Incoming Freshmen Practice Alma Mater

by Ronald Fudge

On August 23, 1981 New Student Guides waited patiently at their posts for the arrival of Morris Brown's freshmen class of '85.

Students from all areas flew, bused and drove into "a haven for hungry souls, yearning for an education".

Ranging from as far as New Roads, Louisiana to as far as the island of Bermuda, the class of '85 certainly represents a distinct effort for higher education.

The freshmen began the week with testing programs set up by the college. As a result of tests, it was found that in some areas freshmen performed well.

The freshmen, wearing their traditional purple and white beanies plunged into Freshmen Orientation Week.

Highlights of the week included a banquet in honor of new students, the Atlanta University Center block party, freshmen talent show, and a trip to Atlanta's famed Six Flags. Although it was not enjoyable event for many, registration can indeed be highlighted.

Student Government President, Mr. Eric Carter, and reverend Willie J. Christain, Dean of Student Activities led the students through a week of trials and tribulations. This year, these two gentlemen stressed the importance of a financial aid workshop which was geared towards helping the students handle financial problems especially since the Reagan budget cuts.

Many of the freshmen have made themselves part of Morris Brown by joining various clubs and organizations as the Band, Choir, Yearbook Staff, and the Wolverine Observer STAFF.

After orienting themselves into Morris Brown College, the class of '85 is ready for hard and diligent study.

Work extra hard Freshman! for your rewards can be great.

SAGA Cater Meals

Now is the time to dwell on the past. Some may say that dwelling on the past is a hinderance and we as black people must press toward the productive future, but for this instant the reminiscence of the past will be quite gratifying.

The academic year of 1980-81 was certainly one of recognition. Morris Brown College celebrated her 100 years of dedicated scholastic service toward the education of young blacks. Another event of that enlightening year that remains in the memory of the M.B. C.

upperclassmen is Michael K. Bouie, the former Student Government Association (SGA) President. What makes Michael a reminising fact and unique from all other SGA presidents of our time? The uniqueness falls in the category of achievement. Michael did something! Something that is visable to all students, faculty, and administration. The great achievement accomplished was the drastic change in quality and service in our cafeteria and snack bar food. The food is 101% better.

Morris Brown College-Who Are We?

Founded in 1881, Morris Brown College is a privately operated institution with a current enrollment of approximately 1,500 students. It is Georgia's largest predominantly Black private college, a co-educational and primarily full-time institution with 50 percent of its students living on campus. Through the Atlanta University Center Program, the college offers baccalaureate degrees in some 30 fields of study. It is fully accredited by the Georgia Department of Education, the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, and the American Association of Colleges. The mission of the College is to provide opportunities for moral, spiritual, and intellectual growth. Organized under the sponsorship of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, Morris Brown follows the philosophy of "education for all" regardless of race or creed.

Since Morris Brown is the only institution of higher learning in this area which was founded, developed, and is now mainly supported through Black leadership, its growth and ex-

Cooperative Education- What Is It?

by Spencer Booker

Cooperative Education: What is it?, and how does it work for the students?

Cooperative Education, a plan whereby students blend theory and practice by working on paid training assignments in their areas of professional interest, has had a tremendous growth in recent years. Cooperative Education will stimulate the growth of the college as well as broaden the student's total college career.

How does Co-op work? The student will alternate specific periods of on-campus study with equal periods of off-campus employment in an assignment related to his academic major. The student is paid for services by the co-op employer. Salaries vary, depending upon the discipline which is being studied and the amount of academic credit and work experience the student has accumulated.

One of the great strengths of cooperative education is its flexibility. In some institutions it is a compulsory program for all students, however, Morris Brown College will offer an elective program.

The structure of a cooperative experience may vary, but the underlying philosophy always remains the same. The student's job is an essential and integral part of his education, affording him the opportunity to relate classroom abstractions to the concrete realities of the work-a-day world.

Letter From

The Editor's Desk

To all incoming freshmen I would like to welcome you to Morris Brown College and suggest that you start now traveling the right avenues.

If the enthusiasm you showed during freshmen Orientation Week is an indication of your spirit, you should not have any problems whatsoever. At any rate, you have my best wishes.

To all returning upperclassmen I want to say welcome back, and get to work! There is no need for me to give you a long dramatic speech nor do I have to give you an encouraging speech. You know, and I know, that to get where you are now took days and sometimes long nights (burning the midnight oil) to get you there, and it will now take further planning, thinking, and lots of work and determination. Good luck in all your endeavors.

To the tireless faculty, staff, and administration, a hearty welcome is definitely in store for you as the new year begins. Even though many of you never left you are surely an integral part of the college, but contrary to a popular belief, you are not the most important part. This honor or distinction belongs to the students.

To all of the above I extend, along with the entire Wolverine Observer staff, an invitation to get involved with the mission of the Wolverine Observer as much as possible. The mission entails the following:

To keep the student body, alumni, and college community in general informed about any and all news events relevant to their well-being. This means you should keep us informed as to all events that you are aware of whether they be club meetings, fraternity or sorority activity, or a story about a student, who excelled in one way or another and should receive some publicity about it. The Wolverine

Observer is always happy to oblige in this respect.

The Wolverine Observer is desirous to serve as a learning vehicle for students at Morris Brown.

Any student who has writing aspirations, artistic talent, or a penchant for working with advertising can apply to the Wolverine Observer staff at any time. Alumni, faculty and students, are also invited to participate in the letter to the Editor, and poetry sections.

