Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

In a challenging address to the graduating class of Spelman College, at the commencement exercises on Monday, June 4, Governor Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller opened his speech on "Equal Opportunity and Human Rights" by recounting the long association of the Rockefeller family with Spelman College. He stated that his family had been interested in the growth and development of Spelman since his grandfather's time, and that now the fifth generation of Rockefellers had manifested an interest in the College. He declared that the occasion was one which brought sharply into focus his own heritage—"a basic belief in the worth and dignity of the individual; the right of equal opportunity for all people, and my own belief in the Universal Brotherhood of Man under the Fatherhood of God."

Declaring that he mentioned the five-generation family connections with the cause of better opportunities for the Negro to make the point that when he speaks of these matters as a man in political life, he does so from a family-ingrained conviction whose roots are deep and not from political expediency, Governor Rockefeller outlined the accomplishments of his administration to underscore his belief in the dignity of the individual regardless of his color or creed.

He stated that—

We have outlawed discrimination based on race or creed in the sale and rental of private housing and commercial space.

We have banned discriminatory practices by real estate brokers in the sale and rental of all housing covered by our laws.

Legislation has been enacted barring discrimination by banks and other lending institutions for loan for purchase or repair of private homes.

We expanded and strengthened the State Commission Against Discrimination. And this year, in the belief that such an agency should bear a positive name, it has been renamed the State Commission for Human Rights. During my term as governor, annual appropriations for the State Commission for Human Rights have been increased from $743,000 in 1958-59 to $1,532,000 during this fiscal year.

We have established new branch offices for the Commission for Human Rights—in upper Manhattan, Brooklyn, Rochester and Long Island.

We have passed laws barring discrimination in apprenticeships and other job-training programs.

The Governor told the graduates that as “. . . spokesmen for a new generation that is no longer content with lip service to the American heritage of freedom and equal opportunity . . .” they could be instruments “. . . in the accelerating evolution of American society toward the achievement of its own proclaimed ideals. . . .” He concluded his address by urging the members of the Class of 1962 to be proud of their heritage as Americans and to “find joy in the challenges that confront you. Go forth with your heads held high, armed with your knowledge, your energy, your intelligence, your will to achieve. Demand and get the equal chance that is your birthright as Americans. For you are a part of the American dream—you are participants in the high drama that is making that dream come true.”

The speaker was introduced by President Albert E. Manley. Participating in the service were the Reverend Kwai Sing Chang, Associate Professor of Bible and Philosophy, Agnes Scott College, who read the Scripture, the Reverend Homer C. McEwen, Minister of the First Congregational Church, who offered prayer, and the Reverend Norman M. Rates, Spelman College Minister, who pronounced the benediction. Music was furnished by the Spelman College Glee Club under the direction of Professor Willis L. James.

Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller is the third of the six children of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Abby Aldrich Rockefeller. Governor Rockefeller attended the Lincoln School, New York City, and was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1930 where he majored in economics and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

Before his election as Governor, in 1958, Mr. Rockefeller had been active in government at the local, state and federal levels for twenty-five years. His service in the Federal Government began in 1940 when President Roosevelt appointed him coordinator of Inter-American Affairs. In 1944-45 he served as Assistant Secretary of State for American Republic Affairs. In 1950, President Truman named him chairman of the newly-created International Development Advisory Board. President Eisenhower called on him in 1952 to assume the chairmanship of the President's Advisory Committee on Government Organization, a post which he held until he became Governor of New York in 1959. In 1953, he served as Chairman of a Special Committee on the Reorganization of the Defense Department by appointment of Secretary Wilson and in 1958 Mr. Rockefeller was appointed by Secretary of Defense McElroy to a consultative committee on the further review and study of the organization of the Defense Department.

PRESIDENT MANLEY and GOVERNOR ROCKEFELLER leave the Atlanta Airport for the Spelman Campus.

MISS MARY M. MOLL

The Diary of a Gift

On December 14, 1906, an application for a teaching position at Spelman Seminary was received by Miss Harriet E. Giles, president and co-founder of the institution. The letter was postmarked Mahanoy City, Pennsylvania, and read:

Kindly consider me an applicant for the position of teacher of Latin and Greek in Spelman Seminary, if such a position is, or soon will be, vacant.

After graduating from a Normal School in this State, I taught successfully for five years in the public schools of this town. Leaving the schoolroom, I went to Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Penna. From this institution, I graduated last June, after devoting most of my time to Latin, Greek, and Mathematics.

The enclosed testimonials will give you an idea of my work. If you desire to know further particulars, I shall be glad to answer questions.

The letter was signed Mary M. Moll.

The recommendations from Miss Moll's teachers at First Pennsylvania State Normal and Bucknell University, were high in praise of her as a person and of her ability. The following excerpts are typical: ". . . She has shown herself to be a young woman of superior ability, assiduity and attainment and she is cordially recommended to the confidence of the Public . . .," "Miss Mary Moll, during her course in Bucknell University, has proven herself an excellent student in the Languages. She has a clear, accurate and penetrating mind; she is an ambitious and hard working student, and possesses the excellent faculty of growth. . . .," "I know of no young lady whom I can recommend more highly, and few whom I consider her equal. Miss Moll is fully competent to take charge of a department in any Academy of High School. And I have such confidence in her tact, good judgment, and general abilities that I commend her to the favorable consideration of all school officers who are seeking for a first-class instructor."

On December 24, 1906, Miss Giles wrote Miss Moll:

I was glad to receive your application and you have been appointed to teach at Spelman Seminary. If you reach here the 5th of January, it will be soon enough, as we wish you to begin teaching January 22nd. This will give you some time to learn a little of the work before Miss Goddard leaves and to become somewhat acquainted.

The salary is $50 per month, out of which is to be paid board at the rate of $12 per month, and laundry charges. The laundry costs 25¢ for one dozen of plain pieces, other articles extra. Each teacher pays her own travelling expenses. Please bring a knife, fork, and spoon, so that if it is necessary to send meals from the dining room, silver need not be sent. Each teacher furnishes her own napkins, towels, and anything she may wish in the line of bureau covers, etc.

Hoping your coming to Spelman may be a mutual blessing, I am

Yours sincerely,

In this routine fashion, there began the association, most of it carried on long distance, between Miss Mary M. Moll and Spelman College. Miss Moll came to Spelman Seminary and taught Languages in the college program during the second semester of the academic year 1906-1907. According to the College records, she lived in Morehouse Hall. At that time, college instruction was carried on conjointly with that of Atlanta Baptist College (now Morehouse College), with some of the classes being under their professors and some under Spelman teachers. The college course, however, was the same for both institutions.

