FROM THE EDITOR

by
Calvin Mathes

First of all, I would like to express my thanks to all those who are beginning to show constructive interest in our publication. We have a better staff this year than ever before. We have new additions to a few of the old staff members who remain.

We are striving to give you a better looking and a more interesting variety of news than previously printed by the staff. Our only regret is that present policy will allow us to publish only one issue for September and October, and one for November and December. With your unselfish help, we hope to change this policy as soon as possible. Nevertheless, this gives us a chance to concentrate on quality. So we will strive to make the best of the present situation while it lasts.

COLLEGE POETRY

SOCIETY

Dear Editor,

The American College Poetry Society is pleased to announce that its fourth semesterly anthology of outstanding college poetry is now being compiled for publication early next year. We would appreciate it if you would alert interested students on your campus to this opportunity to have their work published.

Contributions must be the original work of the student (who shall retain literary rights to the material), submitted to the undersigned, care of the Society, with the entrant's name, address, and school on each page. Poems, which may deal with any subject, may not exceed 48 lines, nor may any individual submit more than five poems. Entries which are not accepted for publication will be returned if accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope, but they cannot be otherwise acknowledged, nor can the Society compensate students for poetry which is published. All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, December 9, 1960, to be considered, and the decisions of the Society judges are final.

We are very grateful for your kind cooperation in this project. Without the assistance of the college newspapers and magazines of the United States and Canada, the first three anthologies could not have succeeded as they did.

Yours truly,

Alan C. Fox

Executive Secretary

Readers Digest Press Kit Service New Addition

A new feature has been added to the Wolverine Observer. The students of Morris Brown will have the benefit of reading in their paper articles from the Reader's Digest. Negotiations have been completed which will enable the Wolverine Observer to be the recipient of a Press Kit containing advance proofs and news releases based on articles from forthcoming issues of the Reader's Digest.

CARTOON QUIPS

One man talking politics with friend: "We've had a piano player and a golfer. You know who I'd like to see get in now? A bowler."

Small boy to mother: "Daddy took me to the zoo. One animal came in and paid $33.80 across the board."

One policeman to another: "Ever get one of those days when nothing seems to go wrong?"

Small son to parents bringing home quadruplets: "We'd better start calling folks. They're gonna be harder to get rid of than kittens."

Woman complaining to receptionist in doctor's office: "All he does is make an appointment for me to see another specialist! Is he really a doctor, or just a booking agent?"

Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Nominations Begin

Princeton, N. J., October 3:—An election campaign promising rich rewards for the successful candidates gets under way today as thousands of faculty members from universities and colleges in the United States and Canada begin to nominate college seniors for Woodrow Wilson graduate fellowships.

In announcing the opening of the competition for the academic year 1961-62, Dr. Hugh Taylor, President of the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation, estimated that well over 9,000 students will be nominated by the closing date of October 31.

Designed to reduce a nation-wide shortage of qualified college teachers, the program annually awards 1000 fellowships for first year graduate study at any university of the recipient's choice in the United States or Canada. Candidates are elected only after rigorous screen-

First Meeting of the Sociology Club

The Sociology Club met Wednesday October 12, at 10:00 a.m. for yearly organization. Dr. Robinson spoke and opened the meeting. Mr. Rufus Stroud took over to act as chairman and Miss Mildred Taylor was appointed to act as secretary. A few objectives were given by Mr. Stroud and the house was opened for the election of officers. The day of regular meeting was set for Monday of each week at 1:00 p.m. in room 201.

Due to the fact that several people had to leave for classes at Morehouse College, the election of officers was postponed until the next meeting.

THE RE WILL BE ONLY TWO

There will be only two issues of the Wolverine Observer this semester. The first is expected to be published in October, 1960, and the second in December, 1960. However, we expect to remedy this state of affairs by the second semester and go back on a monthly basis beginning January, 1961. Actually, we need more volunteer workers to show the business manager that we are eager to print the Observer on a monthly basis. Won't you help us to strengthen our staff and create more enthusiasm for our publication?

Is This The Morris Brown Football Team??