September marked the beginning of a new semester for some of Morris Brown students and the beginning of a college career for others. Most important in the minds of each student, college life distractions notwithstanding, should be the ideas that adhere to an unswerving determination to make his or her four years the most PRODUCTIVE EVER. IN OTHER WORDS WE MUST FOLLOW THE ADVICE OF STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION PRESIDENT, MR. ERIC CARTER by accentuating the positive aspects of MORRIS BROWN AND MAKING THEM WORK TO OUR ADVANTAGE FOR A SUCCESSFUL LIFE AND CAREER.

Students Elect Eric Carter New Student Government President

Eric Carter
St. Paul, Mn.

A Profile On Eric Carter - The New SGA President

by D. Robin Murray

Name: Eric Carter
Classification: Junior/Transfer Student

Major: Restaurant and Institutional Management

Minor: Political Science

Hometown: Minnesota (St. Paul, Minnesota)

This Year's Ambitions: "I want to see students respect themselves, their property, other people and especially Morris Brown. I feel the key to success for a productive year is for the students to have a total attitude change to a more positive and presentable image. I want all the college in the Atlanta University Complex to interact more and participate in each others activities."

Plans After Graduation: "I want to go to Law school, study Corporate Law and become an attorney. I think in about ten or fifteen years I'd like to open up my own restaurant and law firm."

Advice To Freshman: "I am a man of dreams, I am a man of visions. When I was a freshman I wanted to become S.G.A. President. This goal took careful planning, concentration, and dedication. Just keep your eyes on your goals and don't give up!

Affirmative Action: He can be seen helping students with conflicts or interacting with the administration. Eric is clearly a business man and a man for change. Such affirmative work can be noted with the new SGA catering system that he so strongly recommended for the Morris Brown Family. During the summer Eric traveled to Bermuda and helped form an educational bridge connecting M.B.C. with the Bermuda College. With this Restaurant and Institutional Management program Bermudian students can complete and further their education at Morris Brown after completing two years of study in Bermuda.

Summary: Eric Carter is a very assertive and aggressive person and with such dominating traits he fills with completeness the chair of S.G.A. President.

pansion are aptly described in terms of "self-help". This is an illustration of self-reliance and freedom at their best within a minority group which is working for a better society. The philosophy of self-help, self-respect, and personal dignity, then, is a distinctive contribution of the college.

Morris Brown is also unique because of its emphasis on religion. Religious life at the College is the result of a conscious effort to enrich the spiritual experience of every student. The college holds that intellectual achievement alone is inadequate - that an understanding of Christian truth and an effort to live that truth every day are likewise essential. This Christian emphasis is one of Morris Brown's valuable contributions to the total development of her students.

Morris Brown College from the first has offered equal opportunities to men and women. Its charter provides that religious opinion shall not effect the admission of students or the engagement of instructors. It has fostered from the beginning, simple relations of mutual respect between its teachers and its students. In its internal administration it has placed its reliance not wholly on rules and regulations but on the good taste, good judgement, and good will of its members. In its aims, whether liberal or vocational, it has greatest concern for high standards of scholarship and of personal character. Its deeper purpose is the advancement of public welfare through wider knowledge, finer skill, and broader appreciation of human values.

Situated in the City of Atlanta, Morris Brown College enjoys many advantages that contribute to the development of an educational institution. A healthful climate is insured by an elevation of more than one thousand feet above sea level. The Gate City of the South and the largest city of the Southeast, Atlanta is the center of a large constituency.

The College has five major divisions: Humanities, Natural Science, Education, Business and Social Science. Among its current programs for improving services, the College is developing a more comprehensive adult and continuing education program, expanding research capabilities, the cooperative

The Agony And Defeat Of Transferring

by Joyce C. Lee

Transferring from one college to another college can be just as big a transition as leaving high school, old friends and family behind to come to school in a city such as Atlanta. The biggest question facing transfer students is that of acceptance of credits, and "what will be my classification?"

Freshmen Orientation Week was designed to aid in the transition. I came that Sunday night and was given a beanie. A Morris Brown College tradition beanie. I thought to myself,

"Me, a junior, wear a beanie?, and answered, "Why not?". In a way, I too was a freshman. I was new to the school and to the city. I then came to realize that my beanie was a form of identification. If I had a puzzled look on my face the purple and white beanie told my story. I was a newcomer and probably lost. A "Big Brother" or "Big Sister" would stop and help me, all because of my beanie.

I did, however, have an advantage most freshmen did not have. I had a taste of college life before I came to Morris Brown. In junior college I lived at home as most junior college students do. When I came to Morris Brown I had only campus life to adjust to. I know before hand about what academic life I should lead. Incoming freshmen must deal with academic and campus life.

"Will I like my roommate, will she like me?" More unanswered questions all new students face.

Leaving a hometown college for an out of city college can prove to be an adventure. With two years out of the way and a minimum of two more, I have a challenge ahead of me. I can quit now with an Associate Degree or go all the way. A school like Morris Brown College with its traditional roots firmly planted, encourages you to look ahead to a time when you will be a leader, not just a follower. Everyone knows that leaders stay at least one step ahead.

Dorm Sweet Dorm — Pascal's

by Mark Williams

Last semester due to a fire that swept through the Sarah Allen Quadrangle, many Morris Brown students had to move into Paschals' hotel. The students, however, were assured that repairs would be made on the Sarah Allen Quad, and it was only going to be a short amount of time before it would be opened again. Morris Brown indeed worked speedily and steadfastly in their effort to reopen the dorm for the unfortunate victims. Alas, the Sarah

Allen Quad was repaired and the students were once again back at home. There however was one small problem. Since work on the Quad, had to be hurried, only about half of the damaged rooms were repaired. One would immediately assume that when the school semester was over, work would again resume on the Quad, so when the 1981-82 school year rolled around, the Quad would be renovated and fully operable again. To the surprise of many upperclassmen and freshmen, this was not so. The phrase you should never assume anything range loud and clear, and to everyone's misfortune, the Quad was not finished being repaired and was closed altogether. Now because of the increase in male students, which happens when the freshman class and transfer students arrive, the male dorms that are already available are filled. So where do these students, (bags in hand) go when there's no place to stay? If you were here last year, you probably guessed right, PASCHALS' PART II.