The first record of a communication from Miss Moll after she left the employment of Spelman Seminary was received on the eve of Founders Day, April 10, 1911. She wrote Miss Tapley:

So many busy bees visit my clover patch that each one finds but little honey. May the drop the Spelman bees found, when added to other drops from other blossoms, do some good for the institution and the work in which I am still interested.

May you have a happy and beneficial celebration!

April 15, 1911, Miss Lucy Hale Tapley, who began teaching at Spelman Seminary in 1890 and became president in March, 1910, and who had known Miss Moll the few months she taught at Spelman, acknowledged her gift and letter in these words:

What the bees brought to Spelman from your clover patch is gratefully received and I send you many thanks for your kindness. You will rejoice with us because of the success of the Rally. We raised $461.75.

The exercises in connection with the thirtieth anniversary were very interesting, profitable, and a source of inspiration and encouragement. It did us good to review the days that are no more, to note the leading of God's hand, and to count our many blessings.

October 21, 1913, Miss Moll wrote Miss Tapley:

Enclosed you will find a small check to be used for Spelman in whatever way you see fit.

October 24, 1913, President Tapley acknowledged the gift and wrote:

Your gift to Spelman is very much appreciated. Please accept many, many thanks for the sum sent. It is cheering and encouraging to receive financial support from former teachers.

Are you teaching at home? I suppose you are as the letter comes from Mahanoy City.

We have a good school with a large enrollment. The dormitories were over-taxed and we might have taken more boarders if we could have accommodated them. We have three hundred seventy boarders.

April 7, 1919, Miss Moll wrote:

Enclosed please find a small contribution for Founders Day. Along with it comes my thanks for "The Spelman Messenger" and my best wishes for the success of your school.

April 10, President Tapley replied:

Your very kind note and the gift for the Rally have been received. We wish to extend to you our most hearty thanks and appreciation. You will be interested to know that we have already received in gifts over $600 toward the $1500 we need for this year.

April 5, 1921, Miss Moll wrote:

Though a bit late I want to add my mite for your Founders Day Rally. I shall be very glad to receive a copy of your illustrated historical sketch if it has come from the press.

Hoping that you will have a delightful anniversary celebration and continued success and blessing in the work of the school, I am with pleasant memories of my days at Spelman,
Most sincerely,

April 4, 1922, Miss Moll wrote a brief note in which she said "Please accept my mite for Rally Day." The letter bore a State Normal School, Millersville, Pennsylvania, address.

April 5, 1923, Miss Moll wrote:

I am enclosing my mite for Founders Day. As I have said before, I wish it were a great deal more.

The booklet "Spelman in Africa—Africa in Spelman" was looked over with interest. Miss DeLaney I recall. How she will be missed!

April 12, 1923, President Tapley answered:

I am in receipt of your gift that you sent for the rally. Kindly accept our many thanks and kind appreciation for same. These gifts whether great or small mean a great deal to us in carrying on this great work.

I have some good news to tell you. The good friends that God has given us, have voted the money necessary to build and equip two new buildings: a Science Hall and a Chapel. It has also been voted that in the near future Spelman Seminary is to become Spelman College.

April 9, 1924, Miss Moll sent in her contribution as usual with this message:

Along with my mite for Founders Day, I am sending my best wishes for Spelman's success when she steps out into broader fields of usefulness.

April 7, 1925, Miss Moll wrote from Milton, Pennsylvania, the address which became permanent:

Your letter of Feb. 19 was forwarded here and so I am sending my mite to add one book to the six thousand already in Quarles Library.

How I wish I could be at Spelman on the eleventh! It would give me a great deal of pleasure merely to walk around the campus and notice all the improvements since the days when I looked out upon it from Morehouse Hall. Undoubtedly other changes are just as great as the physical ones.

With best wishes for the continued usefulness and prosperity of Spelman and for your own health and successful leadership,

April 17, 1926, Miss Moll wrote:

Though slow in answering your January appeal, I am at last sending you a tiny check for some worthy and needy student. . . .

January 28, 1927, she wrote:

I am enclosing a little drop for your bucket along with my best wishes for the continued success and usefulness of Spelman.

Some day I hope to see the place again. It is often in my thoughts.

In 1928 and again in 1929 Miss Moll made a contribution to the work at Spelman College.

April 6, 1931, she wrote to Miss Florence M. Read who began her term of service as president on September 1, 1927:

Though I am fondly hoping to put foot upon the Spelman campus again some day, it cannot be this year. And so I am forced to send my greetings in the form of a tiny check.

May the fiftieth anniversary be a glorious occasion and may the college in the future live up to its high standards of the past!

May 11, 1931, Miss Read acknowledged Miss Moll's gift in these words:

. . . I can't tell you how much it means to the workers at Spelman to have the continued interest of those who used to be here. I wish that it might have been possible for you to be with us for the celebration.

April 6, 1934, Miss Moll wrote:

With pleasant recollections of the months I spent at Spelman many years ago and with best wishes for her continued success, I enclose a tiny check to help celebrate next Wednesday.

May 12, 1934, Miss Read answered:

. . . I wish you might visit us and see the changes that have come within the past few years. The latest development is the Government housing project which will provide moderately-priced housing units for Negroes in the old Beaver Slide district. The purchase of land by the government and the actual work of building should begin in the near future. . . .

In April, 1935, Miss Moll wrote:

Though I am a day or two late to have a part in your Founders Day celebration, I trust you will accept my small check and put it to some good use. May Spelman long continue her fine work of service!

Miss Read replied on May 10, 1935:

Thank you for your generous response to the Founders Day appeal. The receipt of the treasurer is enclosed.

In spite of rain and cloudiness, the day was a real achievement. The Games Carnival, held in Howe Memorial Hall, suffered no loss in vim and spontaneity by being held indoors. The Rally was inspiring and the reports of the gifts were most encouraging. We were particularly glad to have with us Mrs. Flora Thompson Henry, one of the original eleven who met with Miss Packard and Miss Giles in the first class in the basement of Friendship Baptist Church. . . .

In reply to Miss Moll's ". . . drop of help" in 1937, Miss Read wrote:

. . . The speaker at the formal exercises on the afternoon of April 11th was Miss Fannie C. Williams, principal of the Valena C. Jones Normal School in New Orleans and one of the leading Negro women in the field of education. She brought us a stimulating glimpse of the opportunities for service in the present day. Flooding sunshine and bright costumes made the demonstration on the campus in the morning by the students of the Department of Physical Education a lovely picture. At the Sunday afternoon Vesper service the speaker was Dr. E. R. Carter, for fifty-six years pastor of the Friendship Baptist Church in the basement of which Spelman had its beginnings fifty-seven years ago. . . .

