen are foreign students, four from Hong Kong, three from India, four from Nigeria, and one each from Ghana, Greece, Jamaica, Liberia, Sierra Leone, and the Virgin Islands. The remaining students represent twenty-four states and the District of Columbia. New York, with eleven students, ranks highest among the non-Southern states.

SCHOOL OF SOCIAL WORK FEATURED

The School of Social Work of Atlanta University was the subject of a feature pictorial article in the October issue of Ebony magazine. The article noted that the school, one of six fully accredited in the South, is the oldest and largest, the only school of social work in the state of Georgia. It included the history of the school and pictures of faculty and students, as well as scenes from the Atlanta University campus.

The faculty, alumni and guests of the School of Library Service attending the meeting of the American Library Association on June 25 in Washington, D. C., held a dinner meeting. Pictured in the center is Dean Virginia L. Jones with Mrs. Hallie B. Brooks, member of the faculty, and William W. Bennett, alumnus and librarian of the Trevor Arnett Library at her right. Other alumni attending were Mrs. Roberta Brooks Shearin, Mrs. O. Juamita Johnson McLean, Mrs. Julia Mosley Shields, Mrs. Bessie Davis Randall, D. F. Davis, Mrs. Agnes Maddox Jones, Mrs. Edythe Wimbish Thomas, Mrs. Sarah Bond Davis, Mrs. Evelyn Combs Harris, Mrs. Ella Gaines Sydnor, Miss Joyce C. Daughtrey, Mrs. Cheney Washington, Hardy R. Franklin, Mrs. Effie Lee Morris, Mrs. Ida Polk Bouier, John Curry, Miss Grace Epps, Miss Eva Williams, and Mrs. Hilda F. Clark.

FACULTY ITEMS

Dr. Rushton Coulborn, department of history, appeared on the program of the Southern Historical Association, meeting in Atlanta in November, as critic of two papers in the ancient history section. In December he attended the meeting of the American Anthropological Association in Mexico City and served as discussant of a paper on "Feudalism in Ethiopia and Europe."

His rejoinder to comments on his article, "The State and Religion: Iran, India, and China," appeared in a recent issue of Comparative Studies in Society and History.

* * *

Dr. Paul T. Groves, department of chemistry, is the author with N. C. Deno and George Saines of an article entitled "Carbonium Ions VIII: Diarylalkyl Cation — Diarylolefin Equilibria," which appeared in the Journal of the American Chemical Society, LXXXI (1959).

Dr. Groves was the recipient of fellowship funds from the National Science Foundation and the American Chemical Society as he completed the work for his Ph.D. at Pennsylvania State University. He received the degree at the August convocation.

In September Mr. Harm was appointed to the Fulton County Advisory Council on Illegitimacy and Adoptions and is at present chairman of the sub-committee on Illegitimacy and the Multi-Problem Family. Participating in a staff training program at the Atlanta Penitentiary in October, he led a discussion on the dynamics of groups.

Sociological Abstracts has added Mr. Harm's name to its list of abstractors.

Dr. Horace Mann Bond, dean of the School of Education, presided on November 4 at a dinner for President Seke Toure of Guinea given in New York by the American Society of African Culture. On November 1-3 he was in Washington, D. C., attending a conference on Incentive in Higher Education sponsored by the American Council on Education Committee on Inequality in Higher Education, of which he is a member.

Dr. Bond's speaking engagements include the high school commencement address at Mayfield, Kentucky, on May 29; discussion of "Nationalism in Africa" and "Wasted Talents" at the Fisk University Race Relations Institute in July; an address on "Evaluating College Experiences" at Fort Valley State College on September 16; a convocation address at Texas Southern University, September 24, on "Academic Excellence"; an address at the annual meeting of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, October 16, Florida A. and M. University, on "Africa: An Area of Study in Writing Negro History"; and a discussion of "Aiding Youth to Compete Academically" at the meeting of the Eastern District of the North Carolina Teachers Association, November 13, Wilson, North Carolina.

Dr. Bond's book Search for Talent, first published by the Harvard University Press in February of this year, went into a second printing in August.

Dr. Joseph Golden, School of Social Work, is the author of an article entitled "Facilitating Factors in Negro-White Inter-marriage" which appeared in the Fall Quarter issue of Phylon.