Hopefully, the students won't get too discouraged and try to make the best of it.

which, in many cases, cover much or all of his educational expenses.

Cooperative Education not only increases instruction, it also contributes to a greater sense of responsibility among students and helps them to mature. Most cooperative education students have an opportunity to develop greater skills in human relations than the student whose only exposure to life is the college campus and the college population.

The advantages of Cooperative Education include many. Among those advantages are: 1) Adds relevance to education 2) Increase motivation 3) Develops maturity 4) Makes him an active catalyst in his own education 5) Orients him to the world of work 6) Gives him the chance to earn while he learns 7) Open doors for the disadvantaged.

Cooperative Education is offered to every qualified student. The Cooperative Education office is located in the Hickman Student Center on the second floor. The office is open Monday thru Friday, 9 until 4 p.m..

No Respect Whatsoever!!

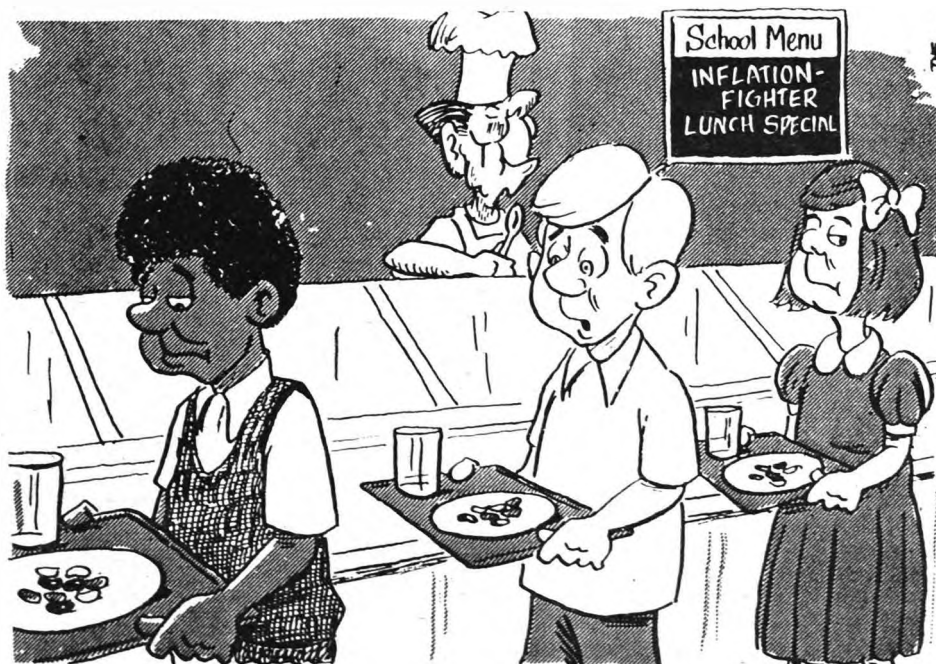

by Robin Murray

Recently there has been an increase of studies on black male/female relationship. Most of the research is based on how the black male/female treat each other and how their weak points stand through out their relations. Speaking from a black female's aspect, I myself look at black man and women and see where things go wrong. Black men and women do not respect each other enough. A definite reason why is almost inevitable due to the many variables placed upon black people since our presence in America. We must direct our energies towards a solution, a cease of disrespect for one another, and a true concern for one another. At first, it may be hard trying to respect a man who is dogging you and calling you every four letter word for not speaking to him. Also I know it is hard trying to respect an erotic black woman who is calling you incompetent, making you feel like less than a man and literally denouncing your sense of manhood. Let's face it, we must not go on like this, or else black people will become extinct.

S.G.A. Holds Miss. Freshman Pageant

by Susan J. Ashe

Fame, Fortune and Glory was the main theme for nine eligible freshman ladies Thursday, September 17, 1981. The prize they all sought was the sole proprietorship to the title "Miss Freshman" 1981-82.

The ladies began their evening of competition with a choreographed group dance to the sound of FAME.

While the contestants prepared themselves for their next stage appearance, the audience was entertained with Larry Grams hit single, "Just Be My Lady" sung by freshman Vernon Oliver and accompanied on the piano by Shep Eppinger.

The ladies were to perform in three areas: Modeling, casual wear, evening wear, and a question and answer period. Proceeding the evening wear, the candidates seeking the title were serenaded by Mr. Sharn Shepherd. He was accompanied on the piano by Mr. Carl Walton.

The night proceeded on while slowly coming to an elegant finish.

Friday morning, September 18,

1981, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. the polls opened for Freshman voters to elect their choice candidate. As a result of Friday's vote, these are freshmen who will reign over the class.

Freshman Women Of Borders Towers Petition

by Ronald Fudge

The young ladies of Borders Towers are furious over the actions taken against their curfew hours.

According to S.G.A. Vice-President, Clark Dooley, approximately 110 young women have already signed a petition protesting against the enforcement of strict curfew hours.

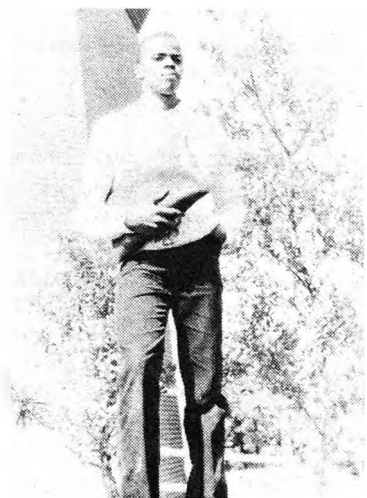

The problem brought to the Student Government attention shows that from Sunday to Thursday all freshmen women are expected to be in their dorms by 12:00 midnight. Many of the young ladies feel that his curfew for weekdays is fine, but they are in total disagreement with the weekend curfew hours set.