In response to a letter notifying her of the death of Dr. John Hope which occurred on February 20, 1936, Miss Moll wrote on April 10, 1936:

Though the enclosed check will be received after the eleventh, I hope it can be added to the contributions of that day. I wish it were larger.

Your news concerning President Hope came as a great shock. Ever since I taught under him in 1907 I have thought of him as a cultured Christian gentleman and hoped I might meet him again some day if I had the pleasure of visiting Spelman. May the cause for which he gave his life continue to feel his fine influence. . . .

In April, 1940, Miss Moll wrote President Read:

In response to your letter of March 20th, I am enclosing a very small check.

Please do not think that its amount indicates my interest in Spelman. But, as I have ceased to be an earner, my budget needs to be readjusted in more directions than one.

Best wishes for Spelman's continued success both mentally and spiritually.

In Miss Read's acknowledgement dated April, 1940, she wrote:

Thank you for your good wishes and for your contribution. . . . We must increasingly depend upon the gifts of many people if our work is to continue to go forward. Your own interest in Spelman helps and encourages us.

I am sending you a reprint concerning the John Hope Homes and University Homes. I have been told of the efforts made by the faculty members of earlier days to improve conditions in the slum area between Spelman campus and Terminal Station and am sure you will be pleased to know of the attractive housing district there. On page six of the reprint notes have been made to help you to visualize the location of the housing project.

Dr. Manley became president of the college on July 1, 1953. Letters of encouragement with Miss Moll's "mite," "tiny check," "a drop of help," or "a little drop for your bucket" enclosed, continued to be received each year until 1959. In that year, the note which accompanied her contribution said, "wish it were more. It's quite late to say so but I do thank you and your wife for a unique Christmas greeting." The greeting to which she referred bore a likeness of the holly tree located near the north side of Reynolds Cottage, the President's residence, done in green with red berries on a white background. Reynolds Cottage, completed in 1901, no doubt brought back cherished memories of Miss Moll's days at Spelman Seminary. The flow of information about the institution continued to reach her through the personal letters of President Manley and through college literature.

Miss Moll's association with Spelman spanned a period of fifty-seven years, during the administrations of Miss Harriet E. Giles, Miss Lucy Hale Tapley, Miss Florence Read, and a part of that of the current President Albert E. Manley. As one reads Miss Moll's letters and those of the presidents, one is impressed by her simplicity and humility and is led to believe that she was the essence of modesty. Although Spelman never experienced the joy of having her visit the campus again, her warm, direct, thoughtful, friendly letters indicate that she had caught the spirit of the founders and that she never wavered in her support of the high standards they set for the institution.

On March 24, 1961, Miss Mary M. Moll passed away in Milton, Pennsylvania, at the age of 85. As her final gift to the College, she left a bequest of $20,018.76. During her long association with the College, Miss Moll not only exhibited a sympathetic interest in its efforts toward excellence but, in her magnanimous bequest, assured a continuing participation in its future. For this gift and for gifts, large and small, from other friends over the years, Spelman College is deeply grateful. Such constant interest and financial support of its program account in part for its success and usefulness.

For many years to come, Miss Moll's real testimonials will come in the lives of worthy young women who will receive better educational opportunities because of her faith in them. With a sense of true humility, the trustees, administration, faculty and students of this institution, inspired by her example, will continue to work to justify this faith. Indeed, Miss Giles' statement "Hoping your coming to Spelman may be a mutual blessing" was truly prophetic!

A Gift of Love

On March 30, 1962 the letter below was written to President Manley:

To the President of
Spelman College
Dear Sir:

Do you recall a lady from the First Baptist Church of Medford who came to hear you speak in a church in Cambridge in 1953 or 1954? My father and I have always been so interested in Spelman. He was one of the three men who gave the first hundred dollars to Miss Giles and Miss Packard when they made their appeal to James P. Abbott, the pastor of the Medford Church in 1880.

From 1893 to 1910, the Missionary Society worked very hard to pay the tuition of one, Emma Youngblood. One of our leaders during that time visited Spelman to find out why it was taking Emma so long to get through the Seminary. After visiting her, she found that Emma Youngblood wanted to go on studying to become a nurse. The Society continued to earn money for her and she did graduate as a nurse. I was only ten years old when we first became interested but I was twenty years old before Emma graduated. That education for me was truly beneficial. I was thrilled when the Rockefeller family recognized the worth of Spelman.

I want to send my small solid silver service to Spelman for the use of the President. I had intended to leave it in my will but I have a serious illness which is taking me to a nursing home in Bangor, near my son's family so I wish to send it now. I am sending it as a member of the First Baptist Church of Medford which gave the founders the first hundred dollars. My father, Mr. Walter F. Cushing, would be so pleased to have me do this.

I am hoping another member of First Church, Medford, Mr. Howard Preston, Vice President of Long's, 40 Summer Street, Boston, one of Boston's top jewelry houses, may pack and send the service to you. This is a little difficult for me at the present time as I have lost my voice temporarily and cannot talk on the telephone. I would like to get it to you by April 11.

I read your magazine from cover to cover—the article on the Fine Arts is so well written. You deserve a Fine Arts Building.

May God keep you well and strong in your chosen field of endeavor.

Katherine Cushing Van
De Bogert

Later, when the service was mailed to the College, Mrs. Van De Bogert wrote President Manley, "The silver service was used day after day for 50 years but the silver-smith evidently removed the marks of use. I shall be happy knowing you and Mrs. Manley are enjoying it. . . ."

The silver service was received in excellent condition, and is now located in the dining room of Reynolds Cottage, the residence of President and Mrs. Manley, where alumnae, faculty, students and friends who are served from it are constantly reminded of the thoughtful generosity of Mrs. Van De Bogert. The silver service serves as a symbol of the interest and concern in education of two generations of the Cushing family and as a challenge and stimulus to each generation of Spelman students to justify by their academic performance, graciousness of heart, concern for others, and daily living the faith in them and their possibilities of people like Mrs. Van De Bogert.

Reunion Message

Given in Chapel, June 1, by

Shirley Statom Henderson, C '52

We, who are returning for our class reunions today, face you with a bit of envy, for we realize that you are approaching one of the most exciting periods of your lives. You are about to meet, on your own, the tests and challenges of life. In meeting these tests, you will be meeting yourselves, for you will be confronted with your "selves" as never before.

As we face you today, we are remembering the dreams that were fashioned here, the goals that were set, the futures that would be ours.