Many are wondering if it is. Questions are being asked, Maybe the loss, through graduation, of some of the key men of last year's Purple Wolverines had some undesirable effect; or maybe there is some other reason.

We only know that we feel let down, a terrible thing to experience—that let down feeling.

There have been four games and three consecutive losses. Fellas, do you remember these dates: September 17, and 24, and October 1. We were beginning to feel cold despair until Bethune Cookman fell prey to the savage attack of the rejuvenated Wolverines.

Before this issue is off the press you will have met Florida A. and M. There is little we can do but pray for you. We have been left very little to "go on".

We do know this, also; you cannot rest on your laurels. You cannot win today's games by dreaming of yesterday's glory. You must grow up sometime. You have to realize that you are letting the men down who are gone. Your longings can't bring them back on the team. Show us something spectacular in the next few games; for we are hopeful and are pulling for you as we always do.

Clark is probably beginning to feel that her day may have come, so let us disappoint her with a crashing victory, as usual, in the traditional "turkey day" classic.

Open Letter To Morris Brown College

Dear Fellow Brownites,

I hardly know where to begin. I was quite unhappy after we lost our first football game to North Carolina; and as I started home, I wondered how I could come back to the "Victory" dance. Some victory!

When I got home, I didn't know what to do to pass the time away. Then the doorbell rang. When I opened the door, there stood Lonnie King and Benjamin Brown, leaders of the Atlanta University Center Student Movement.

What on earth could they want? After a short conversation I discovered that I had been accepted for a cashier's job at Food Town, a North West Super Market, to which I had applied for work during the month of July.

Ben and Lonnie waited until I redressed and drove me to the store for an interview with Mr. Jordan, the Food Town manager, who was quite pleasant and who treated us with every courtesy.

On Monday, September 19, I was to begin a two-day orientation course at the National Cash Register Company to learn the techniques of operating the register. Once the course was completed, everything was all set. I would work Friday evenings and all day Saturday.

As you can imagine, the dance that night was a victory dance after all!

On Sunday afternoon, I talked with Dean Wilson and Professor Dickson of Morris Brown, and both agreed to help me by carrying out my registration for the first semester while I went to orientation classes downtown. At this point, I must mention the fact that we have some wonderful people at Morris Brown, for my instructors all agreed, in my absence, to enroll me in their respective classes.

My course at the Cash Register Company turned out fine. I made remarkable progress and my instructor was pleased with my success. The same views were expressed by my employer when he received the examination papers.

My first day at work was one of uncertainty, but later became somewhat of a relaxed routine. Everyone was nice to me and helped me in every way possible to make me feel comfortable. They succeeded, for before the evening was over, I felt that I belonged behind my cash register.

Now I feel that everything will be fine. New highways are being opened, fellow Brownites, and I am happy that I was chosen to be a trail-blazer. The date September 17, 1960 will go down in history as a "DAY OF VICTORY" for all Brownites whom I represent, though we lost that game!

The Price for Freedom

Donald J. Wilson

What is the price of freedom? The real question is, how long can white America bear the cost of bigotry? "Discrimination," says market research consultant Elmo Roper, "is an economic luxury this country cannot afford." In 1959, says Roper, "racial discrimination alone robbed the economy of $15 billion of unearned—and unspent—income. When all the direct and indirect costs or all the varieties of discrimination are taken into consideration, the full cost of this drainage is probably twice that of the color bar alone." As long as the Negro remains half slave and half free, this country can never attain its full measure of greatness, nor can it maintain its present leadership among other nations of the world.

Since February 1, hundreds of Negro students have cheerfully gone behind bars, for the sacrificial altar of Negro freedom has shifted from civil war to lunch counters; from the freeing of men's bodies to the freeing of men's souls. Often abused, intimidated, beaten, and even put to death, the Negro is "paying heavily" for rights long earned but still denied him, and for privileges so freely granted to everyone else, even to the world known enemies like Nikita Krushchev and Fidel Castro.

Here in the South alone, local laws requiring dual facilities are costing millions of dollars in lost industries. Hotel and restaurant discrimination discourage national conventions, further curtailing potential revenue. Nothing that Montgomery had sold its zoo, closed its public pools, parks and tennis courts to avoid intergration. Harry Golden, a well-known satirist, said: "Pretty soon Montgomery won't have Montgomery."