In the petition it states that: We, the young ladies of Borders Towers; realizing that school policy must be obeyed, but also realizing that the majority of us are matured and responsible young women, petitioning to have the curfew of 12:00 a.m. extended to at least 2:00 a.m. on Friday, Saturday, and Sundays.

Vice-President Dooley says that he will submit copies of the petition to Mrs. Smothers, Dean of Student Affairs on a weekly basis, and also copies to President Threatt, and Bishop Talbot over a 3 week period to help remedy this problem. Vice-President Dolley says that he will submit copies of the petition to Mrs. Smothers, Dean of Student Affairs on a weekly basis, and also copies to President Threatt, and Bishop Talbot over a 3 week education program, service to veterans and increased aid for students with academic deficiencies.

Approximately 95 percent of the students at Morris Brown receive some form of financial aid, and the College provides educational opportunity for many deserving students who otherwise might not have the benefit of college studies.

The strength of the College has come in large measures through the good will and loyalty generated by the moral and financial support of the common citizenry.

Although in great need of continuing financial support of all, the most cherished possession is the friendship and appreciation of the Alumni and many friends.

Morris Brown College needs funds for upgrading faculty standards in order to maintain accreditation status, for capital improvements, and for aid to students.

Advice Only

Dear Brownite,

I am a freshman at Morris Brown, and I think that wearing a beanie is stupid. Are my feelings justified?

Signed Beanie Person

Dear Beanie Person,

The wearing of the purple and white beanie has been a tradition at Morris Brown, and it is a sign of school pride. It many seem a bit silly, but it won't kill you to have a little school spirit.

Dear Brownite,

After being here at Morris Brown for about a month, I am suddenly becoming homesick, and I don't know how to handle this problem? (By the way, I am a freshman from Seattle, Washington).

Signed Homesick

Dear Homesick,

You like many other freshman and some upperclassman too, are at sometime or another homesick. The best possible remedy for this problem, is to go out and socialize with your fellow Brownites and other AUC students to help ease your tensions. Become involved in your campus and try and get the most out of the school.

If YOU have a problem that you would like to share with Brownite, please submit it by mailing to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, MORRIS BROWN COLLEGE, ATLANTA, GEORGIA. Or submit it to the Publications office located on the second level of the Student Union Building (S.U.B.).

Personality Profile Dr. Roy L. Hill

by Ronald Fudge

The Wolverine Observer staff takes pride in featuring in its freshman edition a man of many talents, and a true gift from God to our campus; Dr. Roy L. Hill.

Intelligent, witty and intriguing, merely describe Morris Brown's newly appointed member to the English Department, Dr. Roy L. Hill.

Dr. Hill is a gifted international poet and a renowned contemporary black rhetorician. His educational background is too impressive as we call the roll of his most outstanding achievements. Dr. Hill earned his Bachelor of Science from North Carolina A&T, in Greenboro, N.C., an M.S. in Journalism from Boston University, an M.A. from Michigan State University, East Lansing, and a doctorate degree in English from Rutgers University in New Brunswick, New Jersey. He has studied creative writing at the University of Minnesota, psychology at N.Y.U. and he has also studied fiction and poetry at Middleburg College in Middleburg, Vermont where Robert Frost and John Ciardi were his teachers.

Before joining the English Department at the State University College at Brockport in New York, Dr. Hill held the prominent position as chairman of Black Studies and Assistant Professor of English at Rutgers in Newark, New Jersey from 1969 to 1974.

A born native of Laurens, South Carolina Dr. Hill became an orphan when only two months old. At an early age he was sent northward and lived for a time in the household of a family of Pennsylvania Quakers.

At this point in his lifetime, Dr. Hill could have ignored his God-given talent of writing because of an unstable childhood. Instead, Roy L. Hill's writing talents developed under the influence of distinguished writers and poets. He was first encouraged to write by the late Dr. Leslie Pinckney Hill, of Harvard University, a 1903 Phi Beta Kappa, poet, and President of Cheyney State College, Pennsylvania. His second major encouragement came from Langston Hughes of Harlem. Later, he studied under Robert Frost, John Ciardi, Howard Nemerov and John Frederick Nims at Middleberg College, Vermont. Also he studied under William Dickey, a Yale younger poet, at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio. At the Pennsylvania State University poetry workshop he studied under the noted poet, Joseph Leonard Grucci. At the University of Minnesota, he studied with Louis Cox, Robert Penn Warren and Morgan Blum. While studying at Boston University, he was referred to as a "gifted young writer" by Dorothy Spere, Hollywood scenario writer and novelist, a rival of novelist F. Scott Fitzgerald.

In 1964, he met for the first time and participated in a poetry workshop with Gwendolyn Brooks, James Baldwin and (Leori Jones) Imamu Amiri Baraka. That conference was entitled "Negro Writers in the United States" and was held at the University of California.

He was a student of Dr. Phillip Young, an Ernest Hemingway scholar at Pennsylvania State University and also was a student of Dr. Stuart James, of The University of Denver, in a William Faulkner and Ernest Hemingway seminar.

Roy Hill has also spent time learning about oriental poetry with Japanese poet, Atsuhiko Sawai of Kyoti, Japan.

In 1969, he read poetry in the U.S.S.R. where he met and discussed poetry with Yeugeney Yevtushenko and Andrei Nognesensky. Arna Bontemps and Sterling A. Brown shared some of the Harlem Renaissance moments with Roy Hill.