We are comparing the two diaries of our lives—one written of life as we would have it, one written of life as it is. This is a humbling moment. I suspect that our thoughts at this moment are; that we have not returned as wise, as rich and as supremely happy as we felt ten years ago we would surely be today.

We may have known some degree of success. We may have even achieved a few of our goals, but this is not the significant factor. The significant factor is that for each of us there are still new challenges before us, new problems to solve, new dreams to pursue. This may be the challenge of life itself—that we face each new adventure, each now challenge with eager hearts.

Our work has not yet really begun. There are still new frontiers in our own lives that must be conquered. We have discovered for ourselves that this is still the age of the pioneer.

This year we have been caught up in the excitement of one of the most daring adventure stories of all times. We have seen men perform at the highest level of human efficiency. They have risked their lives in the pursuit of a dream as they have endeavored to sail farther, higher and faster than man has ever gone before. Their actions were so magnanimous that in order to describe them, we were forced to invent a new word. We call them astronauts—men who sail among the stars.

We are tempted in our adoration of men like Shephard, Glenn, and Carpenter to ascribe to them superhuman qualities. But courage, fortitude, and faith are not reserved for the superman of our day. These qualities are embodied in each of us to some degree.

Carlyle has said, "Show me the man you honor and I will know what kind of man you are."

John Glenn prepared to be one of the astronauts long before the science of rocketry was a reality.

The astronauts achieved a remarkable physical, emotional, and mental discipline that would have aided them in any endeavor.

Above all, they are not too sophisticated to believe in God. These qualities may make the difference between success and failure in any endeavor. With these qualities, we too may become astronauts—we too may sail among the stars.

This is the best hour in the history of the world, despite the uncertainties of the time. God has given to us the best hour and the best place. One writer has said, "If you can't succeed here, you would succeed nowhere. If you can't succeed now, there has never been a moment, since Adam courted Eve, when you would have achieved success."

We realize that the pressures exerted upon youth are greater than they have ever been, but on the reverse side, the opportunities offered are greater. No longer can we excuse ourselves because of race, or lack of opportunity, or even because we are women. "Chance favors the ready mind." We must be prepared to accept the moment of opportunity when it comes to sail among the stars. A life of mobile flight is simply a life of purpose.

You have proven that you are capable of dealing with the pressures of life in bus stations and at lunch counters all over the South. But the supreme test still awaits you.

Are you prepared to continue to be brave, definite, and daring when you must face the tests and pressures of life alone, away from the group that has nurtured you? Are you able to chart a course in life that only you can sail, where you will be the only astronaut?

The student of today must prepare himself as never before to engage in life work at a time when life work itself is constantly and swiftly changing. He must prepare himself to engage in activities, in fields that do not even exist at this moment—just as John Glenn had to do, years ago. How can one do this? In what way does one prepare himself for life work that is so changing?

We, the students and graduates of Spelman, are fortunate that we have had an opportunity to receive what is called the “well-rounded, liberal education.” More and more criticism is being heard, especially in the field of education, of the specialist type training given in many under-graduate colleges and even in some of our larger high schools. We often hear the statement that schools are teaching more and more about less and less.

Ten years ago when we were leaving here, many of us felt that there was nothing we could really do. We were generalists in a world of specialists—we would never be able to measure up to others. The thing that we feared most, however, has become an asset and has enabled us to compete and achieve in whatever fields we have been most interested.

Albert Einstein had this to say about under-graduate training, “The school should always have as its aim that the student leave it as a harmonious personality. Not as a specialist. The development of general ability for independent thinking and judgment should always be placed foremost, not the acquisition of special knowledge. It is essential that the student acquire an understanding of and a lively feeling for values. He must acquire a vivid sense of the beautiful and of the morally good. Otherwise—he with his specialized knowledge—more closely resembles a well-trained dog than a harmoniously developed person.”

The true liberal education has larger aims than just cramming its students with facts in order to teach them how to earn a living. It must help each student to find himself as an individual; then it must help him to lose himself in interests, causes and ideas larger and more enduring than he is. Knowledge alone is not enough.

We are also fortunate in that we have been exposed to a type of education that stresses moral and spiritual values. The enlightened intellect, the disciplined will, both guided by moral and spiritual values are the very foundations of the well-rounded education.

In essence then, we can say that we have been prepared to sail among the stars because of the type of training we have received here. However, mere training alone does not insure a successful flight. If we are to live with purpose in our lives, we must be willing to enter into the mainstream of life. It is not enough to avoid shipwreck or catastrophe, we must avoid the inertia of drifting and going nowhere.

When security and conformity become overly important in our life, our main purpose in living becomes merely to avoid shipwreck—we begin to “simmer” through life. Walt Whitman has said, “I was simmering, simmering: Emerson brought me to a boil.” The one thing that usually brings us to the boiling point in life is purpose or direction. “This day we sailed westward,” were the simple words Columbus wrote in his daily log. Simple words, but how definite! How determined to do one thing! The crew might rebel, storms might come, but this day we sail westward. With that objective, Columbus joined the history of those who sailed among the stars. A chartered course is the best means of sailing toward any objective.

We sometimes drift in life when we should be sailing because of lack of courage to sail the uncharted courses alone. We wish to remain near the crowded shore. We fear being alone and being different.

David Riesman in his book, "The Lonely Crowd," speaks of the increasing tendency of all people in this country today, particularly our younger people, to be what he calls "other directed." By this he means that increasingly, we do what we do, and feel and think what we feel and think, because we are being influenced by others and we do it in response to group attitudes. While this is not a new development, its emphasis may be new. Reisman states that many Americans in the 19th century were "inner-directed," they had a strong sense of conscience. They felt that this was right and they were going to follow the right if the heavens fell.

Instead of taking an ideal and following it through, our tendency today is to stop and look around and case the situation. We figure out how this person, that person will react to something and then we find the middle line between. We move only if we think we can do it safely.

Life is more than a popularity contest with the prizes going to those who can win the most friends and influence the most people.

When we become too "other-directed" we hand over the course of our lives to the group. The ability to decide—to make up your own mind—to quit straddling—to choose wisely and courageously under any circumstances is one of the earmarks of the truly educated person. In the last analysis, life is going to be the sum total of the decisions we have made. Nothing more—nothing less. We can make it a blind experience or a great adventure. Choose to live without vision of your own, without courage, without a purpose and life will simply be a blind experience. But make those decisions daily that give direction, meaning and character to life and it will be a great adventure.

The paths you blaze may be new ones only to you. They may not be spectacular or earth-shaking, but you can bring to all the experiences you encounter the energy of youth, fresh ideas and hope.