But the Negro is not alone in his fight. Seeing Southern Negro students fighting for human dignity evoked the admiration and aroused the social consciousness of Northern white students from coast to coast. They formed local picket lines, held campus demonstrations and set up fund-raising organizations to support their Dixie colleagues; but, like white abolitionists of yesterday and the Negro every day, they, too, pay dearly for their belief in the freedom of man.

Paying dearly for freedom is an old historical precedent. Each noteworthy age and every surviving people have produced their freedom fighters—those who have fought, suffered and died that they might be free. Some great leaders are present today. Let us follow them wherever they go, for they will pay the price, the price of freedom.

Top Movie of the Month

Good Housekeeping magazine will present a Special Award of Merit to THE ALAMO, the twelve-million-dollar production in which John Wayne produces, stars, and directs. The award, to be given to Wayne later this month, will be presented by Wade H. Nichols, Editor of the magazine.

"This marks the first time in its seventy-five years of publishing that Good Housekeeping has honored a motion picture," Nichols said. "We are motivated by a belief that this fine presentation of great event in our national history deserves special recognition."

THE ALAMO, filmed entirely in Brackettville, Texas, was written by James Edward Grant and used one of the largest casts in motion picture history. Starring with Wayne in the picture are Richard Widmark, Laurence Harvey, Frankie Avalon, Linda Cristal, and Joan O'Brien and guest star Richard Boone. Made in Technicolor and with music by Dimitri Tiomkin, THE ALAMO will be released through United Artists in late October in key cities across the country.

Automation In Foreign Language Teaching

Hollins, Va.-(I.P.)—Hollins College has been awarded a grant of $68,000 by the Carnegie Corporation for the development of automatic teaching in the area of foreign languages. The principal investors of this grant will be Maurice W. Sullivan, chairman of the modern language department, and Allen D. Calvin, associate professor of psychology.

The new structural linguistic approach to learning a foreign language, initiated by professor Sullivan, has placed the Hollins language department in the forefront of language development. The Carnegie Corporation sent a member of its staff to investigate the possibilities of automating the teaching of modern languages. On the basis of the staff report, the Corporation felt that the ideas advanced in the proposal were worthy of large scale support.

Professor Sullivan has a number of related ideas in this area of automating the teaching of modern languages, including such notions as that of an "aural-oral" machine. This machine will enable the average student "to attain fluency levels previously out of reach to all except a few extremely gifted language students. This will be accomplished without text books, homework, or any of the usual accompaniments of learning," Dr. Calvin predicts.

"It is exciting developments such as these which are usually restricted only to major universities, such as Harvard, Yale, etc., which is fast giving Hollins the reputation for being one of the outstanding liberal arts colleges in the country. Our students will obtain the benefits of higher education without waiting for the research improvements to trickle down from other educational centers," Dr. Calvin stated.

Inside Alpha

by Willie Mae Keith

When Winston Waymer approached me with his proposition I hardly knew what to say. So Barbara Willingham was the new "Miss Alpha," and I was to help surprise her! How could I possibly keep the news to myself until Friday? It was Wednesday then, and I became filled with the excitement of planning the cocktail reception!

I couldn't convince Barbara that she should accompany me to a supposedly "small gathering of Atlanta University students" at my aunt's home, so John Goodlett and Florence Willingham entered the picture. They cooperated fully, and Friday night at 10:00 p.m. everything went off like clockwork. The party was at the home of Mrs. Margaret Mapp who is a genius at planning and preparing for a cocktail gathering.

When Barbara left play rehearsal John Goodlett and Alton Robinson brought her by the house under false pretenses, and when she discovered that she was the guest of honor, you should have seen her face! She was honestly the most speechless individual you ever saw! She scolded each and every one of us, however, and then settled back to enjoy the entertainment. The President, Alton Robinson, made a formal presentation to her which verified the report that she was to reign as "Miss Alpha 1960-61" after which she responded gracefully.

The Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity will never forget the queen who accepted her crown wearing pink and green tennis shoes and sporting a weary face and a disheveled hairdo, and I shall never forget the part that I was permitted to play in making this event a success.