Theatrically, Dr. Hill had trained under Max Fischer formerly of Germany now with the American Theatre Wing in New York City. American Theatre goers will remember Hill in the role of Lacey in Tennessee Williams' "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," and "Three Men and a Horse."

He spends a good amount of time traveling, lecturing, reading poetry and writing. He has lectured or read poetry in forty-five of the fifty states, to Jamaica in the West Indies where he lectured and toured in 1961. He has toured Canada, the Caribbean, Great Britain, lecturing and reading poetry in more than 300 churches, theatres, colleges, and universities. These traveling experiences have provided Poet Hill with good background materials for use in his writings.

"I did not come to Morris Brown College to be in a popularity contest, I came to do a job." Remember, "one either knows or he does not know. The only substitute for not knowing is to know. The only remedy is to learn," he says so often.

Dr. Hill is a member of Kappa Alpha Psi and in 1971 he was named Outstanding Educator of America.

In the summer of 1970 Dr. Hill ended his educational journey with a Doctorate Degree from Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey, giving him something in common with Paul Robeson.

Student Advisor to both the Wolverine Observer and the Brownite (both student publications of Morris Brown) Hill says, "I have been through too many things to find pettiness important."

Dr. Hill emphasized what interests him most now in growth. "I want you to grow instead of just growing old," he explains.

The Student Publications Department is honored to have such a person of Dr. Hill's caliber and expertise to advise our staff.

In his final statements, Dr. Hill comments, "I didn't pick my place at the table. It was picked for me, and who am I to argue with God?"

Greatest Band In The Land, MBC Marching Wolverines

by Carl Walton

When anyone around Morris Brown or the Atlanta University Center hears the phrase "the greatest band in the land", they think of the famed Morris Brown College Wolverine Marching Band. This group of approximately one hundred members have traveled extensively throughout the United States including to the Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena, California and to the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York. The Marching Wolverines most recent activities include that of participating in the movie "Sharkey's Machine", starring Burt Reynolds a presen-

Playoff game between the Atlanta Falcons and Dallas Cowboys, and a spot in a Cable Television commercial. As anyone can see, aside from dazzling crowds with their halftime performances they are busy otherwise.

Band members along with the head director, Mr. Cleopas Johnson, and his assistants, Mr. William Reviere and Mr. John King, return two weeks early each year in an effort to replenish their supply of Johnson's Was (the Marching Wolverines' formula for success on the field).

Drum majors this year are Homer Causey, Quincy Casen,

Alumni Of The Month

In this month's issue of the Wolverine Observer the staff is proud to spotlight as our alumni of the month Mr. Arthur Langford, Jr.. Mr. Langford a brownite, is too a graduate of Atlanta's Price High School. He is a recipient of the American Academy of Human Services Outstanding Professional in Human Services Award, in 1974. He served as a advisory board member of the Southwest Community Hospital in 1979, and also a member of the Atlanta Urban League Board in 1979. Too, he was a member of the Public Safety Committee, National League of Cities. Other awards he received include those of the State Committee on the Life and History of Black Georgians, Chairman's Award, and the Marvin Lue Educational Foundation Outstanding Community Service Award, 1981.

He was featured in the 1980 Ebony poll, 50 Future Leaders of America. He has served eight years in the Atlanta City Council

He now serves as President Pro Tem, Atlanta City Council, 1981.

What Is AUCSC?

by Michael Bouie
President of AUCSC

Many students have asked what is the AUCSC and what are the functions of such an organization? Well, this article will answer your questions.

The Atlanta University Center Student Council was organized to serve as a catalyst to student awareness and unify student action, as well as represent the interests of the student enrolled at institutions in the Atlanta University Center. It aims also to serve as a coordinating body for activities sponsored by the Student Government Associations of respective schools, to serve as a vehicle for the expression and enrichment of student life, and to engage or participate in other activities deemed necessary to ensure full student awareness.

We as students have a responsibility to ourselves to be aware of the forces that shape our lives. Awareness alone is not enough, it must be accompanied by responsible interaction with these forces in order to be a part of ones development. This council must and will serve as a vehicle for awareness. The AUCSC is not in competition with member institution SGA offices, instead, the council is more brotherly concerned with issues relevant to the entire Atlanta University Center.

History, Geography, And Political Science Building Changes To Dorm

by Stanley Freeman

In an exclusive interview with Morris Brown's new Director of Housing, Mrs. L. S. Pennington, it was asked why did the building that used to house the offices of History, Geography, and Political Science change to a place of residential living for male basketball and track team members? Mrs. Pennington replied that due to the overcrowdedness of those presently residing in housing designated for on-campus living it was decided to formulate a dorm for these team members.

According to Mrs. Pennington, this decision was made in July of this year by Miss Doris Owens, Assistant Housing Director, after talking to Morris Brown's head basketball coach, Mr. Billy Wade.

Since the change, the department offices have moved in to the Julius Robinson Building (JRB) located in the rear of Gaines Hall.

Mrs. Pennington commented that she thought it was a good idea to convert the building because of the fact that all persons housed there would have a common interest in sports.

The building has been renovated on the inside with 3 showers and separate stalls. It was also totally refurbished with new furniture and a pay telephone is forth coming.

Offerings Of The Jordan-Thomas Library

The Jordan-Thomas library offers much more than books to enhance the academic life of students. An audio-visual center is located on the mezzanine level of the library and it offers most of the standard audio-visual equipment, such as, 16mm slide, filmstrip, overhead opaque and 8mm projectors, as well as tape-recorders, 16 mm films, filmstrips, slides, tapes and records. For greater academic enrichment the audio-visual center offers assistance in the production and acquisition of media software, training in the use of audio-visual equipment and the collection, storage and dissemination of catalogs, brochures and other information dealing with audio-visual hardware and software. Because the audio-visual service is on a first-come, first-serve basis request for service must be made at least 48 hours in advance of time needed and should be submitted in writing to Mr. Dendy, the audio-visual director.