For the great majority of us, life is not an exciting count-down and blasting off to the stars. Our lives are filled with simple mundane tasks that threaten to engulf us in a vast wave of boredom. Many of you will be facing the same dilemma a few months or years from now. These tasks will have meaning only if we see them against the larger framework of life, only if there is a purpose in our lives that transcends and encompasses them. Our own imagination and originality keeps us from being bored with life. To be original does not mean producing something that is completely new. Originality enhances the value of the old. It means stamping each task with an individuality that only you can give.

It is fairly easy to drift through life without purpose today. For what's the use; civilization may not even exist a week, or a month or a year from now. Civilization is imperiled; life is filled with grave risks. But life has always been filled with danger for its astronauts. Today has always been the only reality of time. In spite of this, ships have sailed. There is an epitaph on the tombstone of an ancient unknown Greek sailor, washed ashore, centuries ago which says, "A shipwrecked sailor on this coast bids you set sail. Full many a gallant ship, ere we were lost, weathered the gale."

You have received a well-rounded liberal education that prepares you to sail in any direction, guided by your interests and abilities. The values and principles of life that have been passed down to you through your rich religious heritage can be depended upon to steer you in the right direction. Only you can give purpose to your life. Only you can make the decision to be an astronaut, only you can set your course for the stars.

In Memoriam

HELEN TUCKER ALBRO

"Funeral services were held Monday, June 18, at 3 p.m. at the Avery Funeral Home for Dr. Helen Tucker Albro, 64, of 10 North Road, Peace Dale, Rhode Island, who died unexpectedly Friday at her summer home on Ministerial Road.

"A daughter of the late John and Alzadie (Tucker) Albro, she was born in South Kingstown, March 10, 1898, and until her retirement two years ago had been a teacher for 42 years. She left her post as head of the Biology Department at Spelman College in Atlanta, Ga., in June 1960, after serving there for 28 years. Prior to this she taught at Simmons College in Boston, Mount Holyoke College in South Hadley, Mass., Brown University, and Hood College in Frederick, Md. A graduate of South Kingstown High School, she was a member of the Pembroke College Class of 1919 and received her M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Brown University.

"A member of Sigma Pi scientific honor society, she also belonged to the American Association of University Women, the American Museum of Natural History, Pettaquamscutt Historical Society, Little Rest Bird Club, and Curtis Corner Baptist Church. In 1954 she presented URI with a valuable collection of butterflies, beetles, and other insects purchased by her from the estate of the last Avila Blanchard of Providence.

"Her survivors include two sisters, Miss Elsie Albro of Providence and Mrs. W. R. Easterbrooks of Wakefield; a brother, John S. Albro of Peace Dale, and several nieces and nephews.

"The Rev. Horace Hoey, pastor of the Curtis Corner Baptist Church, officiate at the services and burial was in Perryville Cemetery. The bearers were Alan Esterbrooks, Philip Holley, Thomas Richmond, and Arthur Steadman."*

"The news of the passing of Dr. Helen T. Albro on June 15, 1962, has brought sadness to many hearts. As one in a Spelman faculty of high quality of intelligence, integrity and scholarship, she was outstanding. Miss Albro was employed by President Florence M. Read in 1931. For all of Miss Read's incumbency and since, Miss Albro was a loyal and staunch supporter of the college. In season and out of season, Miss Albro spent her vacation time in study and research, so that she might each year present to her students a new and fresh aspect of biology. Her warm and friendly interest in each one brought out the best she had to offer, in character and achievement. Word sifts through from all over the world that doctors, nurses, teachers, claim that she started them on the road to such success as they have known.”

On May 4, 1960, the Spelman family honored Miss Albro for her many years of service at a special chapel program. Mrs. Birdie Lucile Scott Rolfe of the Class of 1933, Associate Professor of Physiology, Meharry Medical College, Nashville, Tennessee, was the speaker. Mrs. Mickelbury, College librarian, presented Miss Albro a bound book of letters of appreciation from her colleagues, students, alumnae and other friends. The celebration ended with a luncheon when friends spoke of her worth, graciousness, serenity, wisdom, and conscientiousness and showered her with gifts.

“For many years to come there will hardly be a conversation about Spelman that does not honor her memory, and the long succession of graduating classes will remember with nostalgia the dignity and loving pride with which she led the academic processions.”

On June 21, Mrs. Mary B. Easterbrooks, Miss Albro’s sister, wrote President Manley, “We want to tell you how much it has meant to us to receive the messages and the expressions of sympathy from those our sister knew at Spelman.

“We are sure that her happiest years were spent with you and one of her greatest joys was in remembering the day which was called ‘Dr. Albro Day.’ She kept all letters, pictures and everything connected with it.

“Her death has been a great shock to us and your sympathy has been a comfort.”

WILLIAM GETER THOMAS

The Spelman family was shocked and grieved to learn of the tragic death of Mrs. William Geter Thomas, chairman of the French Department, Spelman College, and Mrs. Rushton Coulborn, director of publicity and a teacher of English, Atlanta University and president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, in an automobile accident on August 15, 1962 while en route home from Canada. Mrs. Thomas was buried in her home town of Jacksonville, Florida.

Mrs. Thomas who was employed by Spelman College in 1933 had completed twenty-nine years of outstanding service to the College and had just completed her second summer of study at the University of Quebec, Canada. During this long tenure, Madame Thomas, as she was affectionately called by students and faculty, had served as faculty marshal, class advisor, advisor to Merrill Scholars, coordinator of the Christmas Carol Concert, sponsor of Le Cercle Francais, member of the Curriculum Committee and of the Committee on Admissions, Appeals and Scholarships. Even with a busy academic and extra-curricular schedule, she found time to participate in the Atlanta-Morehouse-Spelman Players, the dramatic organization of the University Center. Her last performance was in The Boy Friend, a musical play by Sandy Wilson. The reviewer of this play, wrote, "Turning now to the cast; several of the actors deserve special mention. First, Mrs. Billie Geter Thomas, who is well-known to theatre audiences at Atlanta University, was especially effective as Mme. Dubonnet. I hope that Mrs. Thomas will consent to appear more frequently on the stage; she proves again and again her versatility." Because of her love of the theatre, she appeared in at least one and often more than one play a year. She was a member of the first Atlanta University Summer School Theatre in 1934.

In addition to her A. B. degree from Boston University and M. A. degree from Radcliffe College, she held the Diplome de Civilisation and Diplome des profeseurs de francais a l'etranger from the University of Paris. She also had done summer study at the Universite de Nancy and Middlebury College. She was a member of the American Association of Teachers of French, Modern Language Association and Pi Delta Phi. Active in many community organizations, she served on the Boards of Directors of the Atlanta Urban League and Grady Homes Girls Club.