In November Dr. Golden led a discussion of "Methods in Intergroup Relations" for the Ahaveth Achim Congregation. In December he spoke on "The Nature and Problems of Social Work Research" at the Southern Regional Education Board conference on Research in Social Work, and participated in the National Association of Social Workers' Task Force on Personnel Problems.

* * *

Dr. Virginia Lacy Jones, dean of the School of Library Service, attended the annual meetings of the American Library Association and of the Association of American Library Schools in Washington, D. C., in June. She has been appointed to the recruitment committee of the latter organization.

William W. Bennett, librarian of the Trevor Arnett Library, spoke at the dedication of the Margaret Rood Hazard Library at Albany State College on October 5, taking as a subject "Open Versus Closed Library Book Stacks." In November he was speaker at the assembly program celebrating National Children's Book Week at Fort Valley State College, where he discussed "Exploring Through Books: Our Great Challenge." He was also Children's Book Week speaker at meetings of the John Hope Elementary School and Turner High School PTA's.

Participating in a March of Dimes Regional Campaign Training Program at Tuskegee Institute in November, Mr. Bennett discussed a money-raising project, "Pancake Bake," which had been used in Atlanta. He has recently been named to the School Library Standards Committee of the American Association of School Libraries.

Mrs. Gwendolyn M. Drayne, School of Education, studied during the summer at the University of Chicago under a fellowship grant. She is working toward the professional diploma in reading.

The National Alumni Association

Students and faculty at the tea held in September by the Alumni Association

New Alumni Clubs

The continued growth of the Alumni Association is reflected in the organization of two more local alumni clubs. In Macon, Georgia, the newly formed group has announced the election of William Travis, M. Ed. 1952, as president, Ola Ramsay, as secretary, and Cleopatra Love, history 1935, as program chairman. Also there is an active group in the San Francisco Bay area with a roster of twenty-six active members according to the last information received. Louis H. Bronson of Vallejo, California, is president of this group and Miss Marjorie Alexander of Berkeley is secretary. The alumni of the School of Social Work in this area had been organized previously, but now the graduates of all the University have been added to the group. Myron H. Johnson, formerly a member of the Executive Committee of the National Alumni Association, has been active in the formation of the club and promises more about their activities for the next Bulletin.

Students Entertained

Dean Sage Hall was the scene of the reception given at the close of Summer School for the graduating class and their families, the faculty and staff. Four students responded to the welcome given them to the Alumni Association, Mrs. Carolyn Belden Rhodes of Mobile, Alabama, for the School of Library Service, Mrs. Angeline Toles of Monrovia, Liberia, for the School of Education, John Eaves of Jacksonville, Florida, for the School of Arts and Sciences, and Mahesh C. Jain of India, now teaching at Dillard, for the School of Business Administration. Mrs. Eloise Martin was in charge of the reception. The traditional fall tea was held in the University Dormitories with the students furnishing the music for the informal gathering.

Alumni President in Europe

Mrs. Josephine D. Murphy, president of the National Alumni Association, a member of the National Board of the Women's International League of Peace and Freedom and president of the Atlanta branch, attended the international meeting of the organization in Stockholm, Sweden, July 27-31. In her six weeks trip she also visited Switzerland, England, Germany, France, Russia, Denmark, and Finland.

Before the opening of the conference, she spent July 19-25 at an International UNESCO Seminar, arranged by the Danish section of the International League, held in Copenhagen. Here the agenda for the Stockholm meeting were formulated. Nineteen countries were represented at the conference by 362 women, thirteen of them from the United States.

Mrs. Murphy spent eleven days in Russia, eight in Moscow, three in Leningrad. In Moscow she visited the Children's Hospital where she was impressed by the fact that 97% of Moscow doctors and 75% of all Russian doctors are women. She found Russian children the best behaved and the most advanced in education of any she saw. She visited in the schools, which are in session twelve months of the year. In Finland she inspected the youth hostels and was especially interested in one run by the students of the University of Finland.

Two of the new friends whom Mrs. Murphy made abroad have already visited her and Atlanta University, Dr. Nellie Weiss of London, a member of the International League, and Bishop Friedrich Wunderlich of Frankfurt, Germany.

Walter White Scholarship

The annual Walter F. White Scholarship, a $500 award given to a student in the department of sociology, was granted to Samuel Bromfield. Mr. Bromfield is a graduate of City College, New York.