Morris Brown And NROTC

NROTC gives you the best of two worlds, the education and growing experiences of college, and the training and certainty of a challenging job upon graduation. It also gives you a chance to exercise and develop your qualities of leadership and self-discipline, making you more valuable to yourself as a person and to the Navy as a naval officer.

If you qualify and sign up for the Navy-Marine College

Program, the Navy will furnish you with your Naval Science textbook, and your uniforms. Beginning your junior year in the program, you also will receive a monthly check of $100. In return, you attend the same Naval Science classes and Tuesday drill sessions as the other Midshipmen, and participate in one summer cruise between your junior and senior years.

It takes a special program to train a Naval officer, and a special individual to be one. NROTC at Morris Brown is the program. Are you the individual?

A total transformation has taken place.

After months of deliberation, observation, and negotiation, with the cooperation of Mr. Hankerson, a new food service, SAGA, has been employed into the Morris Brown College Family.

The search for the "food savior" took place second semester of the 1980-81 academic year. The actual signing of the contract was in June of the same year. Morris Brown College now has the best food in the entire Atlanta University Center.

Thank you Michael Bouie and your administration for your appreciated and delicious effort towards the satisfaction of the entire student body.

They realize that practice makes perfect and that in order to maintain their reputation they must put in long hours to master their difficult routines. The Bubbling Brown Sugar (majorettes) and the Satin Dolls (flag girls) are very important to the band, because of their added attraction to the group. In fact, Gail Malone, Miss Morris Brown College Elect 1981-82, is a member of this added attraction.

New Cuts In Federal Student Assistance Planned

REPRINTED FROM AN ARTICLE IN THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION BY JANE BRYANT QUINN

Federal student aid was cut for the 1981-82 school year. But you ain't seen nothing yet. The Education Department is working on further reductions for the 1982-83 school year that will make it noticeably harder for students to get help.

"The tightened requirements for the 1982-83 student aid were virtually ready for publication last month," said Robert Leider, a student-aid expert. "But then President Reagan let it be known that he would not reduce military spending very much, so all the non-defense agencies had to go back to the drawing boards and cut their budgets some more." To meet the president's budget targets, student loans and grants will have to be sliced even further in 1984.

State aid is generally linked to federal aid, so you cannot count on state education grants to take up the slack. The plain truth is that students and their parents will have to pay a steadily higher percentage of their own college costs.

While student aid is going down, annual college costs are going up. The average four-year private college costs $6,885 this year, according to The College Board, up 13 percent from last year. A few schools cost as much as $12,000. The average public college costs $3,873, up 14 percent.

The only good news is that, when you get out of college, the government will help you consolidate your student loans and stretch out payments over longer terms. You may still be paying off a student loan when your own children are ready for college, but inflation will have wiped away the burden of that loan.

The future shape of federal aid looks something like this:

* Free grants. Students now getting free federal grants will receive less. All Pell grants (formerly called Basic Educational Opportunity Grants) were cut recently by $80. That put the maximum award for low-income students at $1,670 for the 1981-82 school year, compared with $1,750 last year. A revised eligibility schedule dropped many students out of the program entirely, most of them from families in the $20,000 to $25,000 range.

The total money available for Pell grants is supposed to rise a bit next year. But if the number of applicants goes up, the grant per person could decline again.

No extra money is budgeted at all for most other federal-aid programs — direct loans and grants for the very neediest students, or work-study programs for the middle class. The value of these grants will decline steadily from now through 1984.

The object of all this is to reduce student access to government grants and force them to take out loans, instead.

* Government-subsidized student loans. Students from families making less than $30,000 still qualify for the maximum student loan — up to $2,500 for undergraduates, at 9 percent interest. But families making more than $30,000 now have to submit a financial statement. Depending on their income and other factors, they may receive a full student loan, a reduced loan, or no loan at all.

The object is to push students out of the 9 percent loan program and force them to borrow at higher interest rates.

* Auxiliary loans. When you're denied a student loan, here is where you end up. The new, federal auxiliary-loan program will provide education loans at 14 percent — to parents, to graduate students, and to some independent students who are paying for their own education. You may borrow up to $3,000 a year. But you have to start repaying right away. Student loans, by contrast, needn't be repaid until the student leaves school.

So far, auxiliary loans are available only in a handful of states, which isn't much help to struggling students denied other forms of aid. Ask your bank when, and if, it plans to offer auxiliary loans.

* Loan consolidation. After cutting its aid budget up front, the government will come around and rescue you from behind. Once out of school, you will soon be able to turn to the Student Loan Marketing Association to consolidate or refinance your various tax-subsidized student loans.

SLMA will be offering lower monthly payments, stretched out over 10 to 20 years. You'll pay 7 percent interest on your older loans and, probably, 9 percent on the new ones.