In speaking of the great loss to Spelman College caused by the death of Mrs. Thomas, President Manley said ". . . She was a good teacher who knew her subject and her students. Moreover, she was a woman of wide and lively intellectual and cultural interests. Because of these attributes, she stirred the minds of her students and was driven by their energy in the search for mastery of the French language. Above all she had the intellectual capacity to lead in this pursuit of excellence. She will be greatly missed in foreign languages by all of the Spelman College family . . ."

Campus Notes

COMMENCEMENT ACTIVITIES AT SPELMAN

Events in connection with commencement at Spelman College began on Sunday morning, May 20, 1962, when Miss Mercile Johnson, Dean of Women, entertained the seniors at brunch. On Wednesday, May 23, at eleven o'clock, President Albert E. Manley announced the recipients of scholarships and prizes in a service in Sisters Chapel. Friday, June 1, at eight o'clock in the morning, the ten-year reunion class, Class of 1952, conducted its service in Sisters Chapel. Immediately following this service, President and Mrs. Manley entertained alumnae, faculty, and staff at a Coffee Hour at Reynolds Cottage. The alumnae dinner, with the graduating class as honored guests, was held the same evening in the Morgan Hall dining room. At that time, Dr. Johnnie Hines Watts, Professor at Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Alabama, and Dr. Lynette Saine, Professor at Atlanta University, Atlanta, Georgia, were presented certificates of merit by the National Alumnae Association.

The annual National Alumnae Association business meeting, with President Florence Morrison Hogan, principal of Craddock Elementary School, Atlanta, Georgia, presiding, was held at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, June 2, in Howe Hall.

Other events included the Presidents' reception to graduating classes at the Atlanta University dormitories and President and Mrs. Manley's reception for seniors, faculty, friends and parents at 4:30 p.m., Sunday, June 3, at Reynolds Cottage.

The formal commencement services began on June 2, at three o'clock when the Class Day exercises were held on the front steps of Rockefeller Hall. Immediately after these exercises followed the traditional alumnae procession with classes led by the granddaughters and with college students as escorts of honor. Baccalaureate Sunday, June 3, was observed jointly with Atlanta University and Morehouse College with Dr. Herbert King as speaker. On June 4, at 1:30 p.m. in Sisters Chapel, Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller, Albany, New York, delivered the Commencement address.

IVY ORATION

*Truth, crushed to earth, shall rise again;
The eternal years of God are hers,
But Error, wounded, writhes in pain,
And dies among his worshippers.*

If you had the choice to live in any period of history would you by-pass Pharaoh's Egypt, ancient Greece and Rome, Michelangelo's Italy and the Renaissance, Shakespeare's England, Moliere's France, George Washington's Thirteen Colonies, or the sweat filled days in the cottonfields. I would by-pass each of these epochs of history and choose the later portion of the Twentieth Century, for it is a great time intellectually and spiritually to be alive. Throughout the world a revolution is taking place, from the burning sands of the Sahara to the cold Arctic region, and from the distant lands of the Orient to our own United States. The very foundations of the world are being shaken. Yes, as sputniks and explorers dash through outerspace, as guided rockets and astronauts carve new highways in the stratosphere, we are all caught up in a search, the eternal search for truth in an age of faith and doubt.

Our first challenge in this present age is not to sleep through this revolution as Rip Van Winkle slept through the American revolution, but we must arm ourselves for the quest that is before us. If we fall asleep, we have failed our examination for matriculation in the university of truth.

As we seek diligently for the truth, let us remember the words of Christ and also the motto of our college. Christ said, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." And it is refreshing to hear him say, "I am the truth." And our motto says, Our Whole School for Christ. Therefore, our challenge today is to realize the importance not only of pursuing academic excellence in our various disciplines, but to understand the importance of the foundation and direction that Spelman has given us in our quest for truth and understanding. Whether we aspire to be doctors, lawyers, musicians, teachers, housewives, or even the President's First Lady, we should remember our indebtedness to Spelman as a great institution that has led us for four years in the direction of truth.

As we leave Spelman and continue our search for truth, let us develop three qualities in our lives:

First, let us avoid conformity, for as Erich Fromm points out in his book, Escape from Freedom, in America although we are supposedly free legally, we live under the illusions of individuality because we are restrained and restricted by public opinion. He goes on to point out that in our society there is a loss of the individual self. This loss is due to conformity; a conformity which suppresses original thinking and will. Therefore, in our quest for truth, we must develop courageous minds that are willing to break through the straight-jackets of conformity. We must dare to maintain original thinking and not be swept into the abyss of stagnant thinking.

Secondly, as ivy begins its upward search for complete existence by conquering all obstacles that lie in its path, venturing ever toward its day of triumph which comes when it reaches full blossom at the age of maturity, then let us accept our challenge of life in the same manner and strive constantly in noble directions pursuing excellence. Let us never fall by the wayside and live lives of poison ivy contaminating humanity by rendering ignoble deeds.

And finally, in our search for understanding, we should strive constantly toward our noblest and best and in doing so, we should dedicate our lives to transforming a doubtful world into a faithful one. This can only be achieved by leaving the past behind us, accepting the challenge before us, conquering, daring, ever venturing by being pioneers in the search for truth.

Whenever this is done something will happen in our society and in the world and figuratively speaking, the morning stars will sing together and mankind will shout for joy.

In this never ending search for truth, let us all dare to say as Archimedes said . . . "A place to stand, a place to stand is all I ask for, give me this and I'll move the world!"

MRS. MANLEY ATTENDS WILPF CONGRESS

As a representative of the Atlanta branch of the WILPF, Mrs. Albert E. Manley was one of the observers at the triennial international congress of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom which met July 8-13, in Asilomar State Park, Pacific Grove, California. Representatives from 23 countries attended the conference. During the six day assembly, the WILPF evaluated its work of the past three years, heard significant papers on many facets of its goal for Total and Universal Disarmament—Now, and formulated plans for future work.

Since 1915, the WILPF has worked for world peace, for universal disarmament, for the rights of national independence and self determination, for civil rights and civil liberties.

The immediate objective of the organization in each country where there is a branch of WILPF is, on November 11, to focus attention on the dangers of accidental war.

Left to Right: MRS. MAGNOLIA GRIGGS WILLIS and MRS. ALINE HOWARD, Head Residents who retired June, 1962. They represent a combined total of 26 years of dedicated service to Spelman College. On May 13, they were honored and saluted at a Mothers Day Vesper Service by the Spelman Family at which time PRESIDENT MANLEY spoke of the College's appreciation of their loyalty and service.