Seven Pillsbury Awards Announced for Economics Majors

These awards include:

The Pillsbury Award for 1961—The award winner will receive a unique "on-the-job" training fellowship. For one year, beginning July 1, 1961, she will be Associate Director of the Pillsbury Junior Home Service Center. This position has been carefully planned to afford her a wide range of practical experience in home economics-in-business. In addition to her salary of $4,500, she will receive a grant of $1,000.

The Junior Home Service Center is a consumer service department which seeks to meet young people's needs for information and guidance on food preparation and homemaking. The Center has its own staff, offices and equipment, located in the Minneapolis, Minnesota, headquarters of The Pillsbury Company.

Six Pillsbury Honor Awards—Six finalists for The Pillsbury Awards will receive Honor Awards of $250.

Citations for all approved applicants. Each college may submit up to, but not more than five applications for the awards. Applications are first screened by the college Scholarship and Awards Committee, or its equivalent. In recognition of the fact that applicants who have thus been screened and approved by their college represent the finest type of home economics student, Pillsbury will this year present a Citation to all approved applicants. These Citations will be sent to the Department of Home Economics for presentation on Awards night or other appropriate occasion.

Requisites: Applicants for the awards must be outstanding home economics students with an overall grade average in the upper quartile of their home economics graduating class. Applicants must be unmarried; able to meet and deal with people easily and effectively; have an interest in young people; be able to express themselves well, in both speech and writing.

Ford Foundation

INTERNSHIP IN ADMINISTRATIVE CAREERS
The Ford Foundation has selected the institution of the College-Federal Advisory Council, second U.S. Civil Service Region, to participate in a five-year experimental internship program sponsored by the Ford Foundation and designed to stimulate interest among college undergraduates in administrative careers in public service.

The central feature of the program is an internship in a Second Region Federal installation on a full-time basis during the summer between the junior and senior college year, continuing part-time during the senior year. Stipends of $400 will be awarded each student for the summer's work, with an additional stipend, according to individual need for work during the 1961-62 academic year.

Nelson E. Taylor, Jr., Assistant Professor of Political Science, has been named campus coordinator at Vassar College, to interview and screen the student applicants and to be responsible for academic supervision of those selected.

President Sarah Gibson Blanding said, in accepting the invitation: "Vassar's involvement in this program is consistent with its new curriculum. The revised curriculum emphasizes independent work and strengthens the liberal arts training which is more and more recognized by business and the professions as important preparation for a career in our complex society. The establishment of this new internship program indicates that the Federal agencies are looking for young people with good general backgrounds who can be trained for the specific job."

Personality of the Month

by Eloise Gay

Among the many pleasant faces I have seen this year, I wish to spotlight as this month's personality, Marilyn Lyde, a freshman.

Marilyn, who is one of twelve children, comes from a small town. During her last four years at the high school she attended, she remained on the honor roll and became an honor student. Marilyn has very high ideals concerning her life and wishes to make the most of it. Hence, she was chosen by her classmates as "best all-around girl of the senior class".

Behind her bashfulness, which is a part of her character, Marilyn has a beautiful singing voice. She says that "I often wonder if I were actually born singing. Ever since I can remember, singing has been my favorite past time."

She is now a first soprano in Morris Brown's College Choir. Marilyn seems to be admired by all of her friends and classmates, and I am sure that MB's students welcome her wonderful talent. Here's hoping that you grasp all the opportunities that await you, and that someday you will find your place in the stellar firmament.

of fifteen regional committees of unpaid personal interviews by one of them. Each elected fellow receives a $1500 stipend for living expenses plus full tuition and books allowance.

The program is open to college graduates mainly in the humanities and social sciences. Both men and women are eligible, and there is no limit on the age of the candidate or on the number of years he may have been out of college. Those who receive awards are not asked to commit themselves to college teaching, but merely to "consider it seriously" as a possible career.

The program, designed to encourage college seniors of outstanding ability to study for advanced degrees with faculty jobs as their goal, is administered by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation under a $24,500,000 five year grant from the Ford Foundation.