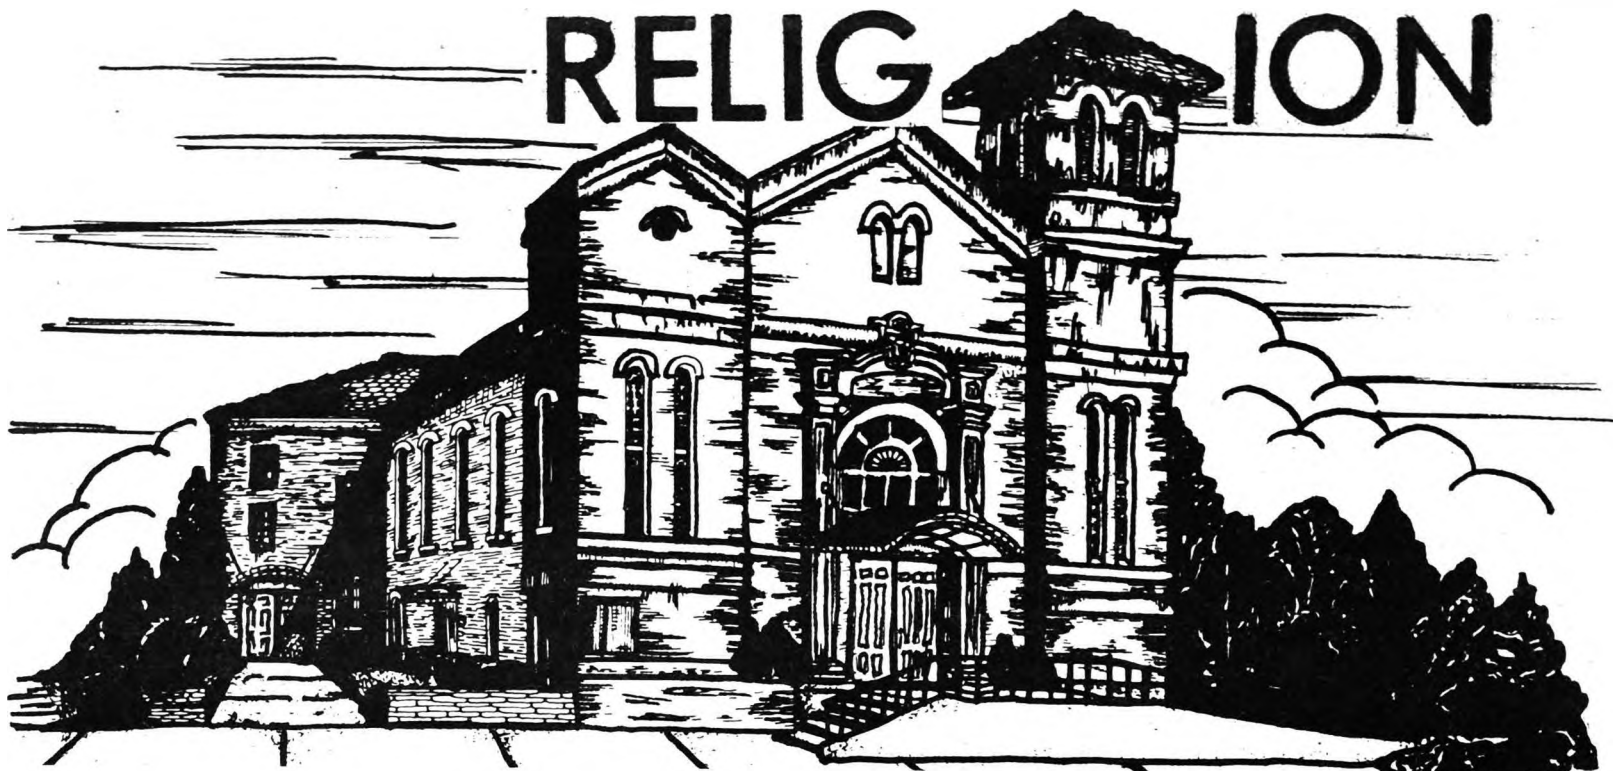

Because this program is still in the pilot stage, nothing will be done for you if you write for help now. I'll be telling you how to take advantage of a SMLA loan consolidation when the program is fully open for business — probably within a few months.

Ninth Grader Places First In Georgia Science Fair With Psychological Research Completed At Morris Brown College

Fourteen year old Ms. Java Ware, a ninth grader at Charles Lincoln Harper highschool, placed first in the Georgia Science and Engineering Fair with an animal research project completed at Morris Brown College under the direction of Dr. Jeanne Stahl. The project titled "Effects of antihistamine and caffeine on the activity of the rat" involved the daily testing of 10 laboratory rats over a three month period. Ms. Ware received a first place ribbon, certificate and gold key for placing first for research in the area of medicine and health. She also received a special award patch and certificate of honor for most outstanding in the field of medicine and health research from the United States Air Force in the city competition. Ms. Ware is the daughter of Joseph and Mary Ware. Although her favorite subjects are in the science areas, she also excels in the German language and spent 9 days in Germany recently sponsored by the Atlanta Board of Education Foreign Language Department. In addition, she has been selected to participate in the Emory career preparation in biomedicine program on Saturdays for the next four years. Ms. Ware is presently beginning a second science fair project in the Morris Brown College Psychology laboratory.

Singing To The Tune Of God

After a meeting of the freshman class, students interested in expounding the word of God through song during Morris Brown College most historical year, the Centennial year, formulated on January 19, 1981 what is now called the Morris Brown College Centennial Gospel Choir. Its initial name was the Freshman Gospel Choir under the leadership of Gail Gilchrist, Spencer Booker, and Kenneth Dismuke. Since that time, membership has grown from ten members to the present size of sixty active members. It consist of not only freshman, but sophomores, juniors, and seniors as well.

During the course of this school year we are planning on spreading the Master's word through our school, community, and the state of Georgia as well as out of the state.

We are extending an invitation to all those freshmen who are interested in singing gospel music. The invitation does not stop at freshmen alone, but also includes the voices of Morris Brown's upperclassmen.

Rehearsals are every Wednesday from 6:00 p.m. until 8:00 p.m., and on Saturdays from 11:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m.. For further information you may contact Kenneth Dismuke, choir director or John Scales, president.

My Valentine

Written on the calendar, its Valentines Day
We do those nice things, in so many ways
A designated time, when there's something to share
To show one another, we really do care.