PRIZES AND AWARDS

Prizes and awards were made to outstanding Spelman College students by President Albert E. Manley in a special chapel service in Sisters Chapel.

The Trevor and Bertha S. Arnett Scholarship, covering full tuition for the year offered to a member of the junior class who makes a high scholarship record and who shows promise of making wise use of further educational opportunities was awarded to Katie Coleman, a native of Atlanta, Georgia. The Amy Chadwick Scholarship was presented to Ora Bruno, a junior, from New Orleans, Louisiana. Miss Bruno was also the recipient of the Florence M. Read Award. Marie Thomas, junior, Atlanta, Georgia, received the Jerome Award for Creative Achievement for her artistic interpretations in creative dancing and her skillful interpretation in the portrayal of the characters of Polly Brown and of Emily in the Atlanta-Morehouse-Spelman Players productions The Boy Friend and Our Town. Betty Lane, Detroit, Michigan, received the J. Louise Fowler Loyalty Fund Scholarship, a full year's tuition, given annually by the National Alumnae Association to the member of the incoming junior class who is considered to merit it. A $250 scholarship for summer work at the Connecticut College School of Dance, New London, Connecticut, was awarded to Judith Allen, Atlanta, Georgia. The May Sherer MacGregor Prize given to the member of the freshman class who in the opinion of the faculty, had made the greatest advance during the year, both academically and socially, went to Patricia Thornton, Atlanta, Ga.

The Seymour Finney Prize awarded to the student in the graduating class with the highest scholarship record, and the Lucy Upton Prize presented to the resident member of the junior class who stands high in leadership and scholarship went to Patricia White, Beaumont, Tex., and Barbara Brown, Charlotte, North Carolina, respectively.

The Helen T. Albro Prize, The Georgia Caldwell Smith Mathematics Prize, and the Minnie James Washington Prize for high scholarship in Home Economics were presented to Merdis Davis, La Grange, Georgia, Amanda Hicks, Daytona Beach, Florida, Lana Taylor, Memphis, Tennessee, and Mary Elizabeth Ellis, Atlanta, Georgia, respectively.

The Ludie Andrews Prize presented each year to the working student who best exemplifies a spirit of cooperation in the college community was awarded to Barbara Bursey, Marianna, Arkansas. Miss Bursey and Ester Evans, Macon, Georgia, received the Biology Club Bird Identification Contest Prizes. The Eula L. Eagleson prize given to the student who best exemplifies the spirit of Spelman was awarded to Anna Hankerson, a senior from Oglethorpe, Georgia.

Constance Nabwire, Soroti, Uganda, won the Mary E. Simmons Prize for the best essay on self-help. Judy Carol Tillman, Atlanta, Georgia, received the Chamberlain Scripture Reading Prize. Mrs. Clara D. Horsely, Newnan, Georgia, and Salliann Pollack, Atlanta, Georgia, shared the Lucinda Hayes Scripture Recitation Prize. Medals from the cultural division of the French Consulate for proficiency in French went to Patricia Howard, Detroit, Michigan; Marilyn Holt, Atlanta, Georgia; Clara Whipple, Brunswick, Georgia; and Annease Chaney, Atlanta, Georgia.

SUMMER THEATRE

The Atlanta University Summer Theatre has concluded its twenty-ninth season with accomplishments in keeping with its tradition of performances just below the professional level. This in spite of an inadequate stage, an uncomfortable auditorium with bad acoustics, and, unfortunately, all too small audiences.

That the last was true reflects not on the choice of program nor the production and acting, but on the Summer School student body which remains discouragingly indifferent to all of the cultural enrichment of the Summer School program. The first offering, for example, "Six Who Pass While the Lentils Boil," was selected so that teachers in the upper elementary and lower high school grades could see how dramatic expression might be developed in their own schools. Perhaps they would have found it difficult to duplicate the charming set, but the drama as a technique in teaching was there for them to see. But where were the teachers? In their rooms, perhaps, writing papers on techniques in teaching, rather than seeing an excellent example of techniques in action.

The second offering, "The Bat," Mary Roberts Rinehart's rather antiquated contribution to the "who-done-it" genre, lacked the pace needed for a mystery drama and suffered from the fact that the inadequacies of the actors in their lines gave the production an antiphonal effect, acceptable enough in the liturgical drama, but certainly not contemplated by Mrs. Rinehart.

Possibly the choice of Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler" as the final play was not the best. The social conditions against which Ibsen has portrayed human emotions are just different enough from those of the present to seem quaint and dated and they distract the viewer from the universal aspects of the play.

Within this limitation, the production and acting were excellent. Andrea Jackson as Mrs. Tea Elvsted sustained a difficult characterization with consistency and understanding. Throughout her Summer Theatre career she has shown competence and versatility. Thelma Branch brought varied experience and subtlety to her characterization of Miss Tesman. In the able hands of J. Preston Cochran, Judge Brack's character transcended the one-dimensional impression gained from reading the play and emerged as a charming reprobate. William Smith's Ejler Lovberg was believable and played with maturity and understanding.

To criticize Electa Twyman's Hedda may seem unfair, for Hedda is a role which since 1891 has been portrayed by many distinguished actresses with varied and conflicting interpretations. But, in spite of her grace and stagecraft, Miss Twyman never seemed completely at home in the part. Admittedly it is difficult for even the mature actress to bring alive Hedda's revulsion against pregnancy, her obsession with self-destruction, her preoccupation with the Bacchic orgy symbolized by the vine leaves in Lovberg's hair. But too often Miss Twyman's Hedda seemed a compulsively naughty child, exquisitely gowned in her great grandmother's finery.

It is needless to say that Baldwin W. Burrough's production and direction was as usual competent and imaginative.

*This is the last article written by Mrs. Coulborn before her tragic automobile death in August, 1962. Our sincere sympathy is extended to her family.

ARTIE ALLEN

Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of Miss Artie Allen of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, who was killed in an automobile accident on August 27, 1962. Artie enrolled at Spelman College in September, 1960 and was majoring in drama with a minor in art. She was capable, efficient, independent in thought and action. Her job as receptionist in Rockefeller Hall brought her in touch with many members of the Spelman family as well as with interested friends who found her to be kind, understanding, charming and friendly.

ELLEN BARNETTE

Miss Ellen Barnette returned to the United States on Sunday, August 19, after more than four years as a teacher of English in the Lucie-Harrison School, Lahore, West Pakistan. Previously, Ellen had spent three years as a teacher in India. Both assignments were by the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church.