Dr. Hans Rosenhaupt, National Director of the Wilson Fellowship Foundation, in an analysis of the past year's activities, reported that the highly selected grants have been awarded to graduates from 560 different colleges. This is convincing proof that many colleges throughout the country, not only the few well-known ones, offer high quality education. Almost 90 per cent of all the 1000 Fellows in 1959-60 continued study after the first year, and more than 75 per cent of all Fellows eventually end up in academic positions. Of the nominated candidates who failed to win Woodrow Wilson Fellowships more than 80 per cent, Dr. Rosenhaupt said, went on to graduate school anyway, often with financial help from other sources. He estimated the annual need for new college teachers at 30,000 a year for the next ten years.

The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation does not accept applications directly from students. Every candidate for the award must be nominated by a faculty member. Nominated students are invited to declare themselves active candidates for the award by sending the necessary application forms to the chairman of the selection committee for the region in which the prospective candidate is now located. A list of the fifteen regions and the names of the regional chairmen may be obtained from the Foundation's national headquarters, Box 642, Princeton, New Jersey, or from the Woodrow Wilson representative on any campus in the United States and Canada. Names of fellowship winners will be made known by March 15, 1961.

Come Again? Busy Campus Bachelor Is Big Wash 'n Wear Booster

No doubt about it, the campus bachelor is fast becoming one of the staunchest boosters of wash 'n wear.

And who can blame him? He can save from 12 to 15 dollars a month on laundry and dry cleaning alone. Nowadays it's not unusual for the average student to have three or four shirts, at least two pairs of slacks (winter variety, included) and possibly one or even two summer and winter suits — all wash 'n wear.

Besides the economy angle, the student living away from home likes the built-in emergency factor of wash 'n wear. No matter how desperate the school-night situation, he can always peel off what he's wearing, pop it into the washbowl, and be all set to meet the next day's challenge.

With today's equally marvelous washday products, he doesn't have to be a laundry expert either. Excellent soaps and detergents and special wash and rinse conditioners such as Calgon do most of the work for him.

(Because short, low temperature wash cycles are mandatory for most wash 'n wear fabrics, soaps and detergents are less soluble, less effective, and therefore much more difficult to remove during rinsing. Calgon guarantees complete removal of all laundry products, thus preventing premature yellowing or greying.)

Unlike his feminine counterpart, the male co-ed reads and follows the hang-tags religiously. No tattle-tale grey for this fastidious guy.

Wolverines Break Ice

In a thrilling contest: held in Herndon Stadium the MIGHTY WOLVERINES rose from despair of three losses, and defeated the Bethune Cookman College Wildcats, 20-2.

The Wolverines, led by fullback Calvin "Bull" Thomas who scored 12 points literally crushed the 115 on the ground. They gained 226 yards on the ground as compared to Bethune's 170.

The Wolverines hit pay dirt the first time they got their hands on the ball. After forcing Bethune to punt, they put together a drive from their own 25 yard line for the touchdown by Calvin Thomas. Their attempted point after touchdown was unsuccessful.

On the first play of the second quarter, the Wildcats put their only score on the scoreboard. On an attempted punt, the ball was snapped into the end zone and recovered by the Wolverines, giving the Wildcats a safety.

Late in the third quarter, Morris Brown put together another drive to score their second touchdown, the score coming on a 3 yard plunge by Thomas. Albert Sharpe kicked the point after touchdown and the Wolverines led 13-2.

The final tally came on a 40 yard run by freshman fullback, James Martin. The point after touchdown attempt by Sharpe was good, and the score was 20-2.

The rock hard defense of the Wolverines led by Capt. John Godbolt with 12 tackles and Elie Jones and Earl "Tank" Griggs with 8 tackles. And aided by the brilliant play of Donald Cambridge and Eugene Robinson held Bethune to 170 on the ground, but yielded 68 yards in the air as Bethune completed 2 out of 12 passes. Cambridge was the heart of the pass defense, repeatedly breaking up pass after pass. He had 5 tackles. Robinson, who played the entire ball game had 7 tackles, and played three different positions.

The Wolverines completed 1 out of 4 passes for 25 yards.