But what does it mean, and by whom did it start?
Did it begin, with passion in the heart?
Is there a feeling, or soft tingle inside one?
Can it be a moment, when special things are done?

Advertisements claim, its a time you should buy
A cute box of candy, for that sweet girl or guy
Children will reply, "It's a party in class"
"You eat heart-shaped cookies and have a good laugh"

Its time to remember the real one involved
Still a great mystery, that has not been solved
Grab on to the table and hold your chair tight
To some who may hear this, it could be a fright

Jesus Christ I say, and truly so dear
You know it's Him, when that date comes near
So when you Valentine, look up above
And there you'll see Jesus, the Creator of love.

In God's Eye

Pondering the course of the day?
Then lift your eyes to greet the everpresent wisdom of God's creation on high.
With a good thought on mind,
and a song in your heart.
Brush aside the seemingly heaviness of the day.
Relax and enjoy
God loves you in every way.

Take Five

Open your eyes and look into your soul, let the stars become both your Mother and Father.
Be guided by your inner spark and walk through the world, carrying your light thru the dark Remember where you came from to keep a clean vision on the path you've chosen. If things get too complicated for you alone.
Simply relax your heart,
and open your mind.
Have peace within yourself abide your time.

Wolverines Down Savannah State Tigers

by Lawrence Flournoy

A crowd of about 14,000 turned out to see the Wolverine of Morris Brown College and the Tigers of Savannah State College battle it out in Savannah.

In the 1st quarter, Wolverines' Carlon Johnson scored off a 23-yard field goal making the starting score 3-0, and pushing the Wolverines ahead. With 8:55 seconds left in the 1st quarter Ray Mills threw a 21 yard pass to Terry Holloway making the score 9-0. Mills played exceptionally well throughout the whole game. His last touchdown pass was in the 1st quarter with only 2:38 seconds left. He threw a 33 yard pass to Felix Williams making the score 15-7. Savannah State College was allowed only one touchdown which was made in the second quarter by a field goal kick making the score 15-10.

In second half action, the Wolverines were able to score again on a 9 yard run by freshman Leon Winfrey which then made the score 22-10. Winfrey then scored a 6 yard touchdown in the fourth quarter making the final score 26-10.

In this month's spotlight is a young man with a great talent. His name is Ricardo Eberhart. Eberhart is a ALL-American football player. If you watched him in previous games you can see why he is titled ALL-American. Since I have been here at Morris Brown I have seen him play in a lot of games and his performance on the field is certainly great. He is a defensive back and he returns on kickoffs. His statistics are very good in games they have played. On punts returns he had 90 yards, 117 yards on kickoffs and 2 interceptions for 72 yards.

So the next time you attend the game watch for ALL-American, Ricardo Eberhart.

WCT Looks At Atlanta

by Lawrence Flournoy

It's not official yet, or at least it has not been announced, but look for Atlanta to host a special event in 1982 in the World Championship Tennis tour. WCT has always liked Atlanta as a potential tennis boom town but discontinued WCT events here after the 1976 tournament boomed at the gate.

But WCT wants to bring in a 16-man field next year, probably with prize money totaling $100,000 and then come back with a full-fledge $300,000 plus, 32 man tournament the following year. The site would be the Peachtree World of Tennis, owned by Lamar Hunt.

WCT was successful here in Atlanta from 1973 through 1975, although attendance did not set any records. The 1976 tourney failed to draw a crowd even with Bjorn Borg and Llie Nastase on the court. Of course, Borg losing in the second round did not help any at all. So keep your eyes open for this spectacular event.

Tennis Anyone?

by Lawrence Flournoy

Are you a beginner in tennis? Do you want to know more about the game? Do you want to improve your game? Well, in our next issue I will have tennis tips and drawn illustrations for you. All you have to do is drop a letter in our office telling us what you want to improve on. Mail all letters to Student Publications, Morris Brown College, 715 Martin Luther King Jr. Dr. N.W., Atlanta, Georgia 30314. Or submit to the Publications office which is located on the second level of the Student Union Building (S.U.B.) next door to Student Government.

In Pursuit Of Heisman

by Lawrence Flournoy

Candidates in pursuit of the Heisman trophy this year will be Herschel Walker, Art Schlichter, and Jim McMahon.

Herschel Walker, a runningback for Georgia had his second straight day rushing for more than 160 yards. His longest run was 21 yards against California and he caught two passes for just five yards.

Art Schlichter who is the quarterback for Ohio State accounted for two touchdowns on a four-yard run and 16 yards with one interception. His longest completion was 49 yards and he rushed for 33 yards on nine carries.

Jim McMahon, the quarterback for BYU, recovered from a bout with the flu and was doubtful of the game against the Air Force. However the senior quarterback threw for four (4) touchdowns, although it was the first time in 12 games he passed for less than 300 yards.

Other possible candidates for the Heisman Trophy are Kelvin Bryant, North Carolina State 221 yds, 6 touchdowns, Buster Phymes, Oklahoma, 219 yards total offense, and 21 touchdowns. Anthony Carter, Michigan, 60 yards total offense, and John Elway, Stanford 33-of-45 passes, 418 yards, and 1 touchdown.

Ricky Eberhart rests after a slight injury in game.

 (F) Personal experience - he feels college has been a big change for him because he is white coming to an all black school. He feels confident that he can deal with anyone black or white. His teammates have accepted him as a nice person and tremendous football player. His parents are very supportive of his football interest and are proud of his accomplishments.
 (G) Achievements - Honors, awards in H.S. - outstanding offensive lineman in his senior year.
 (4) Why did he choose Morris Brown - Coach Reed was a positive influence in his choice. "Winning Spirit" was what convinced William to attend Morris Brown. Another reason for his decision was his family did not have much money; so he went with the first choice on an Athletic Scholarship.