En route home, Ellen visited in Delhi, Bangkok, Hong Kong, Japan and in Hawaii. While in Hawaii visiting her brother and family, she was fortunate in seeing her sister, Dorothy, who arrived to do field work among the Methodist women in that state a few days before Ellen's departure for home.

Ellen's home address is 5002 Hunt Street, N.E., Washington 19, D. C.

LUDIE CLAY ANDREWS

In June, Mrs. Ludie C. Andrews, NT '06, made a generous gift to the College of $2,500 to be used for student scholarships. In thanking Mrs. Andrews, former superintendent of MacVicar Hospital, Spelman College, now retired, President Manley wrote ". . . We are always especially grateful for funds which will enable worthy students who are in need of financial aid to continue their studies. Many times, students of promise are prevented from receiving college education because of lack of money. This is a loss to the student, the college, and to the community. Certainly, this is a time when we need every trained person to take his share of the world's work . . ." Mrs. Andrews is the first graduate to give as much as $2,500 to the current Development Campaign. Now retired, she lives at 155 Ashby Street, S. W., Atlanta, Georgia.

CLAIRE COLLINS HARVEY

Mrs. Clarie Collins Harvey, C '37, is very active in the Women Strike for Peace Movement. Because of her work with Womenpower Unlimited, the Civil Rights struggle in Jackson, Mississippi, and with the Methodist Peace Division, Mrs. Harvey was invited to join fifty professional women from 17 states and the District of Columbia on a trip to Geneva, Switzerland, April 1 on a people-to-people mission in the interest of peace. In Mrs. Harvey's own words taken from an article "Women strike for peace" in the June 1, 1962 issue of Concern, "The movement began as an upsurge from the grass roots, a spontaneous expression of women throughout the United States to end the arms race. It is not a formal organization and has no sponsors. It is, rather, a vehicle for direct individual action to reverse the collision course of government." In June, 1962, Mrs. Harvey participated in the first national meeting of Women Strike for Peace at Ann Arbor, Michigan. June 21-28, Mrs. Harvey, along with three other Women Strike for Peace members, was a part of "The World Without the Bomb" Peace Conference held in Accra, Ghana. While in Accra, Mrs. Harvey reported that she "spent many wonderful hours with Lt. Col. and Mrs. Luther Evans, Margaret Creagh, C '39, and their four daughters. She also visited Liberia and Senegal before returning home.

Chicago Spelman Club—

The Chicago Spelman Club met with President Albert E. Manley at the home of Mrs. Foster B. Jackson, Minnie Felton, on Tuesday, March 13, 1962. There were 27 members in attendance who found his remarks informative and stimulating.

Dr. Manley explained the numerous undertakings of the college and told the group about the success of the Merrill scholars and of the exchange students program. The alumnae were pleased to know that Spelman graduates are now eligible for membership in the American Association of University Women.

There was a discussion of the Development Campaign and the difficulties involved in raising funds. The club had discussed this problem of fund-raising before Dr. Manley's arrival from another meeting at one of Chicago's northern suburbs. Their effort to raise funds is to be the sale of tickets to one of several concerts sponsored by the Allied Arts Corporation of Chicago.

Dr. Manley was asked many questions regarding school policies, Merrill scholars, exchange students, and the proposed Fine Arts building. There was a discussion of the problem of high school students dropping out of school and what is being done to rectify the situation. Mrs. Ray Chatman Scott told of the programs at the YWCA which are being offered in an effort to deal with the drop-out problem.

After the meeting, cake and coffee were served and many alumnae had the opportunity of talking more informally with Dr. Manley.

In reply to President Manley's Founders Day appeal letter, Mrs. Mary DuBose Willis of 155 Trask Street, Aurora, Illinois writes: "I read with interest your letter to Spelman alumnae and hope that the percentage of participation will rise this year so that Spelman can realize her goal. I love my Alma Mater and can always look back with pleasant memories and with a genuine appreciation of what was done for me when I was a student there. I continue to realize what Spelman has meant to me these thirty-one years since leaving there and living out here in the world where I have had to rely on the background and preparation and also timely principles which were given to and impressed upon me. I appreciate all that Spelman did for me during my high school and college days.

I cannot be with you in person to help celebrate the Eighty-First Founders Day but I am sharing it with you through prayer and my pledge remittance.

I hope that Spelman can continue to prepare young women for living and for making a life useful in these days of opportunity for science and the demand for individuals to cope with present and future circumstances. . . ."

In March, Marnesba Hill wrote from Nigeria that she planned to enroll in the University of Geneva for the spring session which was scheduled to begin April 25. She said, "Nigeria has proved to be a fascinating country, and being here a satisfying experience. It has been particularly exciting to be, however indirectly, in on the initial stages in the development of a university which is introducing an entirely new concept of education to West Africa. I have made many wonderful friends, and it is not without reluctance that I am preparing to leave. . . . I have continued my folk music to the extent that I have made a great many radio and television appearances here, and I have felt especially honored to be able to sing for Dr. Unamdi Azikwe, the Governor-General of Nigeria last October, and more recently, to share a program at the United States Information Service here with Sir Francis Ibiem, the governor of Eastern Nigeria. . . . I had the enjoyable experience of seeing Dr. James in Lagos last Christmas, and it once again proved to me that the world is actually very, very small. It was wonderful being brought up to date on the activities of Spelman and hearing news of all my friends and former teachers. Dr. Haines of Morehouse also is here at Nsukka, and our two families get together often, and, more often than not talk nostalgically of Atlanta."

Mr. and Mrs. William Garlington, Barbara McAllister, are the happy parents of a son, William Christopher, who is almost two years old. The Garlingtons live at 71 Georgia Street, Boston 21, Massachusetts.

hanoy City (Pa.) High School, Millersville Normal School (now State Teachers College), and Bucknell University. A dedicated and outstanding teacher, she taught school for 37 years, holding positions in the elementary school in Mahanoy City, at Spelman Seminary, Kutztown State Normal School, Millersville Normal School and Milton High School from which she resigned in June, 1939. At the time of her resignation, Miss Moll had been a teacher of Latin in Milton High School for 16 years.

The Milton 1940 High School

Yearbook carried an "In Appreciation" of Miss Moll which said in part ". . . We speak not only for ourselves but in behalf of many former students and fellow teachers who would be grateful for the opportunity to join us in telling Miss Moll that we shall cherish among the best and most enriching of our school experiences the influence of her Christian character, scholarly achievements and fine humor."

Miss Moll was an active and faithful member of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church of Milton, Pennsylvania.
